

Hope Waning Fast As No Word Comes Of Grayson Plane

"Dawn" and Her Crew of Four, Bound for Harbor Grace, Now Hours Overdue.

RADIO OF PLANE SILENT ALL NIGHT

Best That Can Be Hoped for Fliers Is That They Have Landed in Isolated Cove.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, who had hoped to spend this Christmas eve in Harbor Grace, N. F., preparatory to attempting the first winter flight across the Atlantic, was hours overdue tonight and hope for her and her three men companions was waning fast.

The men who started with her for Newfoundland in her amphibian Sikorsky "Dawn" were Oskar Omdal, who flew over the north pole with Amundsen, her pilot; Brice Giddens, her radio operator and navigator, and Fred Koehler, an engine expert, who had expected to leave the expedition before it left Newfoundland on the main map of the projected flight to England.

At 5:07 o'clock yesterday afternoon these four took off from Roosevelt field for Harbor Grace. They had gasoline enough for 20 hours, or until 1 o'clock this afternoon, and they expected to make the flight in fourteen hours.

The Dawn was seen some two and a half hours after leaving Roosevelt field, flying over Cape Cod, up above the waters that so recently swallowed the crippled submarine S-4 and its 40 men.

After that—nothing. From Cape Cod to the coast of Nova Scotia is 250 miles over an ocean tossing from recent storms. It was freezing weather and the weather bureau believes there may have been some rain or snow. This combination is one that every aviator dreads for the formation of ice on wings destroys their lifting power.

Dawn Falls to Arrive.

The hours of the night passed and then the day and still the Dawn failed to arrive in Newfoundland. Not once did her radio speak though operators all along the coast and out at sea were listening for word.

At 1 o'clock, the dreaded "deadline," came and went, but no slender hope remained that the Dawn might still be still aloft. These are two engines in the amphibian, and the 20-hour period was figured on the basis of their being both in operation. But either engine can fly the plane alone, and it is by chance one engine went out of commission during the flight the potential period in the air would be materially lengthened. It would not be denied, however, according to the work of two consumes more gas than one of a pair. But had one failed soon after leaving Cape Cod, the pilot might keep the ship up until late tonight.

This was considered a faint hope, however, for it was believed that had

Continued on Page 2, Column 2.

JOYOUS YULETIDE SPIRIT IS REIGNING IN ATLANTA TODAY

Shoppers Heave Sigh of Relief as the Great Day Dawns; Children Are Thrilled.

Merry, merry Christmas! Atlanta this Sabbath and Christmas morning starts its two days of yuletide celebration. After many busy days of shopping for gifts and darning decorations for trees of pine and cedar and spruce and fir, today and Monday are being given over in thousands of homes in this city to the celebration of that most joyous holiday season of all the year.

School children are on vacation. The state capitol, the county courthouse, the city hall, the downtown stores and most of the industrial plants are closed tight; not to open again until Tuesday morning. Forunate are those children who can enjoy to the full two whole days of Christmas, all at once.

Throughout the city, as on other Christmas days, the center of the real celebration of the birth of the Savior will be the many churches which have arranged special programs.

Holidays Began Friday.

Christmas for Atlanta's official family and 62,000 youngsters from local schools began Friday, with the city employees returning to work Tuesday, while the students return to school January 2.

A feature of the closing of the city hall for the holiday was a Christmas tree held in the office of Chief of Construction William A. Hansell, at which more than 300 received gifts.

Chief Hansell was presented two beautiful chairs by members of his department.

Local college campuses present a dear and happy scene. With but a few exceptions, boys who are working downtown during the holidays, all students have gone in for a yuletide celebration at home.

Outgoing trains have carried the railriders home to the Christmas firesides.

Nightly Cheer.

At night, through the extensive adoption of the Camp Fire Girls plan to "light the living trees," which is sponsored by The Constitution, hundreds of homes present a glowing picture of happiness, cheer and good will framed in a foreground of lighted trees and lawn shrubbery.

All groceries and other food stores will remain closed until Tuesday morning, according to the Atlanta Retail Food Dealers' association.

Filling stations will not be open Sunday, but will resume business Monday morning.

The postoffice will be closed Sunday and Monday, but delivery of mail will continue through Sunday until

Continued on Page 2, Column 4.

CHRISTMAS - THE DAY OF FAITH

BY SAM W. SMALL

For the 19th time in unbroken succession The Constitution rejoices in wishing a "Merry Christmas" to its constantly growing family in Atlanta, in Georgia and all over the globe.

From the almost wholly homespun Christmas graces and gifts of 1808 many of us have come a long way. Our marches have been through the checkered lights and shadows that mark all human life and give the web of history. But, by the providence of our God, we forged a path out of the penumbra of a night and devastating war, and took up the torch of a certain burden of restoring to prosperity and power the fairest and most fruitful region within the realm of a deformed government and a hybridized civilization.

From the high peak of this Christmas Day The Constitution and its clientele look out upon a city resuscitated from ashes, glorified in simpler garments and crowded with affluence; upon a state regenerated from a Nipote into an "empress on her throne"; upon a republic that God has called to be the Moses nation of mankind; and upon a civilized world in travail, but groaning for a firmament ringing with peans to the "Prince of Peace," whose day this is, and for an earth freed and fitted to be the dwelling place of the sons of God and men.

How could these things have come to pass and how can the things yet needed ever be had nor Christ come those nineteen centuries ago? All wise men now agree that His spirit changed the temperaments of mankind and set the new course of history until now. Peoples, sects, cults and countries now welcome and celebrate this Christmas festival who never could have invented it and who do not yet worship in its implications.

What joy and gratitude, then, should every soul of us feel today as we hail each other in the familiar and heartening salutations that are the ancient shibboleths of those who love the Lord and fellowship their kind!

What a sweetening thing it is, too, that this glorious day inspires us with the spirit and sentiments of childhood! The first Christmas thought of father and mother is for the blessing and happiness of the children. We remember now, for once at least in the year, that this beneficent Christian era began with a Holy Mother and a Holy Child. So there comes to affectionate souls no diviner joy than that of having made a little child smile, and sing, and say the happy things that rise spontaneously to the lips of the innocent and original. The nearest pang of the day is sympathy for the little ones to whom fortune denies the simplest of Christmas joys.

Today none of us are agnostic, atheist, doubters and deriders of sacred faiths. The world about us for this season is too full of the goodness and gladness whose substance is faith in an Omnipotent Creator and an Omnipresent Redeemer. And how the patios and powers of that faith, reflects in the face of every child who has dreamed of the bounty of Santa Claus and awoke this morning to find its dreams come true! The household lamp in millions and millions of homes, like that of Al-ed-Din, has been rubbed by tender hands, and a Magic, the miracle-working staff of Love, has filled the house with the symbols of affection and delight.

Then, as the yule-log expires in its ashes, and the holy dries into dust, and the clangor of the New Year bells signal a new tour of devotion and duties, shall we not beseech for ourselves greater portions of the Spirit of Him whose birth we have worshipped and whose highest eulogy is that "He went about doing good?" Speaking for The Constitution as one who accompanied its career for sixty years less one, and who can go but little further with it, I renew our annual wish for the health, happiness and prosperity of our great family, until in due time, prepared and resigned, we meet the inevitable terminator of earthly delights and separator of human companions, and go to Him whom we adore!

Mystery Woman In Hickman Case Sought by Police

TWENTY ARE HURT IN U. S. BANK BLAST IN BUENOS AIRES

Two American Financial Institutions Damaged; Sacco-Vanzetti Sympathizers Are Blamed.

Buenos Aires, December 24.—(AP)—Christmas eve brought injuries to nearly 20 persons in two terrorist bomb explosions that wrought havoc in two branches of United States banks here today.

All of the casualties occurred in the Buenos Aires branch of the National City bank of New York shortly before noon. A clock stopped by the explosion gave 11:54 as the exact time. Shortly after noon another bomb exploded at the Argentine branch of the First National bank of Boston, about three blocks away. These are the only American banks in Buenos Aires, although there are a dozen other foreign banks in the same section, the heart of the financial district.

See Sacco-Vanzetti Plot. The explosions, attributed to Sacco-Vanzetti sympathizers, came in the midst of preparations for the Christmas holidays, just a few minutes before the close of work on the regular Saturday half-holiday.

The injured were taken to a hospital, where it was reported that three were seriously injured and 16 others, including Thomas F. Little, manager of the National City bank, were less seriously injured. Among those hurt were four women.

Other Americans injured were William Ruissler, Miss Ethel Buck, Miss Flora Small, Mrs. Cora Cotorelli, Henry Samford and C. W. Wisler. Other foreigners injured were Miss Emeline Beama, British, and Joaquin Oliver, Filipino. None of these was seriously injured, except Oliver.

The banks have been under guard since the recent Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, but vigilance was relaxed

Continued on Page 5, Column 2.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR SUMMONED BY SENATE

Oklahoma City, Okla., December 24.—(United News.)—Summonses to appear before the insurgent state senate December 28 to answer impeachment charges were served tonight on Governor Henry S. Johnston and two other state officials.

The summonses were delivered in defiance of a permanent injunction forbidding impeachment activities by the legislature.

Continued on Page 5, Column 6.

Finger Prints, Found in Apartments of Slayer, Connect New Figure With Child's Death.

SLAYER IS SEEKING TO ESCAPE DEATH

Prisoner Hopes That He Will Be Allowed to Plead Guilty to Kidnaping, Not Murder.

Los Angeles, December 24.—(AP)—Search for a woman in connection with the kidnaping and murder of Marian Parker was intensified here today when fingerprints made by a woman were discovered in the Bellevue Arms apartment occupied by William E. Hickman.

The prints, heretofore unrevealed in microscopic search of the apartment in which police believe the little daughter of Perry M. Parker, bank official, was held prisoner and later slain, were found on a milk bottle and on a dinner plate.

Lieutenant H. L. Barlow, police fingerprint expert, said he was convinced that the prints were not made by Marian Parker and that they had not been left by any woman thus far mentioned in the case. The police identification bureau immediately started an examination of its files for prints which might form a link to connect with today's discovery.

Clothes Are Found.

The finding of a pair of brown stockings and underwear thought to have been worn by the banker's daughter when she was kidnaped, from the Mount Vernon school, gave police hope for a time that another of the "mysteries" of the case had been solved.

The slain girl's stockings, shoes and clothing were not with other garments when her mutilated body was given to the father in return for $1,500 ransom December 17. Nor did the missing "clothing" come to light when portions of the child's body were found in paper wrapped bundles in Flynn Park the next day. The garments found today were arranged in a newspaper dated December 17.

Later examination proved they had not been worn by Marian Parker.

Continued on Page 5, Column 6.

Atlanta Fully Subscribes LOCAL CAPITALIST SENDS CHECK COMPLETING FUND "Ten Opportunities" Appeal

BY BILL SHIPPEN.

A holy hush reigns Atlanta as dawn brings another Christmas day.

And the city knows no joy and gratitude more complete than that which throbs in the hearts of fifty little children and ten mothers of the very poor.

For their "Ten Opportunities" fund, in its entirety, is "over the top."

Of $4,976 required to carry Atlanta's ten neediest families through twelve months of security from hunger and disease, $4,985 has been subscribed in response to The Constitution's appeal in their behalf.

ATLANTAN BRINGS SUCCESSFUL CLOSE.

This amount was made complete Saturday morning by a prominent young capitalist of the city, who requested that his name be withheld. Asking for the balance necessary to complete the fund, he drew a check for $494 and made it payable to the "Ten Opportunities." An additional $9 was received in later mails.

That is the story in brief; but back of it lies a treasure of faith and love and generosity. This has been a hard year for many Atlantans; thousands have found it difficult to provide for their nearest and dearest, and when these crying needs were met there remained little for charity.

But the great heart of Atlanta has beat with its customary tenderness. The Constitution's appeal, which it has carried at this time for many years past, has met with a response, both spontaneous and complete.

Social workers of the Atlanta Family Welfare society, of 534 Auburn avenue, who will administer the fund, expressed Saturday their joy and gratitude at the success of the "Ten Opportunities" appeal.

FAMILIES ASSURED NORMAL LIVING.

Throughout the coming year this organization, without a penny's overhead, will expend the fund. Every one of the ten neediest families today are assured a year of healthy, normal living.

Only yesterday the future of these little families was hazardous in the extreme. They were confronted with a year of privation, threatened by tuberculosis and with the ravages of malnutrition and exposure.

Today they have thousands of friends in the city who have come forward at Christmas time to give them a helping hand. Tided through a dark period, many of these families will win to independence next year. Growing children, aided to healthy maturity by adequate food, shelter and clothing, will soon become wage earners—will "soon" take their rightful place as citizens of the

Continued on Page 5, Column 5.

World's Devout Gather At Christ's Birthplace

THOUSANDS ATTEND CHRISTMAS FETE

Bethlehem, Judea, December 24.—(AP)—The anniversary of the birth of Jesus Christ was celebrated here tonight by devout Christians from all over the world on the very spot of the nativity.

For weeks the followers of Jesus have been converging on this little town in the hills of Judea and tonight a great multitude gathered under the open, starlit sky outside the village in the very field where the shepherds watched their flocks on that eventful night.

Christmas carols, sung there by an English choir from Jerusalem, revived again in the imagination of the visiting pilgrims the scenes of that first, long-ago Christmas, the humble Hebrew maiden and her Babe, the stable and the manger, the shepherds and their flocks.

Services Last All Night. The services in the Church of the Nativity, the oldest Christian church in the world still in Christian use, started early in the evening and will continue well into Christmas day.

Like the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, in Jerusalem, the outline of the Church of the Nativity is hidden by the complex of buildings over and around it, Franciscan, Armenian and Orthodox convents. There is no Protestant church connected with the site of the nativity.

The entrance is a door only four feet high, built purposely low enough to keep out the cattle, which Mohammedan governors in the past had no qualms about driving into the most sacred of all Christian churches.

Although the pilgrims stopped to

2,000 REDS KILLED IN CANTON FIGHTS

Death Toll Mounts as Nationalists Continue Reign of Terror; Two Women Victims.

Hongkong, December 24.—(AP)—Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons, including at least eleven Russians, are estimated to have been killed in the ruthless slaughter, which marked the crushing of the communist revolt in Canton during the past two weeks.

From the beehive of Chinese industry, which it once was, the business district of Canton has been reduced to a mass of ruins, with conditions made worse by inadequate facilities for burying the dead and caring for those wounded. Of the Russians killed, the most prominent was M. Blazov, the soviet vice consul in Canton. Two Russian women were among the victims.

$50,000,000 Fire Loss. The means of the Canton government for disposal of the dead have proved inadequate and charitable institutions carried out wholesale burials, removing cart loads of corpses from the streets.

The value of the property burned

Continued on Page 5, Column 1.

Peace Reigns As Christmas Morn Dawns

Mankind Looks Through Same Eyes First Man Did on This Gladsome Day.

BY LOYD A. WILHOIT.

Christmas morning—A crisp, cold day, fresh born out of the rose-shot gray of dawn; a soft, golden sun that spreads its warm mantle over the earth and melts the frost tracery on the grass blades—as it has done from the beginning.

A blue, smiling sky and a fresh wind from the hills—a sky that looked down upon the cradle of humanity and a breeze that blew upon the cheek of the first man.

Smoke, curling up from the chimneys, as it has done for long centuries. Signs of the first early stirring of men, just awakened from the sleep that has restored their bodies down the ages.

But that was not all—A smothered roar from thousands of automobiles; a clanging of trolley wheels on cobbles of steel; the patting of great hollers barked against the trolley rest, crouched for resumption of toil when man ceases to feast and celebrate.

And over it, all the warm mantle of

Continued on Page 2, Column 5.

NAVY 'HIT' FOR SUB DEATHS BY MOTHER

Wilbur Orders Continuance of Work To Raise Sunken S-4; Heavy Seas Again Halt Divers.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and the Chicago Tribune.)

Provincetown, Mass., December 24. A bereaved mother sat in a little room of Red Cross headquarters here this afternoon and gave expression to the most extreme bitterness.

She placed the blame directly upon the United States navy for the loss of her boy. She was the first mother who lost a son in the terrible plunge of the submarine S-4 to express her feelings of the disaster.

The mother was Mrs. M. T. Stevens, of Providence, R. I., whose son, Joseph L. Stevens, met slow death with five others in the torpedoed compartment of the S-4 after the submarine sank with an eventual loss of forty lives, just one week ago today.

Wilbur Also Criticized. She voiced no words in her criticism of the navy and the attitude of Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur and Rear Admiral Charles E. Hughes, chief of naval operations.

"Yes, I blame the navy," she said.

Continued on Page 5, Column 4.

Junior Red Cross Efforts Directed To Aid the Needy

The coming of the holiday season is welcomed particularly by the Junior Red Cross, whose work is directed at all times to making the lives of the less fortunate brighter and happier and consequently the holiday season furnishes them an opportunity to be of special service to the needy.

For many weeks and months past the Juniors have been "working for Christmas," the headquarters office is a miniature bazaar in which samples of the various favors, toys, dolls, bags, Christmas stockings, gift writing pads, joke books, book ends, wall vases, baskets, trays, Christmas cards, stamped ready for sending, and other objects too numerous to mention, are displayed.

The Junior Red Cross does its work through the schools, striving to work with the school program and to furnish special direction to the school activities and to provide for special needs of the inmates of the various city institutions as these needs arise.

For convenience, the Juniors are grouped into pupils of the grammar schools, high schools and the colored schools and every school in each one of these groups has done most commanding work this Christmas.

The following grammar schools have reported to the Junior Red Cross the special Christmas activities undertaken:

Tenth Street: Dressed sixteen dolls for distribution to needy children, and also made paper chains for decorations at the church and department of Battle Hill sanatorium. Spring Street school made dozens of writing pads for the ex-service men at Hospital 48, and Ella W. Smilie school joined in this activity. Frank L. Stanton school also contributed to the Christmas festivities at Hospital 48, sending favors of many kinds. The Samuel Inman school played Santa Claus to one little boy at Battle Hill, the desire of whose heart was a cowboy suit, which was purchased by the Juniors of this school and sent to the happy recipient. Cash contributions for toys were also made by this school.

A lot of broken and shop-worn dolls were reclaimed by the Juniors of Fair Street school ungraded classes. English Avenue school made fancy boxes for candy and the ungraded classes of this school make joke books for the patients at Hospital 48. Emma Park school ungraded Juniors made clever checkboards with wooden men carefully cut out, and also did much work to reclaim broken toys. Williams Street school, Highland Avenue and all of the high schools made, favors for the hospitals and for other Atlanta institutions which were used as Christmas decorations.

Christmas stockings were filled by Bass Junior High, and the children of ex-service men were remembered by the Juniors of this school; Joe Brown Junior High gave a Christmas party to the inmates of the House for Old Women; O'Keefe Junior High sent 300 Christmas cards already stamped for mailing to the men at Hospital 49 to be distributed by them, and also remembered the men at Fort McPherson; Hoke Smith Junior and Thomson Junior High took part in similar activities, and the private schools, Washington seminary, Woodberry Hall and the North Atlanta Presbyterian school joined the Boys' High, Tech High and Girls' High as well as the Commercial High in making gifts, filling stockings and sending letters to individuals in many ways at Christmas.

Santa's Arrival To Be Greeted By Clear Skies

Christmas day will be ushered in with bright and cheerful weather, while clear skies shine overhead and crisp but not freezing air fills every breath. That is the picture painted by G. N. von Herrmann, local meteorologist, from today's forecast for Atlanta.

HOPE WANING FAST FOR LOST AVIATORS

Continued From First Page.

The plane remained in air until daylight some place to land would have been found near a populous settlement from which the world would have been informed.

The best that most could hope for the missing fliers was that they had been forced down in some isolated cove along the coast and that they would eventually reach some habitation and so communicate their safety.

GOVERNMENT PLANS SEARCH FOR FLIERS

Halifax, N. S., December 24.—(AP) Officials of the federal department of marine and fisheries were preparing today to send government boats to patrol the area in which the amphibious plane Dawn is believed to have been forced down on her flight to Newfoundland from New York.

The boats will be dispatched immediately on receipt of orders from the department in Ottawa. Government patrol boats are at present distributed over a long stretch of coast. Two are at Halifax, one at Liverpool, N. S., one at Yarmouth, N. S., and one at St. John, N. B.

DON'T ABANDON HOPE. URGES EXPERT FLIER

Portland, Maine, December 24.—(AP) Hope for the safety of Mrs. Frances W. Grayson and her companions on their flight from New York to Harbor Grace, N. F., should not be abandoned for three days and possibly a week, in the opinion of Captain Harry M. Jones, veteran Old Orchard commercial aviator, expressed tonight.

If Oskar Omdal, the pilot of the Dawn, found he could not cross the Bay of Fundy, due to fog or unfavorable weather conditions during the night, Captain Jones thought he undoubtedly would head inland, rather than attempt to alight on the water.

If he made a safe landing, he could resume his flight to Newfoundland or, if he was forced inland to some isolated section of New Brunswick or Quebec, Jones said he might not be reported for days.

CHRIST'S BIRTHPLACE MECCA FOR DEVOUT

Continued From First Page.

tire basilica, preceded by banners and processional crosses carried by a double file of priests and bishops in richly embroidered garments.

The patriarch moved slowly on, flanked by the governors of Jerusalem and foreign consuls, including Ousef S. Heizer, of Iowa, American consul, blessing the congregation many of whom tried to kiss the hem of his vestments as he passed by.

During all this time the subdued excitement was stimulated by huge candelabra hanging ablaze with lights which were swung from side to side in the nave. The whole congregation joined in singing the great hymn of the angels, "Glory to God in the Highest, and on Earth Peace Toward Men of Good Will," before filling out into the still-darkened streets.

Macon Men Attend.

Among those present were Harry L. Trautman, of Macon, Ga., American consul at Aleppo, Syria; Professor John Meritt Fowles Smith, professor of Semitic languages of the University of Chicago; Mrs. and Miss Smith, the Rev. J. P. Robertson and G. S. Tarry, of New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Gordon Woodbury, of Bedford, N. H.; Miss Sarah Elder, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and many members of a tourist party aboard the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Australia.

General Glennan Dies.

Washington, December 24.—(United Press.)—Brigadier General James D. Glennan, retired, formerly assistant surgeon general of the army, died here today.

Dry Agents Begin Drive on Speakeasies

"That's the kind of stuff that makes 'em run amuck," United States Marshal Louis H. Crawford is telling leaders of the prohibition department's Christmas dry raids in a conference at which plans were made to close up Atlanta's alleged speakeasies. The three bottles in the picture formed a small bit of the liquor seized by federal agents during the week. The bulk of the whisky seized was said to be of a very poor quality and of an extremely unwholesome brand of rotten "corn." In the picture are, from left to right, Agent O. G. Spencer, Deputy Administrator Howard P. Wright, Agent F. B. Clarke, Deputy Marshal G. F. Dantzer, Agent Spence and Assistant District Attorney J. M. Johnson. Mr. Crawford is seated at the desk.

And a Doting Father Learned ANYWAY IT WAS A MERRY CHRISTMAS ON PEACHTREE From the Lips of His Babe

Continued From First Page.

She was just a we thing, and though she lived in one of Peachtree road's most sophisticated mansions, her eyes were bright with excitement and her little rosy mouth was framed in a red "O" at sight of the gifts on the Christmas tree.

A fond father hovered over her, pointing to the glittering toys and talking aimlessly, half in "baby talk."

"Just look at this dolly, Honey," he was saying. "And there's a beautiful doll carriage and a doll house any just everything." The child's eyes widened. "And—oh, isn't that ring pret-

JOYOUS YULETIDE SPIRIT REIGNING

Continued From First Page.

Monday noon, when the carriers will be given a half-holiday.

Stuffed stockings: The day of bliss for all childhood has arrived. It stole into existence in the very wee hours of this morning, cloaked in a coat of darkness and entering very much the same as other days.

On day's approach millions of little bodies stirred uneasily and many a tousled head tossed on its tiny pillow. And then when day went its first wee little ray of semi-light through frosted windows, millions of little feet struck the floor almost simultaneously and little eyes glistened with infinite hope.

Honking of toy auto horns . . . rattle of toy trains on their tracks . . . the cries of doll "babies" . . . happy, little excited shouts . . . "whee! it opens its eyes!" . . . the rub-a-dub-dub of a tin-headed drum . . . swift pedaling of a toy auto around the parlor . . . skinned furniture . . . disarranged rugs . . . every chair in the house sticky with candy from tiny hands . . . pine and cedar needles from parlor to kitchen . . . banana peels . . . deserted pieces of candy . . . hundred thousand other things, noises, experiences, feelings and joys . . . It's Christmas!

Traditional Background. And back of it all there lies a mighty tradition of Santa Claus, of the spirit of good and God . . . of a benedict Saint Nicholas who descends a billion chimneys in an hour and miraculously keeps his red coat shining clean . . . of a mystic bag wherein ten billion presents lie. Back of it all, do they think. Think of the Christ, of the very day they are celebrating. The skeptics say no, but in the personification of the great Santa Claus they have created, there lies Christ, himself.

Suffer little children . . . Merry, merry Christmas!

MYSTERY WOMAN SOUGHT BY POLICE

Continued From First Page.

that when he faces trial in Los Angeles he might be able to conduct his own defense in court as did George Remus, former bootleg king, who acted as his own attorney in his recent trial at Cincinnati for murder of his wife and won acquittal on the grounds of insanity. Hickman had read newspaper accounts of the Remus trial.

Says He Has Told Truth. Told that under the California law he already had placed himself within the shadow of the hangman's noose by confessing implication in the slaying, he retorted:

"I can't help it. I have told the truth. I will feel better to go that way than to tell a lie."

To another prisoner in the city jail here, where he has been held since his capture Thursday, Hickman volunteered:

"Maybe they'll let me plead guilty to kidnapping and get off with a life sentence."

The young prisoner's invariable reply when told of developments in Los Angeles which wove the web of evidence tighter about him was, "It's not true."

He denied that he had purchased ten bars of soap and two cans of cleaning powder in Los Angeles, which police there asserted he probably used to remove evidences of the dismemberment of the Parker girl's body in the Bellevue Arms apartment where he lived under an assumed name.

Silent on Cramer.

He gave no further information concerning the identity of the Andrew Cramer, who, he declared, was his accomplice in the kidnapping and the actual slaying.

"I don't know much about him," he said. "I only associated with him in crimes. He used to go on parties with women, but I wouldn't do that kind of thing. I don't like women or girls."

Hickman displayed much interest in the makeup of the party of Los Angeles officials en route here to question him and take him in charge. He said he had heard about District Attorney Ann Keyes and Chief of Detectives Herman Cline, who head the party. He seemed apprehensive about facing the officials.

At Portland today, where they took

VOTERS' LEAGUE PLANS POLITICAL BROADCASTS

The League of Women Voters, recognizing the importance and interest of the campaign issues of the year 1938 and in order to give its members an opportunity to study candidates and campaign issues from a non-partisan viewpoint, has arranged for a series of radio talks in cooperation with the National Broadcasting company.

By this means millions of people will receive authentic reports of events each week through the chain service to be broadcast each Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock, Central Standard time, from station WEAH in New York and station WBO in Washington, D. C.

From Washington a distinctive feature of what is termed "The Voters' Service" will be the presentation of "What Congress Is Doing." This program is to be under the direction of Charles G. Ross, a member of the Washington staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and a recognized authority on political happenings. Other newspapermen and prominent speakers will be invited to the microphone from time to time in order that both sides of issues and questions may be presented.

National league officers urge all local leagues in Georgia to arrange for "radio tests" to be held on Tuesday evenings at the hour named. The first of these "tests" may be scheduled for Tuesday, January 3.

Miss Katherine Luddington is the national radio chairman and Mrs. Casper Whitney and Mrs. Arthur Ringland form her radio committee. Miss Eleonora Haoul, president of the Georgia league, is asking that all local leagues, as well as members at large throughout the state, will arrange to hear these programs and report what they find them interesting and helpful.

Bandits Raid Bank.

Brownwood, Texas, December 24.—(AP)—The State Bank of Zephyr, 13 miles east of here, was robbed by two unmasked men just before closing time today. The amount of the loot had not been determined.

Last night, in contrast with the sound sleep he got on the first night after his capture, he slept fitfully until 6 o'clock this morning, when he was given breakfast.

Extradition papers obtained yesterday in California and rushed north by airplane were expected to be in Pendleton by midnight, after being signed by the governor of Oregon, today. Hickman may be taken part of the way to Los Angeles by plane.

CHRISTMAS DAWN MARKED BY PEACE

Continued From First Page.

the sun lies; the sky is as blue and the breeze as fresh as ever.

Children laugh in glee, and though the music of their laughter runs a note as golden as that which gladdened the hearts of parents who dressed in skins and lived in caves.

Men's eyes sparkle and men's lips frame greetings that reflect the spirit of fraternity that marked the first of earth's races.

Only the machinery is new. The sole difference is that the times have changed.

On this Christmas morning mankind looks upon the world through the same eyes that watched the star that told of the birth of the Christ Child long ago.

It is Christmas morning again!

Now comes the gracious, hallowed Christmastime... stealing like a beautiful civilization over our earth..

And that you may be enfolded in its marvelous spirit is the wish of

Merry
Christmas

And a Prosperous
New Year

Store Closed All Day Monday

CHRISTMAS! What a happy climax to a year fraught with those qualities the which Life itself is so thoroughly imbued . . . a season of peace on earth and good will to all men . . . a joyous oasis in the turmoil and strife of human endeavor!

May your Christmas or Chanukah be filled with the joys and happiness synonymous of the season and may the new calendar year hold in store for you indulgent portions of health and prosperity.

Keely's

In friendly spirit of this glad some season, we desire to extend to our patrons and friends our cordial appreciation of the good will they have shown us. We wish them one and all

Robert F. Brownlee
FURNITURE
457 Edgewood Ave., at Boulevard

CONTEMPT IS LAID TO REMUS WITNESS

Cincinnati, December 24.—(AP)—Judge Chester R. Shook today held John S. Berger, a George Remus murder trial witness, in contempt of court for presenting a petition from the jury asking that a perjury indictment against him be nolle prossed.

"A most outrageous attempt to influence the court," was the way the Remus trial judge described the petition presented by the Los Angeles exposition promoter. Berger was indicted in connection with testimony at the trial of Remus who was acquitted on grounds of insanity.

Berger apologized profusely to the court, saying he did not initiate the petition and did not know its contents until four of the jurors had signed it. Berger presented the petition to Judge Shook yesterday afternoon.

The petition signed by the 12 jurors who found George Remus not guilty on grounds of insanity for killing his wife Imogene, related that the jury had based its verdict largely upon Berger's testimony and reiterated frequently that it believed Berger told the truth.

Judge Shook ordered that all of the jurors who sat in the Remus case be summoned before him in court Tuesday to tell "why they signed such a document and give the circumstances under which they did so."

"The jurors," Judge Shook said, "will be given time to explain why and how they signed such a petition, and to make apologies to the court. They will be dealt with drastically if they fail to do so."

Berger must appear. Judge Shook also instructed Berger to appear in court Tuesday.

Judge Shook said he sent Charles Stagnaro, court bailiff, to the jail and that Stagnaro learned from George Remus that members of the jury dictated the petition to Vernon R. Chumby, federal prisoner on the Leavenworth, Kansas, penitentiary, who was brought here to testify for Remus. Chumby, in custody of federal agents, left last night for Leavenworth.

Judge Shook declined to pass sentence on Berger immediately. He said he wanted to do so "dispassionately" and felt that "I could not do so at this time in view of my frame of mind."

Attorney Charles Elston, representing Berger, announced that he would withdraw from the Berger case, after a motion to quash the perjury indictment had been disposed of. He stated that he would not represent Berger in the contempt case.

HUSBAND OF RICH WOMAN DECIDES TO QUIT POOR FARM

Chicago, December 24.—(AP)—Guy O. Clark, who entered the Lake county, Indiana, poor farm to embarrass his wealthy wife, has deferred the humiliation campaign until after Christmas.

Clark left the Gary institution yesterday with Vernon Perry, a former husband of Mrs. Clark, who, as the widow of Malcolm T. Hart, Chicago stockyards operator, inherited his millions.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

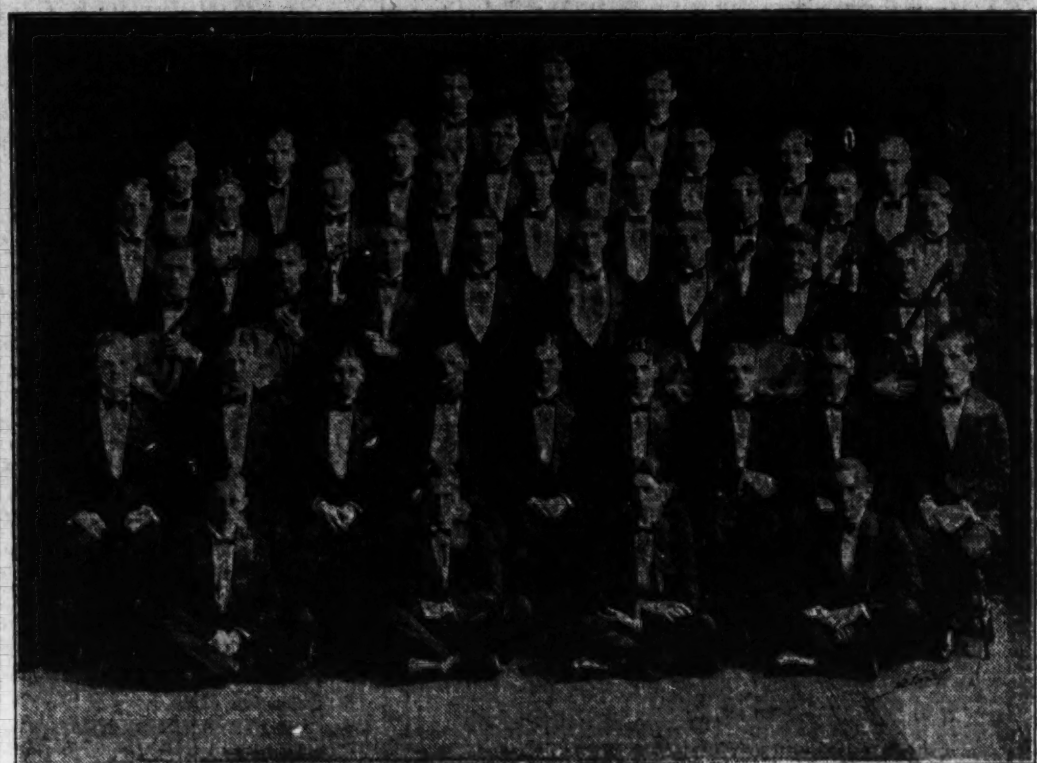

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Clark voluntarily entered the Indiana farm three weeks ago, as he avowed, to embarrass his wife, who had tightened the purse strings because of their differences over production.

Varied Program for Monday's Concert Selected by Harvard Instrumental Clubs

Members of the Harvard Instrumental clubs, who will appear in concert at the Woman's club auditorium Monday night.

With all indications pointing toward a capacity house, arrangements have been completed for the concert to be given at 8 o'clock Monday night at the Women's club auditorium by the Harvard Instrumental Clubs as one of the outstanding entertainment features of Christmas week.

The concert, which is being held under the sponsorship of the Harvard Club of Georgia, will be the organization's initial performance. Atlanta, having confined its previous appearances largely to the north and east, where it has won an enviable reputation.

Including 50 members in its personnel, many of them star athletes of the university, the instrumental clubs will give a varied program, comprising selections by the mandolin, banjo and vocal clubs, instrumental and vocal solos and vaudeville entertainment.

Members of the clubs will arrive here Monday morning and will be escorted on a tour of the city and a trip to Stone Mountain by a committee appointed from the Georgia Harvard club. Members of the committee are H. M. Atkinson, Sherman B. Blodgett, Dr. Phinney Calhoun, Richard Cobb, Howell Foreman, Smythe Gambrell, Judge J. K. Hines, Clark Howell, Jr., Robert Tyne Jones, Jr., P. C. McDuffie, Robert F. Madzor, Stephens Mitchell, Henry P. Nelson, Vaughn Nixon, Judge Alex Stephens, Bryant K. Vann, Edgar Watkins, Jr., and Colonel Henry A. Webber.

Alumni to Attend. A large majority of the Atlanta alumni of Harvard will be present at the concert, many having arranged parties for the occasion, which is expected to provide an opportunity for an informal Harvard reunion. Among those who will be hosts at the concert are H. M. Atkinson, S. N. Evans, president of the Harvard Club of Georgia; L. J. Elsas, vice president, and W. A. Suteland, secretary and treasurer. Bobby Jones, a Harvard alumnus, and Mrs. Jones will be among Mr. Atkinson's guests.

Members of Debutante club and the Emory Glee club will also be present at the concert.

The Mandolin club will bear the burden of the light classics on the program. In addition to the instrument from which the club takes its name, the ensemble includes several violins, violas, cellos, bass violas and a flute, giving it additional scope in its type of music. Schubert's Serenade will be the opening number, followed by the lively Marche Militaire.

In a second group by the same club will be Boyne's Destiny Waltz and Brahms' Hungarian Dance.

The Banjo club will play in more popular vein medleys of college songs and current song hits. The organization, which numbers 35 pieces, is under the leadership of Philip Boone.

With the exception of the Mandolin club it is the oldest group in the instrumental clubs.

College Songs on Program. The vocal club, under the direction of Arthur A. Holbrook, recently formed to take the place in the organization of the Harvard Glee club, which has taken up serious music exclusively, will sing a number of college football songs, notably those of Harvard, for the benefit of old graduates.

The high spot on the program is offered by the Gold Coast orchestra, under the direction of Charles Henderson. Taking its name from the famed group of dormitories on the Harvard campus, which are traditionally occupied by the wealthiest students, the Gold Coast orchestra has won a reputation in keeping with its name, in the opinion of critics of the north and east.

In connection with the performance of his orchestra, Mr. Henderson, who is one of the most popular pianists in New England, will offer several novelty solos of his own arrangement, including the burlesquing of well-known concert artists and rendition of tropical music played in old-style movie houses during the showing of the new reel. With his orchestra he will play Indian Fantasy, arranged by himself and based on the Indian Love Lyrics.

Lead to Be Violinist. Albert Lind, who is said by critics to be on his way to fame on the concert stage, will play a short group of violin solos. Among these will be several of the shorter classics.

Kingley Perry, ventriloquist and president of the Harvard Dramatic club, will present his comedy skit, assisted by "Tommy and Nemo," Robert Reinhardt, who has won wide fame as a sleight-of-hand artist, rounds out the program with several of the newer feats in magic.

The program follows:

Banjo Club.
Black Horse Troop March—Souza.
Dancing Tambourine—Polla.
March of Regiments of Sambre et Meuse—Planquette.
Prayer of Thanksgiving—Dutch folk song.
Scandalize My Name—Arranged by H. T. Burleigh.

Mandolin Club.
Destiny Waltz—Boyne.
Hungarian Dance—Brahms.
Gold Coast Orchestra.
(Robert Reinhardt, 23, Leader.)
Indian Fantasy—Arranged by C. B. Henderson, 23.

Banjo Club.
The Best Things in Life Are Free—Ray Henderson.
Mandolin Club.
(Kingley Perry, 23, Leader.)
Serenade—Schubert.
Marche Militaire—Schubert.

Vocal Club.
(A. W. Lind, 22, Leader.)
Border Ballad—Scott, Maunier.
Thou Art My Own Love—Redding, Johnny Harvard.
Popular Melody—Arranged by Rice.
Football Songs—Arranged by Gilman.
Fair Harvard—Words by Gilman, 1911.

Official Holiday Greetings Cite Prosperity of Georgia

In spite of "ups and downs," the good old state of Georgia and the city of Atlanta have enjoyed prosperous years and the people and populace of these governmental units are congratulated in Christmas greetings issued Saturday by Governor L. G. Hardman and Mayor I. N. Ragsdale.

The governor and mayor expressed the hope that the people would work together to make the coming year the most successful in the history of the state. The greetings of the two executives were backed by a Christmas message from Alderman W. Guy Dobbs, mayor pro tem, who issued a Christmas greeting to the people of Atlanta.

The messages of the officials are as follows:

Governor Hardman.

"The song which the shepherds heard on Judea's hills two thousand years ago has become the eternal Christmas message in all parts of the earth where the religion of Christ is known and his birth is celebrated."

"Peace on earth, good will to men."

"The pity is that so often it is sung with no thought of its meaning and no effort to put it into practical effect."

"This Christmas our hearts should be full of thanks and appreciation for the prosperity that has come to our state. Under divine guidance our people have reaped abundant crops which have sold for good prices, and the financial burden of the past few years have been lightened. The new year promises to be one of expansion and growth, in education, in church life and in commercial enterprises."

"Let us this Christmas in Georgia resolve to make the Christmas song our motive and purpose for the coming year. With peace and

KEHELEY, OUT ON BOND, SPENDS XMAS AT HOME

R. F. Keheley, under indictment for murder in connection with the accidental shooting on Halloween night of Loren Leister, 12-year-old white youth, will spend Christmas with his family at his home.

Bond of $5,000, which was assessed following his indictment, was signed Saturday morning by S. S. King, of 783 Marietta place, a friend of the family, and Keheley left the tower in company with his wife.

Young Leister received a bullet in the brain as he passed the front door of the restaurant on Marietta street owned by Keheley. The shot is said to have been fired by Keheley in a scuffle with another male and accidentally struck the youth. The child was carried to Grady hospital, where he lingered for four weeks before he succumbed.

Trial of Keheley has been set for the second week in January in Fulton superior court.

RECORDS PROVE HICKMAN STOLE TWO AUTOMOBILES

Kansas City, December 24.—(AP)—A check of police records today verified William Edward Hickman's story that he stole two automobiles here.

The motor car he was taken from Independence, a suburb, belonged to James H. Cook. Cook said he was forced to abandon his machine the night of October 7 by a youth who made no effort to take his money or jewelry.

Cook, a shoe dealer, said the bandit promised to return the car the next day, but that it was not recovered until November 6, in the residential district here. The speedometer showed it had been driven 4,000 miles.

Free believed Cook's car was used in the tour of the middle west and east described by Hickman.

The car Hickman said to deliver Marian's body was taken from Dr. Herbert L. Maute, the night of November 7. It was a coupe, of the same make as the Cook machine.

Dr. Maute, while unable to identify Hickman as the bandit who forced him from his automobile, said the youth made no demand for money.

GEORGIAN ARMY OFFICER PLACED ON RETIRED LIST

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Major General James H. McRae, who commanded the 78th division in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, was placed on the retired list today, having reached the age of 64.

The general is a native of McRae, Ga., where he has been on leave waiting the time of retirement.

OPPORTUNITIES FUND IS FULLY SUBSCRIBED

Continued from First Page.

community, citizens of whom Atlanta can be proud!

One and all, they wish you a MERRY CHRISTMAS!

(And the "Ten Opportunities" editor hopes that Santa Claus will put good gum drops in everybody's socks!)

GIFTS RECEIVED DURING SATURDAY.

Saturday's mail brought the following contributions to the "Ten Opportunities" fund:

Theresa, Pat and David Savini 2.00
Cash 1.00
R. S. 5.00
H. Muench 2.00
Mrs. W. L. F. 5.00
Mrs. E. W. Hanson 3.00

John W. Grant 1.00
R. A. Parker 1.00
Bruno Bulnoff 10.00
Atlanta capitalist 494.00
D. R. Mathews 5.00
Donation 10.00
Jennie R. Thornwell 5.00
Wednesday Morning Sewing club 24.00

Grade High, 5, Luckie school 1.00
India Harrison 1.00
Mrs. May Peterson 1.00
Mrs. J. L. M. 5.00
E. G. Bray 2.00
William A. Smith 10.00
Mrs. E. A. Thornwell 5.00
F. B. S. 3.00
Dorothy J. Bogart 25.00
Cash 5.00
E. B. G. 5.00
A. M. P. 10.00
E. W. Sturdivant 25.00
A Friend 5.00
J. A. Enright 10.00
A friend to the Needy 1.00
William A. Elliot 10.00

Christmas, we should at the same time stop long enough to take stock of ourselves with a view of perfecting ourselves for the future. The new year will arrive under the most propitious omens for Atlanta, and 1928 should be the greatest in business and commerce which the Gate City has ever seen."

Mayor Pro Tem, Dobbs.

"While we all expect a merry Christmas, we should at the same time stop long enough to take stock of ourselves with a view of perfecting ourselves for the future. The new year will arrive under the most propitious omens for Atlanta, and 1928 should be the greatest in business and commerce which the Gate City has ever seen."

Miss Elmire Pope.

Miss Elmire Margaret Pope died at her home in Hapeville early Saturday morning. Funeral services for Miss Pope will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Methodist church, where Rev. H. O. Nash and Rev. D. D. Hale officiating. Interment will be in Pope cemetery.

Miss Pope is survived by two brothers, David H. Pope and J. E. Pope, and a number of nieces and nephews.

LOCKJAW, CAUSED BY EXPLODING FIRE CRACKER, KILLS BOY

Roanoke, Va., December 24.—(AP)—Robert Smith, 12-year-old boy, is dead and Russell Bobbit, another small boy, is at a hospital, in a critical condition as the result of lock jaw following fire-cracker explosions. The two boys, both from Roanoke, suffered multiple scratches in the hands when the fire-crackers exploded.

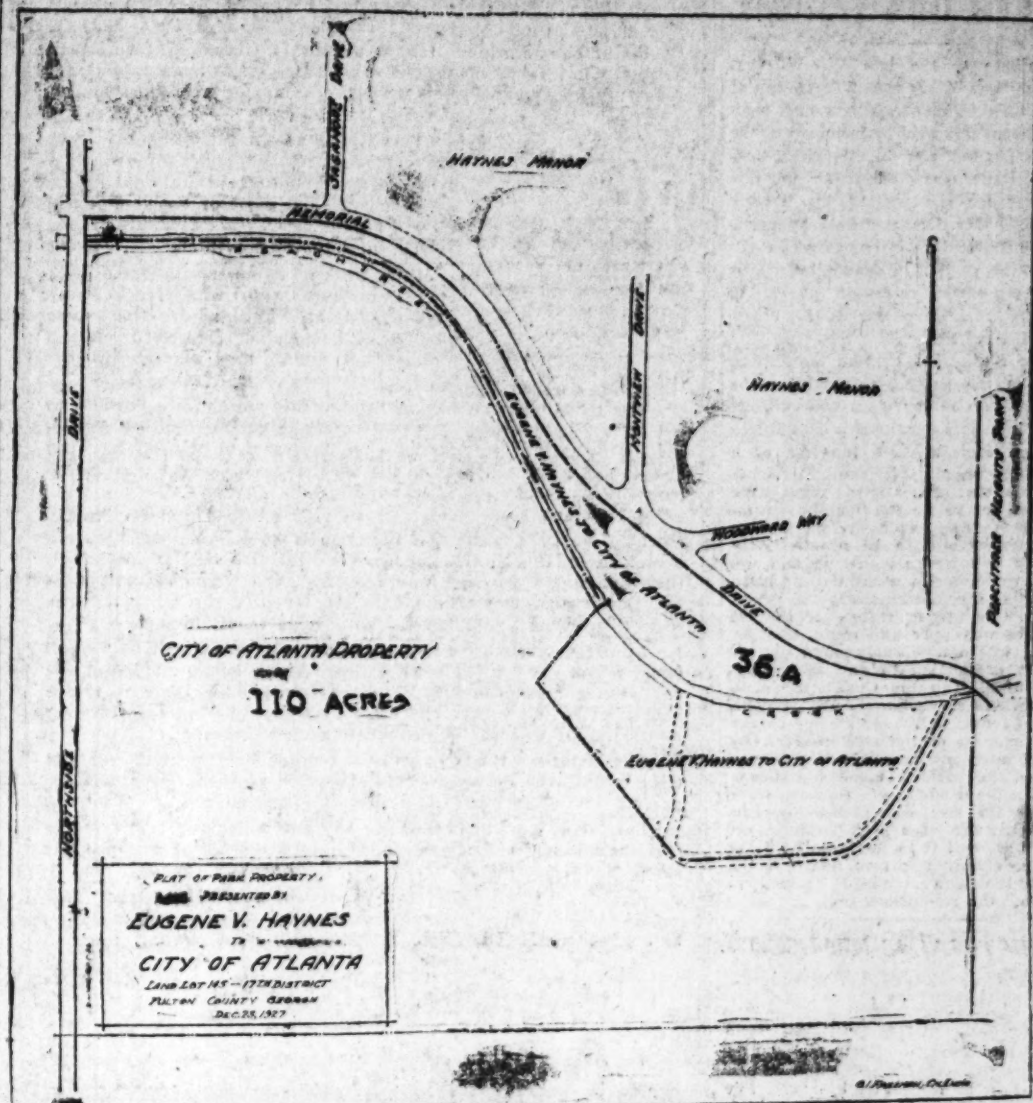

The accidents were the first pre-Christmas casualties reported here.

VIRGINIA STATE SENATOR PASSES AT WARSAW HOME

Warsaw, Va., December 24.—(AP)—Colonel Thomas Joseph Downing, state senator from the district including Lancaster county and one of the best known men in Virginia public life, died here this afternoon at his home, "Edgely," Colonel Downing had been ill for about two weeks.

Nevada's wealth of $555,000,000 is less than that of any other state, but, because Nevada has only 50,000 inhabitants, the per capita wealth is greater than that of any other state.

Eugene Haynes' $100,000, 36-Acre Xmas Present to City Formally Presented

The plot of 36 acres presented to the city of Atlanta Saturday by deed as a Christmas gift by Eugene V. Haynes at Peachtree Memorial park. This cut was made from the original plat of the gift.

Eugene V. Haynes delivered to Atlanta Saturday his most valuable Christmas present when he formally turned over to city officials the deed to 36 acres of land adjacent to the property owned by the city at the Peachtree creek disposal plant for development of the Peachtree Creek Memorial park.

On the heels of acceptance of the deed, Councilman John A. White, of the fourth ward and chairman of the parks committee of city council, announced that he will ask Fulton county commissioners to begin development of the 18-hole golf course at the tract at once so that nine holes will be available for use of sport-lovers in Atlanta by next spring.

He also will ask that work begin simultaneously on establishment of 18-hole golf courses on the newly acquired Perkerson estate and a 107-acre strip on Cascade road. Hope was expressed that the courses at these two places will be ready at the same time the Peachtree park is completed. Present plans contemplate carrying forward work on development of the three projects at the same time.

Offered December 2. Mr. Haynes offered the property to the city in a communication to Mr. White dated December 8, 1927, and the city council passed a resolution formally accepting it. The deed presented Saturday stipulated that the city is to use the property for park purposes and provides that it shall revert to the grantor, his successors, assigns or legal representatives in the event the city ever fails to utilize it or if the city diverts it to other use than for parks.

Conservative estimates place the value of the land so contributed at $100,000.

Mr. White, L. L. Wallis, superintendent of parks and playgrounds of the city of Atlanta; Charles Chosewood, Harry Fox, J. T. Osburn and William Saunders, other members of the parks committee, will appear before Fulton county commission January 4, asking that work of improving the Peachtree creek property be begun at once so that Atlanta may have an 18-hole golf course completed as soon as possible. Other members of city council will join the delegation.

Commission to Build Course. Members of the commission already have agreed to construct the course and to assist in making other improvements incident to utilization of the property and it is expected will place a force at work on the project at once.

Annexation of the Peachtree park property definitely assures establishment of the large memorial to the memory of northern and southern forces in the famous battle of Peachtree creek. When the project is completed it will contain more than 300 acres, according to the development program, and will stretch along both sides of Peachtree creek from Peachtree road to the Chattahoochee river.

Development also contemplates removal of the Peachtree creek disposal plant from its present location and concentration of all city disposal units at another point where a giant disposal unit will be constructed. It is expected that the city and county will join forces in the project to accelerate the removal of the plant and thus eliminate a health menace and an undesirable condition in one of the county's most exclusive residential districts.

100 Acres Converted. In adding the 36 acres from Mr. Haynes, the city also agreed to convert 100 of the 110 acres it now owns and which is located adjacent to the Haynes strip for park purposes, reserving only 10 acres on which the disposal unit is situated for the city's use. This, too, will become a part of the park as soon as the plant is moved, under the agreement with Mr. Haynes.

Other property owners in the vicinity have agreed to donate various strips to the city and it is expected that these gifts will be offered to council for acceptance within the next few weeks. Former Senator Hobbs Smith has announced that he will contribute about 30 acres.

In adding the 613 acres for park purposes at a meeting of city council last week, Atlanta's park acreage increased from 1,100 acres to more than 1,700. This places the city in the front ranks in park development in the south, and when the three 18-hole golf courses are finally completed, the city will rank first in golf course development, with three 18-hole and three nine-hole courses.

WILL RELIEVE ANY AND ALL FORMS OF PILES

IN THREE TO TEN DAYS' TIME

For the treatment of High Blood Pressure will give relief very quickly.

These are little known remedies perfectly harmless, reliable, and are unexcelled for the treatment of Piles and High Blood Pressure.

I feel duty-bound to suffering humanity to pass these wonderful remedies along to you.

Remember, I have no medicine for sale. I only furnish you with these unequalled recipes.

If you want to cure yourself at home then write for full particulars to NATHANSON AVE., R. F. D. No. 121, Atlanta, Ga.

Kidney and Bladder Pain

Promptly Relieved by SANTAL MIDY

Look for the word "Midy"

Hotel Astor - NEW YORK

"Where one rubs elbows with New York's most interesting people!"

"At the Crossroads of the World"

(F. A. Mueschenheim)

TIME SQUARE
BROADWAY 43-45 ST.

Free for Asthma During Winter

A Remarkable Method That Has Come to the Rescue of Asthmatics and Checks the Worst Attacks—Send Today for

If you suffer with those terrible attacks of Asthma when it is cold and damp; if you choke as if each gasp for breath was the very last, don't fail to send at once to the Frontier Asthma Co. for a free trial of their remarkable method. No matter where you live or whether you have any faith in any remedy under the sun, send for this free trial. If you have suffered for a lifetime and tried what you thought was the best still known to cope with the most terrible attacks of Asthma, if you are discouraged beyond hope, send for this free trial.

FREE TRIAL COUPON
FRONTIER ASTHMA CO.
509 Front Street, 662 Niagara St., Buffalo, N. Y.
Send free trial of your method to:

Nevada's wealth of $555,000,000 is less than that of any other state, but, because Nevada has only 50,000 inhabitants, the per capita wealth is greater than that of any other state.

GREAT WHITE FLEET

Cruises to the CARIBBEAN

THREE TIMES EVERY WEEK FROM NEW ORLEANS

16-day cruises to Havana and the Panama Canal. Wednesday cruises take in Havana, Puerto Barrios and Guatemala City. Special 10-day cruises direct to Guatemala every Friday. Shore excursions included at Havana, Cuba; Panama Canal Zone and in Guatemala. Shore trips included in price you pay for your ticket.

SATURDAY 16-day cruises, $225 up

WEDNESDAY 16-day cruises, $200 up

FRIDAY 16-day cruises, $190 up

Make your reservations NOW through your local tourist agent, railroad ticket agent, or

H. C. NICHOLS
Asst. Pass. Traffic Manager
UNITED FRUIT COMPANY
201 St. Charles St., New Orleans, La.

Everybody at our house wishes
Everybody at your house
A Merry, Merry Christmas

That Check

You received for Christmas will make the first payment on a Piano

AT

CABLE

Piano Company

84 Broad St., N. E.

WALnut 1041

and our sincere wishes for a Bright and Happy
New Year

Daniel Bros. Co.

45-49 Peachtree - Founded 1886

FORMER PUPILS PAY ORR TRIBUTE

Tribute to the late W. W. Orr, at the time of his recent death one of Atlanta's foremost citizens and business men, was paid by members of the First Baptist church Twentieth Century Bible class, of which he was teacher for ten years. The esteem in which Mr. Orr was held by members of the class is expressed in the following resolution drawn by a special committee composed of R. L. Bugg, A. E. Wheeler, R. A. White and J. Fred Schofield.

"The resolutions express the feeling that in the passing of Mr. Orr the Twentieth Century class has suffered an irreparable loss in him as a teacher and each member the loss of a true and steadfast friend. The class believes that Mr. Orr's having lived 'before us as he did will be an incentive to live our best, and that in his going the faith he so effectively taught will lead us onward and upward to a reunion with him and loved ones,' the resolutions state.

Mr. Orr was a fit teacher in that his life was pure and clean, and his living was a true background for the purity of his speech and the soundness of his faith in Christ, the class resolutions set forth. 'As a student, he was unexcelled—analyzing closely the thoughts of the author. Mr. Orr appreciated good music and was well versed in various musical compositions; the beauty of flowers drew from him fine illustrations in life. Mr. Orr was of a social nature, yet never allowed it to interfere with the higher calling nor tear down in the least the high standards formed in youth,' the resolutions said.

NEW TRIAL IS REFUSED TEXAS WOMAN BANDIT

LaGrange, Texas, December 24.—(United News.)—Rebecca Bradley Rogers, convicted co-ed bank robber, was refused a new trial today. She was released, however, under bond of $5,000 pending an appeal.

Atlanta Is Different—Yet the same, Says Quillen in Christmas Message

Editor Constitution: I want to send a Christmas greeting to Atlanta. It is a privilege and a pleasure, for Atlanta is where I spent my honeymoon 20 years ago. It was a very short honeymoon.

This is the way it came about. I was 19 years old and had hopes of making a living as a writer, but writers were not in great demand and most of the time I had to take advantage of my early training and hold down a job as a printer.

I was working at Americus, earning $15 a week, and loved a girl who lived in South Carolina. I had known her for three months, which was long enough for me and for her but wasn't long enough for her father.

The old gentleman having refused his consent, we decided to get married without it. It was necessary to get married on Sunday, for the print shop in Americus had a great deal of work on hand and couldn't spare a printer for such a trivial business as matrimony.

So the girl came to Atlanta to visit a friend and on Sunday morning we were married at the friend's home. My bride wore a borrowed dress, and though she was a Baptist and I a Methodist, the officiating clergyman was a Presbyterian whom neither of us ever had seen. I gave him $5. He pocketed the bill as though it were a trivial thing, but it didn't seem trivial to me.

After the ceremony we went on our honeymoon, the only one I could afford. We hired a white horse and a buggy and spent the day driving around Atlanta. In the family Bible there is a lace handkerchief that was carried away by a gust of wind and run over by one of the wheels. It still wears a stain of rust.

The last time I was in Atlanta I drove out Spring street and tried to find the house where we were married, but it had disappeared. Progress has little respect for sentiment.

But the city hasn't changed in any vital particular. The people still seem kindly and friendly and the atmosphere of romance has survived.

And because the people and the city or unspoiled, I greet them with affection. My Christmas wish is that they may be as happy as I was there 20 years ago. I could wish them nothing finer.

Robert Quillen

Fountain Inn, S. C., December 24, 1927.

Mrs. Northern, Payne, Hartsfield Named For High Honor by Chamber of Commerce

Mrs. Nora Earnest Northern, upper left; J. Carroll Payne, standing beside a painting of Mrs. J. M. High in the High Art museum, of which he is president, at the right, and William B. Hartsfield receiving Captain Roscoe Turner at the Candler airport, are the most distinguished Atlantans for 1927, and will receive certificates of distinguished citizenship from the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. Those selected are regarded as the most valuable citizens to Atlanta in the respective fields of philanthropy, art and material service.

Mrs. Nora Earnest Northern, J. Carroll Payne and William B. Hartsfield are the three Atlantans whose services have been designated as the most "distinguished" achievements for 1927 by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and they will receive certificates at the annual dinner of the chamber to be held the party part of January. It was announced Saturday by George W. West, president.

Handsomely engraved certificates are awarded each year to the three citizens who are deemed to have served the city in their respective fields of philanthropy, culture and material lines. It is one of the highest honors which the Chamber of Commerce can bestow on an individual, and those selected Saturday were receiving the congratulations of hosts of friends.

The certificates will read as follows:

"Mrs. Nora Earnest Northern, god-mother to youth, good angel of the sick and bereaved, and universally loved as Miss Nora."

"J. Carroll Payne, president of the High Museum of Art, in recognition of his distinguished services in the city's art development."

"William B. Hartsfield, chairman of the aviation committee of council, whose enthusiastic support and untiring effort have made Atlanta an airport."

Mrs. Northern, affectionately known to thousands as "Miss Nora," is the eldest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John G. Earnest, prominent and beloved pioneers of Atlanta, her father having served on the Grady hospital staff for more than twelve years. Dr. Earnest celebrated his 60 years of practicing medicine in Atlanta at a banquet tendered by the physicians of the city given at Capital City club some eight years ago. Dr. Earnest performed the first operation at St. Joseph's infirmary, and is still on its staff.

Mrs. Northern is perhaps the most popular woman in Atlanta, ever ready to rejoice in the happiness of others, or to sympathize with them in any sorrow darkening their lives. Mrs. Northern was married to the late Charles Swift, known October 20, 1892, in the First Presbyterian church, which stood on Marietta street upon the ground of the Federal Reserve bank. Following her wedding a reception was given the bridal couple by Mrs. Thomas H. Northern and the late Governor Northern, uncle of the groom, at the executive mansion, which stood on the site of the Henry Grady hotel.

Mrs. Northern's hobbies.

Mrs. Northern's hobbies are the Sheltering Arms association, in which she takes active part, and playing the piano for the Sunday school of North Avenue Presbyterian church, a duty regarded by this golden-hearted woman as a blessed privilege, which she has performed for 20 years. Among her most outstanding contributions to humanity were the hours she spent in the cantonments of Fort McPherson and Camp Gordon during the world war, where she was called the "Soldier's Saint." She cheered the lonely soldier, homesick for other climes, and took part in entertainments planned for their amusement. Every mortuary establishment in Atlanta feels free to call upon Mrs. Northern to play piano accompaniment at obsequies, even though she is not known to the family accepting her services.

As Chaperon.

"Whenever the college set require a chaperon for dances and other social affairs," Miss Nora's name heads the list, and she is often called upon to help out in some emergency and stay with her friends' children whenever those friends desire to make a trip, the latter feeling perfectly safe to depart, because "Miss Nora" is delighted to take up her residence in their homes during their absence. This sweet-natured woman has never been known to turn a deaf ear to any call of mercy, giving freely of her time and going at any hour, day or night, in answer to a summons. Mrs. Roy Dorsey, of Atlanta, and Charles S. Northern, of New York, are daughter and son of this Atlantian whose achievements have been appreciated and honored by this act of the chamber of commerce.

Payne Honored Citizen.

Mr. Payne is one of Atlanta's oldest and most honored residents. He has been devoted to a study of the art of painting, sculpture, and other forms of art for many years, and has done much to foster and spread interest in this field. He is president of the High Museum of Art and a former president of the Atlanta Art association.

He has been a leader in activities of the Sacred Heart church here for a number of years, and until his retirement a few years ago was one of Atlanta's most prominent lawyers. He is a member of the Capital City, Druid Hills and Piedmont Driving clubs.

He was graduated from Georgetown university, Washington; the University of Virginia law school and studied French law at Tulane university after he went there to practice with his uncle, Thomas J. Semmes. He lived in New Orleans for eight years before coming to Atlanta in 1885.

His father was Major Rice W. Payne, of Warrenton, Va., who had a distinguished career in the Confederate army.

His mother was Miss America Semmes, whose forefathers were among the first settlers of Maryland. A cousin in General William H. Payne.

Hartsfield is Alderman.

Mr. Hartsfield is an alderman from the third ward and as chairman of the aviation committee of city council and of the aviation committee of the chamber of commerce has been untiring in his efforts to develop aviation in the southeast and to make Atlanta the hub of aviation activities for the country.

He has secured the active financial cooperation of the city and Fulton county governments, and has been successful in grading Candler field, Atlanta's air port and lighting it until it now is pointed to by high government officials as an example of what hard work and the expenditure of a few thousand dollars can do in the way of development of landing fields in areas where the terrain is unsuited for such activity.

Work in Aviation.

Mr. Hartsfield probably has done more than any other one man to press Atlanta's claims to places on air mail routes, with the result that this city has been selected as the terminus of a route from New York and another from Miami. It also is probably that she will be placed on other routes extending to the middle west and to New Orleans and other points to the west. He is a practicing attorney, and is a recognized floor leader in the Atlanta city council.

The first "distinguished achieve-

The World Is Better This Christmas, Writes Dr. Cadman in Special Message to Constitution Readers

To the Editor, the Staff and All Readers of The Atlanta Constitution:

The Christmas of 1927 comes with recreative power to one and all. It assures us there are melodies on the spheres no musician has yet caught; splendors in the heavens no poet has yet appraised, and truths in the universe no scientist or theologian has yet detected.

It bids us believe that the discoveries and inventions of the so-called materialistic age are really the base for our next advance in those spiritual realities by which men and nations live. The automobile has given us new limbs; the "wireless" new ears; television new eyes and the aeroplane the domain of the air. Once moralized, there marvels will mean a religious revelation. The pains we sometimes feel are not the pangs of death but of rebirth. Best of all, Christmas renews those domestic joys which have always been the glory of civilized states. The dear God of the cradle is far nearer to us than the deity who sowed the stars in space. Hearts are rewarmed by the glow of this festival. Old friendships are strengthened and new ones formed. A little child takes the leadership of the race for 24 hours and makes a humble stable more resplendent than the stateliest palace on earth.

Behind emotional givings and hilarious greetings is the greatest gift of all in God's Eternal Son. Jew and Gentile alike can render homage to the one Father of us all for the difference Christ's birth has already made and shall increasingly make. May this day of days be blessed for us all! May its tranquil majesty brood over farmstead, plain, town and city! May the angels of peace and good will sing once more and make music in our souls!

Yours ever, sincerely,

Staples Cadman

President of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

ment" certificate was awarded by the chamber of commerce at the close of 1922 to L. H. Beck, in recognition of his philanthropic work. Certificates for service in 1923 were awarded to Hollins N. Randolph, J. M. R. Hoxsey and Cater Woolford. Those for service in 1924 were presented to Mrs. Samuel M. Isaacs, Dr. Thos. well Jacobs and Forrest Adair. The recipients for 1925 were William Candler, Colonel William Lawson Peel and A. G. Rhodes. The three certificates last year were awarded to Ivan Allen, Thomas K. Glenn and Mrs. Hattie W. High.

The 11 college men playing this season with the New York Giants made it the team in big league baseball with the greatest number of college men, according to an answered question in this week's issue of Liberty.

Greetings

CHRISTMAS, 1927

Let us, at this gracious Season of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men," join hands in the warm glow of friendship, content, work well done and the Joy of service.

Christmas comes from within and so we wish for you and yours Godspeed.

Aetna Life Ins. Co.

S. M. CARSON, Gen. Agent Associates

George W. Allen

Judson H. Bostwick

D. P. Pace

M. A. Sandifer

B. H. Wiseberg

Lynn W. Werner

Lorimer Clayton

Robert T. Stephens

Mrs. S. S. Statham

415 Grant Building

Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.

"The Store of Personal Service"

Wishes its friends and patrons a very

Merry Xmas

and

Happy New Year

We wish to thank you, one and all, for your liberal patronage, which has made this year the greatest in this store's history.

Carroll

FURNITURE COMPANY

149-151-153 Whitehall St., S. W.
WA. 8571

Christmas Greetings and Best Wishes for a Happy New Year

Eiseman's

56-58 Peachtree St.
Thru to Broad

A Merry Christmas And a Happy and Prosperous New Year to Our Patrons and Friends.

Akins Furniture Company

"A Good Furniture Store"

262 Peachtree St.

SOUTHERN OFFICES LOCATION IN DOUBT

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern Railway company, issued a formal statement today declaring the road had made no decision as to its future location of its operating headquarters.

The statement followed publication of a report that the Southern, which has had its headquarters in Washington for more than 41 years, would continue to base its operations from the capital, regardless of the fact that it may have to abandon the present site to make room for government structures.

HEAD OF COMMITTEE HERE ENTHUSIASTIC

Henderson Hallman, chairman of a special committee of Atlantans named by Mayor I. N. Ragsdale to push Atlanta's claim to headquarters of the road, received news with enthusiasm that Harrison and road officials have not yet determined on where the headquarters will be located.

Early this week, Hallman and members of his committee will map out plans to sell the Southern on Atlanta as the logical geographical, commercial and distribution point in which to locate its headquarters.

2,000 REDS KILLED IN CANTON FIGHTS

Continued from First Page

and destroyed is conservatively estimated at $50,000,000 Mexican.

Chinese refugees still are rushing to Hongkong by the thousands and millions of dollars are being remitted to the foreign banks resulting in a glut of cash here. It is thought that it will be a long time before conditions in Canton will be back to normal.

Throughout the orgy of killing, burning and looting in Canton, the lives and property of all foreigners, other than Russians, were not greatly imperiled.

JAPAN READ TO LAND MORE MARINES

Pekin, December 24.—(AP)—The Japanese cruiser Nagatsuki has arrived at Tsingtao, Shantung province, with 200 marines aboard. It is said that this is a precautionary measure, in view of possible disorders in the Tsingtao-Tsinan railway zone in the event that the nationalists press farther southward.

The claims of the Nanking authorities

British Judge Rules 'Drunk' Valid Defense

London, December 24.—(AP)—The learned lord chief justice of England, Lord Hewart, has set the lawyers of King George's realm bustling by pronouncing the opinion that it is a valid defense for crime if a man is too drunk to know what he is doing.

The lord chief justice, presiding in the court of criminal appeals, refused an application that the conviction for murder of a young man named Sutherland, who killed his sweetheart, should be quashed because he was intoxicated.

Lord Hewart said: "It seems to me that it was an excuse for crime that a man was under the influence of drink. There is no such law in this country. It is a different matter if a person is completely under the influence of drink, as to be incapable of forming a criminal intent."

"This last sentence has set legal tongues wagging. The popular understanding has been that in the eyes of the law, getting intoxicated is a voluntary action and a man is responsible for the consequences of his action."

TWENTY ARE HURT IN U. S. BANK BLAST

Continued from First Page

as tension over the executions in Boston seemed to die down.

Among many theories offered was the suggestion that the perpetrators got past the guards still on duty by carrying the bombs disguised as Christmas packages. Until the last few days all packages had been examined by the guards. Approximately 600 persons were inside the National City bank, near elevator and telephone booths in the rear of the handsome four-story concrete building when the explosion occurred.

The concussion rocked the structure, shattered window panes and other glass work, tore open the walls and doubled up the iron shutter on the front doors of the bank approximately 60 feet away. A stampede for the doors resulted, and the harrowing cries of the injured, mingled with the startled clamor of the mob.

Firemen quickly established a relief station two blocks away and all available police were rushed to the scene.

The First National bank was not seriously damaged.

ies of the capture of Hanch-wang, Linchew, the Yunchenghsien are not confirmed in Pekin. An American traveler who has arrived here from Tsingtao reports that the railway men have refused to guarantee passenger service between Tsinan and Peking, and that he was compelled to proceed by sea via Dairen.

Santa Claus - Impersonated by OLD DOCTOR BRADY

Sends Cordial Greetings to Readers of The Atlanta Constitution and if you want a perfect likeness of the real Santa Claus, just equip my beaming countenance, presented herewith, with a set of lambskins such as old-time nerve specialists affected, place a red stocking cap upon my gleaming dome and any digit except the first side of my nose, and see if I don't rise up the chimney with a

MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

THIS YEAR (AS WE SAY PERENNIALLY), HOWEVER, WE ARE GIVING NO CHRISTMAS PRESENTS, so I wish readers would accept these Christmas Greetings merely as an exchange, and in return I am hoping to receive some

HAPPY NEW YEAR'S MESSAGES

You see, for thirteen years I've been dreaming of a kind of letter shower, good cheer messages, good-will notes, brief expressions from readers who have benefited in one way or another from my preachings or teachings.

You know, friendly letters, not business letters. Letters with no symptoms in 'em. Letters telling me what or how benefit has come to the reader.

If any reader has it in his heart to say anything nice like that but doesn't trouble to say it because he imagines it wouldn't matter much to me, he is sadly in error.

I may be sarcastic about some things, but by George I'm a sentimental cuss and an optimist, too. One little note of cheer outweighs in my feelings a whole handful of kicks, threats and scoldings.

So if you have any posies please send them now.

Old Doctor Brady

BODY OF BURDSAL IS BEING RETURNED HERE FOR FUNERAL Public Thanked For Promptness In Xmas Mailing

The body of Benjamin C. Burdsal, 65, of 282 Richardson street, well known retired business man, who died suddenly several days ago while spending the winter at DeLand, Fla., is being brought to Atlanta for funeral services and interment, and is expected to arrive today.

Mr. Burdsal is survived by his widow, Mrs. Maude Dean Burdsal; two sons, Virgil R. Burdsal, of Atlanta, and Arthur J. Burdsal, of DeCatur, Ga.; and two daughters, Miss Florence Mae Burdsal and Mrs. Herbert C. Chapman, both of Atlanta.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later from Bond & Greene.

EX-SLAVE RECALLS CITY'S HORSE CARS

Clemon Finch, aged negro citizen, who, during the civil war, served as a bodyguard in the camp of General Lee, this year will celebrate his 80th Christmas.

The ex-slave recalled the changing fashions of the Atlanta street cars on a visit to The Constitution Saturday.

He remarked on the progress from the old "dummy line" to the horse cars and finally the electric cars of today.

COMMUNITY PLAN MADE TO AID AGED

Organization of the Georgia Community, with its object to care for and find employment for aged and disabled persons on farm lands near Atlanta, has been perfected here, according to an announcement Saturday.

S. G. McIndon, secretary of state, has been named chairman, and George M. Nantz, attorney general of Georgia, has been selected as counselor. Officers have been named at 171 Grand Theater building, with M. D. Glasgow, Atlanta newspaperman, in charge.

DYNAMITE LOVER PLEADS NOT GUILTY TO FOUR CHARGES

(By Leonard Wise to The Constitution.)
Orleans, Ill., December 24.—Hiram Reed, 24-year-old Mossyville farmer who is charged with placing a bomb in the Pleasant Valley schoolhouse to kill his neighbor, Miss John Bradford, because she was to become a mother, pleaded "not guilty" to the four indictments that have been returned against him when arraigned before Judge J. A. Davis in the circuit court today.

Reed's trial was set for February 6. Attorneys for Reed, who earlier in the week made a motion to quash the four indictments which were pending against him, failed to make any arguments in support of their motion when a hearing on the matter was held today.

Miner Held Captive.

Mexico City, December 24.—(United News.)—Lyman F. Barber, Los Angeles mining man, has been held since December 15, as captive of bandits, it was learned from the embassy here today.

Merry Xmas, Wishes Annie.

Dear Folks: Sandy and I are awful busy this year selling papers and raising the Pwter kids, but we're never too busy to knock off for a second to wish all The Constitution family a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE.
Chicago, Ill., Dec. 24, 1927.

ROME MAN BADLY HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Rome, Ga., December 24.—(Special.)—Ered Salmon was in a local hospital in a semi-conscious condition today as the result of a collision that occurred late Thursday between the automobile he was driving and a car driven by W. A. Rogers, at East Second avenue and East Ninth street.

Kimball Salmon, his brother, and Robert Ellis and H. Bredford, who were riding in the car with Salmon, were also taken to the hospital for treatment but were later able to go to their homes.

CHURCH JANITOR LOSES $10, WATCH TO BANDITS

David Icky, negro janitor at the Central Congregational church, was held up and robbed of $10 and a gold watch by two well-dressed young white men, early Saturday morning, just after he had opened the church. He was unable to furnish police with a description of the bandits.

CAREY PARK GIRL BURNED AS DRESS IGNITES IN GRATE

Marie Cape, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cape, of Carey Park, was taken to Grady hospital Saturday afternoon in the private ambulance of Sam R. Greenberg company, in a dangerous condition with serious burns about her face and body.

The child was standing before an open grate in her home late Saturday afternoon, when, in some manner, her dress became ignited. Her mother rushed to her aid and, threw a sweat-shirt about the child, extinguishing the flames. Mrs. Cape was painfully burned on the hands and arms.

MAN BREAKS MAIL BOX FOR JAIL FEAST ON CHRISTMAS DAY

Hot Springs, Ark., December 24.—(AP)—Uncle Sam unknowingly played Santa Claus to Ed Carmon, 15, here today by giving him shelter, a cot, coffee in a tin cup and plain but substantial food. But the shelter was the city jail and the food prison rations.

Carmon, who said he had lived since Thursday on a cup of coffee and a bowl of soup, was marched gleefully to jail after he smashed a mail box on one of the principal streets here with an ax. "I was hungry and cold," he said.

COLLEGE PARK WOMAN AND SON HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. Frances Mann, of 408 East Mercer avenue, College Park, and her young son, were taken to Grady hospital Saturday afternoon in the private ambulance of A. C. Hennepey & Sons, with serious injuries, received in an automobile crash at Main and Dunlap streets in East Point.

Physicians stated their conditions are not dangerous. Hospital attendants were unable to learn any details of the accident.

KING TO LEAD FIGHT TO SLICE U. S. TAX

Washington, December 24.—(United News.)—The plan of senate republicans to delay the $289,000,000 tax reduction bill has aroused democrats and a desperate tug of war to get the bill through seems inevitable. The outcome is in doubt.

For the democrats, Senator King, of Utah, announced tonight that he would fight any attempt to bottle the bill in committee.

Chairman Smoot, of the senate finance committee, denied there was any studied effort of republicans to hold up the measure. It was learned, however, that President Coolidge has aroused the fears of republicans over the size of the reduction voted by the house.

Fear Cut Is Too Large.
Many republicans believe such a large reduction would prove hazardous to the treasury financial system and they would wait until after the March 15 payments are made to ascertain next year's receipts.

If the bill is not passed before March 15 the reductions cannot be made applicable to this year's taxes, upon which first payments are then due.

Smoot said the committee will begin January 7 at the earliest and perhaps not until later, to consider the bill. It will be determined then when to begin hearings. Usually the senate has held no hearings in this year numerous treasury department officials are expected to testify in opposition to the size of the reduction contemplated by both houses.

Independent republicans have indicated they would side with the regular republicans in seeking delay. They have taken the stand that the treasury surplus could better be used for debt retirement than for tax reduction at this time.

If the republican ranks are held in line by the independents there is a strong possibility that the bill will be delayed.

IT'S CHRISTMAS!

There's a hushed silence in the cold grey of early dawn . . . a sound stirs, hesitates, then assumes the soft pitter-patter of tiny feet . . . down the stairs they come, slowly, cautiously, half afraid . . . eyes strained, peering anxiously in the dim light. Suddenly squeals of delight pierce the stillness of the house . . . oooh! Muvver, Daddy, he's been here! Come, come quick! Santa's been here!

And so Christmas comes again and the spirit of Santa Claus lives on. Blessed are those whose years are mature, yet whose hearts beat in sympathy with the sweet innocence of childhood on this day of days. Blessed are those whose eyes grow suspiciously dim, and blurred, as they exclaim: MERRY CHRISTMAS!

This store will be closed all day, Monday, December 26th. Open Tuesday, December 27th.

Store Hours, 9 to 5:30

DAVISON-PAXON Co.
ATLANTA

Don't Delay! Call at Once!
Male or Female. Call or Write

No matter what your trouble is, no matter how serious your disease may be, Dr. Young's Hereditary Treatment will surely help you.

No dangerous drugs or surgical operations. All diseases treated with my pure patent herbs—without astounding results in every case.

THE ORIENTAL HERB CO.
50 Houston St. Atlanta, Ga.
Hours 9:00 A. M. to 7:00 P. M.

DAVISON-PAXON Co.
ATLANTA

*Sweeping
After-Christmas
CLEARAWAY!*

Featuring
Our Entire Stock of Fur-Trimmed
COATS!

Starts Tuesday 9 A. M.

Full Details in Monday's Papers!

NAVY "HIT" FOR SUB DEATHS BY MOTHER

Continued from First Page.

"They have no right to send men down in those submarines unless they have means of raising them after they have been sunk. My boy might have been saved if they had had the right precautions."

Her eyes flamed behind silver-rimmed glasses; she drew up taut with indignation.

Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Hughes were very courteous and gracious to me," she added, "but I felt they took me because they had to and they did not want me."

Mrs. Stevens learned that Secretary Wilbur was to go through Providence en route to Provincetown. She met the navy secretary and Admiral Hughes and requested that she be allowed to accompany them. "So I could say a Christmas prayer here, near my boy's grave," they consented.

The navy will work throughout the winter—every day of diving weather—to raise the S-4.

Secretary Wilbur issued that order this afternoon on board the flagship Falcon, of the salvaging fleet, after the navy department head and Admiral Hughes, chief of naval operations at Washington, had joined in a two-hour conference on the Falcon with Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, Captain Ernest King, who raised the S-51; Commander Saunders, the hull division, Portsmouth, N. H. navy yard, and Commander Edward Ellsberg, in full charge of S-4 diving operations.

Secretary Wilbur's announcement said: "I have ordered the work of salvaging the S-4 to be continued with the purpose of bringing the ship to the surface as soon as possible. Of course we will be governed by only tentative, and all decisions will be only tentative."

"I have the utmost confidence in the men on the Falcon. Most of them took part in the raising of the S-51 and have the best possible practical experience."

Today the worst weather since the disaster prevailed on the waters opposite the tip of Cape Cod, underneath which lies the S-4. A 40 to 50-mile norwester tore across the channel with the temperature as low as 18 degrees, kicking up rough, choppy seas.

Operations were suspended on the Falcon, where a diver has not gone down since 6:30 o'clock last night.

Civil Service Vacancy.
The job of repair man at the local federal building is open, according to an announcement by the civil service commission. The job pays $1,320 a year, and applications will be received until January 25.

HOLIDAY EXCURSION FARES
Greatly reduced rates to stations in Georgia and the Carolinas. Georgia railway.—(adv.)

Yuletide Season Dates Back To 2,000 Years Before Christ

25th of December Was Ever Favorite Date With Ancients

Christmas? The Yuletide? Santa Claus? Exchanging of gifts? Decorated trees? Mistletoe? Cards of remembrance? Whence did all these come? In fable and song and tradition, they have come down to us and have been with us so long we all have our own ideas as to why we follow these customs.

But from what period in our civilization, or before the birth of Christ or even before the rise of the great empires in Egypt and Greece and Carthage, have we received, one after another, all these beautiful, quaint, romantic and religious observances? Better than half a million persons in all corners of the earth today are observing the Christmas season.

The day, December 25, was set as the birthday of the Christ child by Pope Julius, 337-352 A. D., after careful investigation. How, even before that time, the 25th of December was ever a favorite date. It also had been celebrated between the 1st and 10th of January on many occasions before that time.

Predates Christian Era.
But the Yuletide season is far older than the Christian era. It dates back 2,000 years before the nativity of the baby Saviour. Balder was the sun god of the Aryans, the great branch of the human race from which most of the Christian races are descended. These Aryans were sun worshippers and day by day while the sun was slowly diminishing in light and heat, as the old year drew to a close, they worshipped at what they called and believed to be the death of the sun. Then came a rebirth of the golden ball in the heavens. The gradual increase in light and warmth, as the seasons changed, was the signal for a great celebration. As late in December comes the shortest day in the year, this celebration, their Yuletide, approximated our Christmas. Many of the Yuletide customs had their origin with our Indo-European ancestors.

Balder was supposed to have been slain each year by his deadly enemy, the jealous fire god Loki, who pierced him with a spring of mistletoe, the only weapon which could prove vulnerable. And our mistletoe is still with us.

But Druids in ancient Britain, before the Roman invasion, when the Celts ruled much of the land, also used the mistletoe as their "holy plant" and held it in much reverence. It was always cut by the chief priest and with a golden sickle, used for no other purpose.

Few peoples have entered more heartily into the Yuletide season than the British. To the customs of the Druids, they added those from the Romans and the Saxons. While there is some uncertainty as to how the first Christmas card was originated, the general opinion is that it was initiated by J. C. Horsley, R. A., who in 1843, on behalf of Sir Henry Cole, dispatched a card described as an "elaborate affair," showing in allegorical designs the clothing of the naked and the feeding of the hungry.

The lords of England, in feudal times, entertained at great feasts in the baronial halls, with thousands of guests at the greater celebrations. They received gifts from their tenants at Yuletide and sovereigns received presents from their nobles. Queen Elizabeth, in 1561, received a hand-knit pair of silk stockings from one of her maids and never after would she wear the cotton kind.

Martin Luther, in Germany, is given credit for introducing the Christmas tree. Doubtless he did much to popularize it, but the Christmas tree is believed to have originated in mythological times.

The hanging of the stocking as a receptacle for gifts is accounted for by the story that the good St. Nicholas dropped a purse down a chimney which fell a stocking hung up to dry at the fireplace.

Lieutenants in Norway.
In Norway, Santa Claus has an assistant, Kris Kringle, while in Switzerland Father Christmas is accompanied by his wife, St. Lucy, who looks after little girls. Santa Claus, himself, is said to have been introduced into England from America, where he had been naturalized by early Dutch settlers. In Russia, gifts are credited to the Babushka, of grandmother.

Another world-wide Christmas custom, which originated in this country, is the sending of greetings by telegraph and cable. This custom has been increasing in popularity due to special interest shown and decorated blinks and envelopes devised by the Western Union, which conducts at Christmas time a special Yuletide service.

And what notable events in early American history happened on Christmas day? Washington is credited with crossing the Delaware in that night, 1776. A bleak and dreary Christmas the night was spent at Valley Forge. On Christmas eve, 1783, Washington laid aside forever his military uniform. Martha Washington had her first public reception in the executive mansion on Christmas eve, and a few years later at the Yuletide the young country was mourning the death of the "Father of His Country."

And today, Atlanta and Georgia is celebrating and observing the Yuletide the Christmas season, the birth of him who gave his life to save the world. May it be the merriest of Christmas for all!

ELABORATE PROGRAM FOR MERCHANTS' MEET

T. G. Woolford, general chairman of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association, announced for the night of Thursday, January 26, 1928, at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, announces Saturday that one of the most elaborate and interesting programs in the history of the association is being prepared. Entertainment features will outclass anything of the kind ever presented at previous annual meetings, he said, and business features of the meeting will be handled in a way that will make them decidedly interesting.

One of the principal business features will be nomination and election of officers for 1928, to take the place of the retiring officers, who are Walter O. Foote, president; John C. Sage, first vice president, and Vice Presidents Harry Summers, L. M. Anderson, J. Q. McRae, George Beck, Nat. Illman, Carleton Smith and William M. Todd.

About 500 members and guests are expected to be present, and within the next week or two, special invitations will be mailed out to between 50 and 75 of Atlanta's leading business men to attend this annual function of the retailers. This annual meeting will mark the fourteenth anniversary of the association.

Preceding the annual meeting, there will be about 15 preliminary meetings of the various separate trade lines which make up the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association. These preliminary meetings will be for the purpose of electing chairmen of these various trade lines to direct the individual affairs of each during 1928.

CITY MANAGER NAMED FOR HAMILTON, OHIO

Hamilton, Ohio, December 24.—(P) Russell P. Price, assistant city manager of Dayton, Ohio, will be the first city manager of Hamilton in the opening regime of its new charter form of government. He was chosen last night at a caucus of the new city council which will take office January 1, and Raymond H. Burke was selected as mayor. Price will assume his new post January 1 at a salary of $10,000 a year.

Previous to going to Dayton's Beach Price was service director at Steubenville, Ohio.

President Sends Christmas Greetings to United States

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON
December 25, 1927.

To the American People:—

Christmas is not a time or a season, but a state of mind. To cherish peace and good will, to be plentiful in mercy, is to have the real spirit of Christmas. If we think on these things, there will be born in us a faith and over us will shine a star sending its gleam of hope to the world.

Calvin Coolidge

Community Chest Prevents Causes of Hardship, Poverty

Desertion of families by husbands and mothers, said to be one of the most common causes of poverty and hardship, is a social evil which the Community Chest and its agencies have undertaken to prevent. It was said Saturday as an example of the social helpfulness of their many-sided activities.

The subject was discussed at a conference of executives of family service and child-care agencies of the Community Chest and the Legal Aid society, which also operates in connection with the Community Chest. J. L. R. Boyd, general counsel of the society, instructed the group in means to compel deserting husband and fathers to support their families.

At the same time was presented the November report of activities by the Legal Aid society, the work of which lies in assisting other social agencies in solving the family and individual welfare problems which arise among the poor and ignorant. Under the law, it functions helpfully for protection of the rights of those too ignorant to know the law, and too poor to pay for legal counsel and advice.

Sixty-seven clients applied to the Legal Aid society in November, of whom 28 were white and 39 negroes. All these were investigated, their problems analyzed and they were given counsel and service.

Twenty-three cases were referred by other agencies and persons to the society's office. As an example of the coordination and inter-dependence of the Chest agencies, it was shown that 12 cases came through the Family Welfare society and one each was referred by the Community Employment service, the Home for the Friendless, the Churches Home for Girls, and the Urban League, three by public officials and four by other lawyers.

Of the 67 cases handled in November, it is shown that 23 were those of people without income, 14 had an average income, and there was an average of six dependents to each client.

Because funds are not sufficiently available to extend the service of the Legal Aid society to the criminal courts, its work has been almost altogether in connection with civil cases, and with protection of the civil rights of the poor and oppressed. The hope was expressed at last week's conference, however, that the extension of the society's service to the important field of criminal law and public defense may be brought about.

Besides giving its services to the public, the Legal Aid society is the legal adviser of social agencies on problem cases. The instruction by Mr. Boyd on the problem of deserting husbands and fathers is an example of its methods and of the close cooperation of the several agencies of the Chest, each of which has its distinctive function and yet each offering the machinery of its service to help the other.

GOOD APARTMENT YEAR IS PRESAGED

Indications that 1928 will be another banner year for the apartment house renting field was indicated in reports by Pittsburgh Knox, well-known head of the realty firm of Pittsburgh Knox and Sons, to the effect that the demand for apartments rented from blueprints is unusually high for this time of the year.

"Especially is the demand for really first class apartments good as is to be seen in handling the rental for new apartments in the group at 2788 Peachtree road," Mr. Knox stated. "It is most unusual at this time of the year to rent apartments that are under construction and entirely from the blueprint, as has been the case with us," the real estate executive said.

In using these signs as a basis for predicting an outstanding rental year in 1928, Mr. Knox pointed to the continual influx of business men from out of town, to establish themselves here, as another factor in the prosperity forecast, citing as an example the renting of the first apartment in the new building to C. F. Fowler, who moved to Atlanta from Kansas City.

The apartment being erected by Pittsburgh Knox and Sons at 2788 Peachtree road is an elaborate structure destined to enhance the beauty of what is already a notable residential section.

CAYE TAKES OVER COULTER-HART LINE

W. C. Caye, former prominent American, Ga., business man and for many years connected with the Georgia state highway department as a division engineer, has recently taken over the Coulter-Hart Equipment company's road construction equipment line at 500 Stewart avenue. In joining this firm, Mr. Caye will also become district manager of the Koehring company, of Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturers of gasoline and electric cranes, shovels and concrete mixers.

He will also represent many road construction equipment manufacturers for the state of Georgia. Among these are the Blaw-Knox company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., manufacturers of steel frames, material bins and buckets; the Harber-Greene company, of Aurora, Ill., manufacturers of bucket conveyors, and the C. H. & E. Manufacturing company, of Milwaukee, Wis., manufacturers of pumps and gasoline hoists.

Mr. Caye has been a resident of At-

SOUTHERN GRANTS 10-DAY STOP-OVER PRIVILEGE TO CITY

A ten-day stop-over privilege in Atlanta on all one-way tickets was granted by the Southern railway and announced Saturday through J. C. Beam, assistant general passenger agent. The announcement was made to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Convention and Tourist bureau. The stop-over privileges will go into effect about the latter part of January, it was stated.

F. J. Paxon, president of the convention bureau, and George W. West, president of the chamber of commerce, were very much pleased to learn that the privilege had been granted, as both organizations had used every effort to bring it about.

The last week of 1927 will see four meetings held here by various organizations, according to the Atlanta Convention and Tourist bureau. The Alpha Epsilon Pi fraternity meeting here December 28-31 at the Henry Grady hotel, will have an attendance of about 100.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Southern Kappa Alpha will have about 1,000 men here at the Biltmore December 29-31, and the Georgia division of the Order of De Molas will assemble here December 29-30 with an attendance of about 50. The Alexander-Seewald company will hold a sales conference at the Henry Grady hotel December 29-31.

The Season's Greetings

—We extend to you, our friends and patrons, our sincere wishes that your Christmas be a happy one and that the New Year bring you much peace and prosperity.

Parks-Chambers
Inc.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year

To all our Friends and Patrons are the sincere wishes of

ED. MATTHEWS & CO.

"Home of the Hoosier"

82-84 Alabama St., S. W.

Between Whitehall and Pryor Streets.

ROBERT FULTON, CECIL EMPLOYEES GET BONUS

Employees of the Robert Fulton and Cecil hotels, two of the institutions conducted by the Baron & Wilson system, are sharing in the distribution of a Christmas bonus amounting to between $6,000 and $7,000 for the system, the gift being in the nature of a Christmas present to employees who have been with the organization six months or longer. The organization has adopted the policy of distributing a bonus in proportion to salary received.

In addition to the two Atlanta hotels, Baron & Wilson also operate half a dozen large hotels, the activities extending over five states, including the Mecklenburg at Charlotte, the Hillman at Birmingham, the Exchange at Montgomery, the Jefferson at Columbia. On January 1, the company will take over the Savannah hotel at Savannah.

Walter T. Wilson and Sam Baron, comprising the firm, state that they are sold on this section of the country and they believe more marvelous developments than have yet been conceived of are certain to be recorded in the southeast during the next few years. They are of the opinion that Atlanta will make no less strides in the next two or three years and continue to grow at a rapid rate.

Christmas Carol Program Ready For Public Today

Community singing of Christmas carols will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the city auditorium under the sponsorship of the woman's division of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, with the cooperation of Dr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., city organist, who will act as accompanist. Girls' clubs and choirs will participate in the singing under the direction of A. W. Falkenberg. School children will be grouped together near the stage, and the public is invited to attend the unique musical treat. Mrs. Nellie Edwards, chairman of the churches and schools committee of the woman's division, is in charge of the program.

The complete program follows: Organ solo—Hallelujah chorus, "The Messiah, Handel," "Gesu Bambino," "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," "Holy Night," "Come, Come, Ye Faithful," "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing," "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," Organ solo—"Noel, the Holy Night"—Buck. "Christmas in Sicily"—Yon.

FOUR CHILDREN BURN TO DEATH

Louisiana, Mo., December 24.—(P) Four children were burned to death and five other persons were injured, one probably fatally, when fire today destroyed a two-story frame dwelling on the Viola farm near here. The dead are, Lorraine, 15; Verna, 10; and two children, 5 and 8 months old, children of Mrs. Sturgeon, who occupied the house with Thomas Keller, a horse dealer. Keller's clothing was burned. At his body and he was not expected to live through the day. Mrs. Sturgeon was badly burned on the arms and back. Thomas Keller, Jr., 20, was burned about the face and hands. Viola Sturgeon, 16; Virginia Sturgeon, 10, and Charles Reynolds, 19, jumped from windows in the second story. Both girls were injured.

St. Nick Classed 'Desirable' Alien By Federal Head

BY BEN COOPER.
Somebody is always taking the joy out of life, but then there are others who sometimes are injecting a little of the pollyanna spirit into life on this old sphere. Mr. A. Cockendall, immigration inspector in charge of the Atlanta district, would seem to fall in the latter class with his announcement Saturday.

"The immigration department," declared Mr. Cockendall, "most positively will not deport Santa Claus back to the north pole when he comes snooping around Atlanta chimneys." This is indeed news of importance to Atlanta kiddies, for just imagine the anguish and wailing and gnashing of teeth that would ensue in Atlanta if the immigration authorities were to arrest old Santa and send him skidding back to his native land on the grounds of moral turpitude, or whatever it is they deport folks for. Mr. Cockendall's announcement followed the appearance Friday morning at the immigration office of a very urchin whose eyes were just about ready to burst forth with a bucket or two of tears.

"Say, mister," the lad asked in a quivering voice, "it ain't true that you'll be gonna send Santa Claus back home, is it?"

"Why, no, that I know of," Mr. Cockendall said.

"Well, I just wanted to find out. Somebody told me that your immigration police were always sending people back where they came from, and you were gonna send Santa Claus back, too."

Mr. Cockendall hastened to reassure the little boy that Santa Claus will not be bothered by the immigration department, and then issued an official bulletin to the effect that Santa Claus will be issued any kind of a passport, temporary, permanent or extra-permanent that he wants.

'tis Christmas Day Again" and The Lakewood Bank Extends Greetings to All

Into the joyous air this Christmas morn—blending with the chimes from many belfries—reaching far and wide into the hearts of every home in this community goes the wish of this organization.

To everyone in our ever-widening circle of friends we speak our sincerest thanks for their valued patronage—for their part in making possible the splendid expansion which has taken place during the past year—and for the great volume of business we have done.

We pledge ourselves to continue in the path of progress and service during the coming year and to perpetually merit that full measure of good will you have bestowed upon us.

May this be to you and yours the most joyous of Christmases, and may you realize in 1928 the fulfillment of all your ambitions.

The Lakewood Bank

OFFICERS

PAUL S. ETHERIDGE, Pres.
P. W. HANCOCK, Cashier

C. F. MOODY, Vice Pres.
W. V. POWELL, Asst. Cashier

Lakewood Ave. & Jonesboro Rd.

EDITED by RICHARD CLARK ~ randomly bound in turquoise id and illustrated with three ex-avings by that distinguished artist, John Funk, Jr.

Hums Gleaning. thoughts. It's up myself, it's a novel book the certain free of tears sweep out gloom.⁶

and illustrated with rare excerpts by that distinguished artist, John Fink, Jr.
Home Cleaning thought I'd try up my heart's room:
book the certain free of tears
and swept-out gloom.

Published at the Constitution Building, 111 N. Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

Telephone WAB. 6065

Subscription Rates: Daily, 10c; Sunday, 5c; Foreign, 15c; Single Copies, 5c.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 25, 1927.

J. B. Holliday, Constitution Building, 111 N. Peachtree St., Atlanta, Ga.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns.

to a slow death during the many long years in which their agony cannot be described in words or even appreciated in thought. But it is heartening to know that neither energy, expenses or expert experience in meeting such an emergency was spared in the desperate, heroic and hazardous effort to bring the last survivors to the daylight of life before they succumbed.

The rescue work was in charge of Rear Admiral Frank H. Brumby, a Georgian, appointed to Annapolis from Athens, and he went through the trying days and nights without sleep or rest in the hopeless undertaking. He did his duty, and did it well. Secretary Wilbur has expressed the utmost confidence in him.

In life there are clouds that shut out the light of the sun. There are shadows that cross every path. While the nation mourns because of this tragedy it has no reason to criticize. From it a lesson may be learned that may prevent a recurrence.

There must be some practical method established by which the commander of a submarine, in daylight or darkness, may ascertain that the surface of the sea is clear of danger before it emerges from beneath that surface.

WHY ROADS ARE CONGESTED.

The railroads of the United States established a new record in safety during the first six months of 1927, according to the official statistics just made public.

During that period only two passengers lost their lives in train accidents.

This record is unprecedented in the railroad history of the country. During the first six months of 1926 there were 22 passenger fatalities, and there were 52 during the same period in 1925.

This rapidly improving record emphasizes the good results coming from the installation of modern signal and block systems, and the safety precautions that all transportation companies are stressing with their employees.

The 1927 record, as compared with the heavy highway casualty record, proves conclusively that rail transportation is much the safer, and yet in a measure the railroads are responsible for the congestion on the highways, as a result of which so many accidents occur.

High rates of railroad fare, and the Pullman car surcharge, which also goes to the railroads, have forced thousands of people to rely almost entirely upon motor transportation as a matter of economy.

It is a short-sighted policy on the part of the railroads. If the rates were reduced to a reasonable mileage figure the locomotives would be pulling full instead of half empty passenger cars, and the net revenues would be greater.

The Pullman surcharge, which is an addition of 50 per cent of the standard sleeping car fare, is inexcusable, and it is almost unthinkable that the interstate commerce commission, clothed in the provisions of the law with authority to discontinue it, will continue to have it imposed.

It was established for the one and only purpose of helping the railroads to rehabilitate their finances after they were turned back by the government, following the war, and the understanding was specific and definite that when the carriers were again in normal financial shape the surtax should be discontinued.

The railroads have enjoyed unprecedented prosperity during the past four years, and yet the extra tax remains. Congress should force its discontinuance.

While railroad accidents have happily been markedly reduced, and while train traveling is undeniably safer than by automobile, the highways will continue to exact their human toll so long as the railroads exact abnormal rates for travel.

NOT A NATIONAL CRIME.

The recommendation by President Coolidge in his annual message that some action, within constitutional limits, should be taken to protect negro persons from the crime of lynching was proper enough, but should have been inclusive of whites as well as negroes.

Lynchings are entirely indefensible, are in defiance of law and courts, essentially evil in their lawless implications and vicious in their effects upon the morale of the communities in which they occur.

Every governmental power and agency available in an emergency provocative of a lynching should be promptly and courageously employed to prevent the lynching, or, failing that, to identify, prosecute and punish the usurpers and organizers of the due course of orderly justice.

These axiomatic things can be freely admitted; but they do not authorize the assumption that the federal government possesses constitutional power to take jurisdiction over this particular species of crime.

Lynching is just plain murder and belongs within the jurisdiction of the state, unless committed upon an American vessel on the high seas or in a place on land under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government.

The United States, as such, has no common law, either English or its own, and cannot constitutionally deal legislatively with the crime when committed within the jurisdiction of a state. Hamilton so declared before the New York convention that ratified the constitution of the United States and the course of our national legislation and jurisprudence have always been to that effect.

Hence President Coolidge was prudent enough to qualify his suggestion by a reference to constitutional limitations upon the powers of congress. Thus far every bill proposed in congress to penalize a state or its officers for not preventing or punishing lynchings has encountered that lack of constitutional warrant, and therefore none has been enacted into law.

And, doubtless, any such law, if enacted, would be declared unconstitutional by the supreme court.

FRUITS OF REMUS VERDICT.

The farcical trial and verdict in the George Remus case is already bearing fruit. Young William E. Hickman, arrested in Oregon, and the self-confessed kidnapper of little Marian Parker, the Los Angeles schoolgirl, who was murdered and mutilated after a ransom had been paid, frankly admits that he will follow the method of the Remus defense—that is, plead insanity, and conduct his own defense.

"Remus acted as his own lawyer and got acquitted, didn't he," asked the depraved boy of 19, who has already been influenced by the Cincinnati miscarriage of justice.

The fact is, if the jury that tried George Remus for first degree murder had not been inhibited in the charge of the trial judge from rendering a straight, unconditional acquittal verdict without the issue of his sanity being involved, the "king of bootleggers" would undoubtedly be walking the streets of his home city today as free as any of the upstanding, upright and useful citizens of the community.

And this after one of the most deliberately conceived and executed homicides in the history of Ohio crime. The disgraceful scenes that characterized the trial from the beginning were enacted to an even more disgraceful degree following the verdict. Jurors joined the wild and hilarious celebration of the 5,000 men and women of the underworld, who heroized their acquitted leader, who in turn made nothing short of a clown of himself in his own delirious joy.

In the issue of Remus' insanity the prostrate judge will order a hearing, and again "expert" testimony of physicians and psychologists will be employed to prove his sanity, whereupon he again will go free without a retrial on the charge of murder.

The law is different in Georgia. If a defendant is found insane by a jury the original charge of crime is not dismissed, but merely rests during asylum incarceration. If the inmate is declared ready for discharge from the asylum then the trial must again proceed on the original charge.

It matters not what the home life of the victim of Remus' gun had been, there was no plea of self-defense, and no legal justification, therefore, for a killing.

If there was ever a defeat of justice in criminal law administration it was in this case in which sordid emotion was the controlling factor. It will have its influence in increasing crime. It gives new license to the great army of gangsters that infest and menace Cincinnati, Chicago, and other great cities of the country.

This is proven and emphasized in the statement of young Hickman, who doubtless anticipates the employment of "experts" to prove him insane, with the same purpose that Remus now has—the employment of "experts" later to prove his sanity, thereby providing a complete escape from penalty for one of the most heinous crimes in history.

The Remus trial was a farce. The antics of some of the jurors following the trial were a disgrace. The whole thing is a blot on the fair name of a great middle western commonwealth.

The ever-ready gun! The idolization of a criminal! The farce of law administration! The eulogy of crime!

No wonder America is the most criminal of the civilized nations of the world! No wonder the murderer of little Marian Parker sees a hope for his escape from punishment.

TO CURB "RED" PROPAGANDA.

Representative Charles H. Brand, of the eighth district, has introduced in congress a bill to exclude from the mails newspapers containing radical propaganda—without full and complete English translations—meaning articles advocating or teaching opposition to all organized government, the overthrow by force or violence of the government of the United States, advocating the unlawful assaulting or killing of any officer of the government, or of any state, and the advocacy of the unlawful destruction of property.

The bill provides heavy penalties for violations.

It is a good measure and should be enacted.

It is a question whether the women will hang up their skirts or their stockings this Christmas.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

American People Are Demanding World Peace or Perfect National Protection.

Washington, December 24.—(Special.)—The Christmas calendar contains no better day for contemplation of world peace and the study of plans to promote it than the birthday of the Prince of Peace.

It has been the dream of the good and humane since the angel heralds sang it over the heads of the wonderland shepherds in Judea. In every age since some prayerful soul has besought the sovereign and the masses of mankind to come into concert to banish war to declare that the sword shall devour no more, and that conciliation and compromise shall always adjust the transient disagreements of nations.

It would seem that the Almighty Sovereign of the Universe permitted the world war to spill out to all who are in charge of governments and are stubbornly holding in check all movements to establish a world accord for arbitration and peace.

That deep feeling is manifestly weakening the attraction of democratic idealism, is sapping steadily the foundations of thrones and is giving evidence, if not open approval, to the arguments for sovietistic administration or for the fascist fantasies of Mussolini.

How America is Affected. Through the program and agitation of a powerful "labor party" England is muddling on in daily jeopardy of a radical reformation of her ancient laws, institutions and international policies.

But here in the United States we have no such threat or menace. We feel that our popular institutions are safe from any revolutionary raids. It is our precious population—free, industrious and prosperous—and the enormous value of our possessions, greater than any nation has ever owned in the known history of the world, that argue our incontestable appeal for world peace guaranties.

From all quarters of the union and from the most representative elements of the people come daily demands upon the president and the congress for concrete and active movements toward a world peace protocol.

In January, from the 15th to the 19th, nine national organizations, with an estimated membership of 30,000, 000 women, will be represented here in Washington in their third national conference. Their effort will be to frame a definite program for world peace, to be presented to the president, that, or not, they will impressively demonstrate the great extent and earnestness of our people's demand for such universal peace.

War Is Being Resented. There is a great class of fatalistic philosophers among the politicians of the world who argue that war is a necessary and racially profitable evolution in the unfinished history of civilization. They see in its effects the elimination of the surplus and needless population, the "survival of the fittest," and the reduction of the waste of the losses of production and normal consumption.

Such unscrupulous directors of human affairs in the large ignore the patent fact that the yet unsubsided earth has plenty of room and resources yet for any surplus population that is needed in a given nation; and that it is always the fittest to live who fight the wars and perish in them, while the weakest and unfitness remain behind the lines and survive to procreate a degenerate race and that a consuming people will always, by industry or migration, produce its necessities of life.

The common people of the world are awakening at last to those great facts and among them there is a rapidly growing resentment against war, and a hot enmity toward the makers of wars.

It will be well for the so-called statesmen of the civilized nations to take heed of that smoldering rage before it erupts and consumes them.

In the face of the holocausts of the world war the fathers, mothers and sons of the people are denouncing war as savage, inhuman, un-Christian, and devilish in designs and deeds. When a sane person looks at the mass of the American people, who are coming to a definite consensus, which is that either a world peace pact must soon be obtained, or the United States must be speedily put into a state of armament and preparedness that will guarantee our safety under any and all world-wide conditions.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

That is an ultimatum that will be served by the people at large upon any future administration and upon the statesmen of the world, and the function under the dome of the national capitol.

TEXT AND PRETEXT

BY M. ASHBY JONES

Christmas—Sunday

Two holidays meet today in a symphony of memories and hopes. This is indeed the "Lord's Day." Today, in sacred imagination, we may hear the angelic hymns of "Gloria in Excelsis" for the birth of the Christ-child, and, in answering assurance, the voices of the angels at the empty tomb, in their triumphant cry, "He is risen." Yes, this day is indeed a dual message to the human heart. There was born in Bethlehem "Peace on earth and good will to men," and shall yet triumph over all hatred and strife.

Holidays, from the very familiarity of their annual recurrence, so easily lose their significance, and degenerate into days of self-indulgence. It is well now and again to pause and search one's calendar for the significance of those dates which we mark with meaningless red, and ask what memories should be preserved, and what ideals those radiant numbers should keep immortal. So let us ask more, with the music of the angels in our hearts and the light of that star to glow in our spirits, what does Christmas mean?

The Birth of Ideals. Like so many of our festival days, Christmas marks the coming of a baby into the world. Every birthday which has ever been marked upon the calendar of a nation or of the race, has meant the incarnation of some great idea or ideal, which was to change the direction of the footsteps of men, or to open the door of some new realm of endeavor to humanity.

When Jesus was born there was born a new ideal, a new grandeur, then, we have been writing "in the year of our Lord."

With the coming of Jesus there came into the world a totally new idea of God. Hitherto men had thought of God in terms of their mighty oriental kings and emperors. They simply deified this conception by magnifying the splendor of a royal court, with its power and its gorgeous glory. God was ever shut off from men by limitless ranks of angels and cherubim, and could only be approached by the mediation of sacerdotal ceremonies and by the mediation of ecclesiastical and celestial courts. Then a baby was born in a stable, of humble parentage. He lived the daily life of the people, and in the throbbing heart of pain and pleasure, triumph and defeat, of human life. But he lived this everyday human life.

modest Quaker and unsurpassed healer were those of the equally servicable Pastor and Metchnikoff. To Pasteur came the basic idea of fermentation, and all that followed. But he traced to the work of that great Frenchman, Metchnikoff, confirmed the latter's discovery, while Lister applied the germ theory to surgery. These are the real heroes and leaders of the world and not its boasted rulers who have deified it with their own pomp and circumstance. They deserve Benley's lines, written in praise of Lister as one "wise and sweet with certainties" and with:

"Such love and faith as failure cannot null."

We hold him for another Herakles. Battling with custom, prejudice, disease. As once the son of Zeus with death and hell."

Pittsburgh, Pa. "Is there anything worse than the loneliness of an old maid's latter years? To my mind there is not, for I am fast approaching that age, and I have not yet found a man who has paid me some attention. I feel nothing warmer for him than a kindly interest, but I have a very great horror of spending my declining years in solitude."

Do you think that a woman should marry under these circumstances?

You place a responsibility upon me which I hesitate to assume. What if I said "Yes, marry this man," and you did so only to find that your choice was a failure? On the other hand, should I suggest that you reject his overtures and you followed the advice you after thought might be urged with respect against the one who had hindered your possible happiness.

Hence, all an outsider can do is to comment on the general situation. You are convinced that your prospective suitor is of good moral character, able to maintain a modest home in comfort, and that he has a fair hope of developing into sober and intelligent affection becoming both of you, marry him.

But do not forget that there is something worse than the solitude of an aged spinster and that is the misery of an aged married woman.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

enormous amount of tearing down and excavating. In clearing ground for approaches to the new vehicular tunnel and in extending and widening Sixth and Park avenues and other thoroughfares, gangs of workmen have demolished hundreds of old buildings, and their fall has been a matter of miles. This dust has blown about and been distributed by the rolling wheels of trucks.

WHERE WANDERING BOYS GO. Saw two men walk out of Central Park yesterday, each holding two boys by the collar. Learned that the men were trust officers and that the boys had been playing hooky, and that more mischievous schoolboys are found at the park, than anywhere else in the city. Trust officers make regular visits and usually catch a few.

A book could be written about the universality of Central park. All extremes meet. Babies from Fifth avenue come to babies from East Side tenements. Strolling millionaires, trying to get off their feet for fun, have been occupied by derelicts who have only one care—where to get the next meal and how.

This may be attributed partly to the fact that the city is so small.

THE TOWN. NOBODY KNOWS. It taken an announcement such as a recent one about the newly fixed metropolitan boundaries to enlighten residents of New York about the size of their own town. The obvious indications of size such as the height of the buildings, the luxury of hotels and apartment houses, and the glittering transportation, are not the important factors in the city's greatness.

The three main factors, it happens, are all unimportant to the observer in the streets, because they are hidden or so scattered and distributed beyond the vision that only a special investigator is aware of their extent.

These three are manufactures, valuation of land and improvements, and bank deposits. Within the metropolitan area, now embracing nearly 10,000,000 persons, and filling approximately a forty-mile circle from City hall, Manhattan, are 30,000 factories of all kinds, producing nearly $10,000,000,000 worth of goods each year for 70,000 wage earners; 125 miles of developed water front, with 888 piers and 222 warehouses; 33 railroads and 143 city banks, with $10,370,000,000 belonging to the federal reserve system.

MANHATTAN RAISES MORE DUST. Statisticians find that the quantity of dust particles per cubic foot of air is less here than in Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Cincinnati, but still there seems to be an awful amount of dust in the streets.

This may be attributed partly to the fact that the city is so small.

THE TOWN. NOBODY KNOWS. It taken an announcement such as a recent one about the newly fixed metropolitan boundaries to enlighten residents of New York about the size of their own town. The obvious indications of size such as the height of the buildings, the luxury of hotels and apartment houses, and the glittering transportation, are not the important factors in the city's greatness.

The three main factors, it happens, are all unimportant to the observer in the streets, because they are

We Extend to You
Cordial Christmas
Greetings
and Kindly Wishes
For the Coming Year

Rhodes-Wood Furniture Co.

4 W. Mitchell St.

Closed All Day Monday

To Our Friends and Customers

We might use many more words to say it, but they could express no more than

Merry Christmas
and
Happy New Year

Atlanta Tent & Awning Co.

Atlanta

Smile!

Easy enough when everything is going well but it takes courage for the people who are nearing the retiring age—65 to 70—and whose jobs or finances are not too secure. You will smile readily at 65 if you invest in an Aetna Life Income Policy now.

AETNA-IZE

S. M. CARSON
General Agent
AETNA LIFE INSURANCE CO.
415 Grant Building

WA. 2395

Atlanta

FUNERAL CONDUCTED FOR MRS. M. S. CARSON

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Sue Carson, 60, of 180 Ormond street, who died Friday at a private sanitarium, were held Saturday afternoon from the St. Paul Methodist church. The Rev. B. F. Fraser officiated, and interment was in Greenwood cemetery. Serving as matron of the main obsequies.

Greetings.

Our sincerest wish is that each of our friends and customers will enjoy a very Merry Christmas. May every joy be yours now and through the years to come.

Mather Bros.

229-231 Peachtree St.

A Merry
Christmas
1927

WEYMAN & CONNORS

and

THE CITY SAVINGS BANK

The Heritage of Joy and Peace—

May life and fortune be kind to you this Christmas-tide; may Joy and Peace be your inheritance for the coming New Year

J. Austin Dillon
Funeral Directors

502 Pryor St., S. W.

Phone Main 4680

Elks Become Santa Claus
To Children

Approximately 1,800 children from needy families were gladdened Saturday morning at Keith's Georgia theater by Christmas gifts of clothing, fruits and other necessities from the Atlanta lodge No. 78, Elks, who gave their annual Christmas tree party.

In addition to the Christmas presents, toys which to childhood's heart are more valuable than food itself, the Elks distributed over 400 sacks of food, sufficient to provide for a family of four or five members through a week.

A short program of motion pictures preceded the distribution of gifts, which was under direction of J. P. Fitten, exalted ruler; B. C. Broyles, secretary, and W. A. Jones, chairman of the Christmas tree party committee of the Elks. Children were

PRIVATE LOANS
On Diamonds, Watches and Jewelry
W. M. LEWIS & CO.
5TH FLOOR, PETERS BLDG.

WALL PAPER PAINTING
We Know How
J. H. Gray-Dyer Co.
177 734 328 Peachtree St.

entered the theater by ticket, after having been previously investigated by the Elks.

WOMAN MAKES BOND IN DEATH OF FARR CHILD

Arrest Saturday by Police Lieutenant Luther J. Carroll of Mrs. C. P. Dryden, 26, of 1228 North avenue, N. E., on a charge of reckless driving following an accident in which the alleged to have driven the car which fatally struck down Thursday 6-year-old Jack Farr, was followed by Mrs. Dryden's posting of $1,000 bond to appear in police court.

The Farr youth was the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Farr, of 363 Ponce de Leon avenue, and the boy was struck down while his mother was in town shopping.

2 AUTOISTS JAILED ON LIQUOR CHARGE
AFTER SMASH-UP

J. E. Farris, of 945 Virginia circle, and Sidney Gerald, of Duluth, Ga., were arrested Saturday afternoon by Motorcycle Officers R. H. McLean and W. T. Milam on charges of drunkenness and operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, after they were unable to explain a crash between the automobiles they were driving.

Well-Dressed Youth Gets $1 Bill, Sermon
In Hold-Up of Woman

A hold hold-up near Ponce de Leon avenue Saturday night netted the youthful bandit a $1 bill and a serious admonition on the dire harvest that will be reaped by one who travels the well-known primrose path.

Mrs. Will C. King, of 720 Bonaventure avenue, engaged the well-dressed young bandit in a conversation for nearly a block on Barnett street early Saturday night and then had to depart minus a $1 bill, all she had in her pocketbook except car fare.

When the youth determined that Mrs. King had car fare in her possession he took the bit of currency and decamped. Police are investigating.

SUITCASE MIXUP

Bags Confused at Station; Owners Seek Each Other.

Two women this morning have suitcases with somebody else's "Santa Claus" in them.

Two women, Miss Edna West and an unidentified woman both got off a train at the Terminal station Saturday night. A "red cap" hustler

TIRES RIM BATTERIES USE YOUR CREDIT
Collingim's

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our many friends for the kindness and sympathy shown during the illness and death of our mother, Mrs. H. W. Allingham, who died December 22, 1927, at 2:30 o'clock at the residence, No. 823 Park street, S. W. Rev. W. E. Davis will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

WEYMAN & CONNORS
58 MARIETTA STREET
(BROWN BUILDING)

Wishing You a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

BAYNE GIBSON MORTGAGE CO.
947 Hurt Bldg. WAHnet 3133

FOR SALE

Flat newsprint paper suitable for small publishers and job printers. The price is right.

P. O. Box 1731, Atlanta, Ga.

Funeral Notices

BROWN—The remains of Adjutant William F. Brown are resting at the parlors of Harry G. Pools pending funeral arrangements.

FARR—The friends of Master Jack Farr, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Jack Farr, Jr., Miss Frances Farr, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Haydon and Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Wiler are invited to attend the funeral of Master Jack Farr, Jr., this (Sunday) afternoon at 3 o'clock from the chapel of Harry G. Pools. Rev. F. C. McConnell will officiate. Interment will be in Greenwood cemetery. The following playmates of the deceased will act as pallbearers and meet at the chapel at 2:45 o'clock: Gordon Dickson, Howell Dickson, George Hamilton and Horace Gurley.

GIBSON—The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Gibson, Mr. Ralph Gibson, Mr. Willis Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gibson and Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Gibson are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. J. T. Gibson today (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 202 West Mercer avenue, College Park. Dr. L. E. Roberts will officiate and interment will be in the Lower Cemetery. The following named persons will please assemble at the residence at 1:30 o'clock: Howard L. Carmichael, funeral director.

SANDERS—The friends and relatives of Mr. James William Sanders, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Sanders, Master Carl Sanders, Miss May Sanders, Mr. William Tweedy and Mrs. Sarah Motta are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. James William Sanders today (Sunday) afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Bellwood Baptist church. Rev. W. M. Pruitt will officiate. Interment Magnolia cemetery. The following named clergymen of the deceased will act as pallbearers and meet at the residence: Messrs. Claud Morris, Noble Max, Estes Andrews, Vester Andrews, Wayland Earnest and J. T. Pruitt. T. C. Bazemore Co., funeral directors.

PARHAM—The friends of Mrs. Sarah A. Parham, Mr. and Mrs. E. Howard Parham, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Delay and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Laffey of South Jacksonville, Fla., are invited to attend the funeral of Mrs. Sarah A. Parham this (Sunday) afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the chapel of J. Austin Dillon Co. Rev. Percy T. Doswood and Rev. K. Lowder Reid will officiate. Interment Casey cemetery. The following gentlemen will please act as pallbearers and meet at the chapel of J. Austin Dillon Co. at 2:15 p. m.: Rev. Percy T. Doswood, Rev. K. Lowder Reid, Mr. H. D. Davis, Mr. C. H. Norkel, Lieutenant C. E. Hudson and Lieutenant John W. Blazer.

JONES—The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Major Ira Jones, Mrs. Sarah F. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Jones, Mr. W. W. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jones are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. Major Ira Jones tomorrow (Monday) morning, December 26, 1927, at 10 o'clock at the Underwood Methodist church. Rev. W. S. Pruitt and Rev. J. E. Eden will officiate. Interment will be in Norcross cemetery, with Banner lodge No. 126, Junior Order, and Hemphill lodge I. O. O. F. in charge of the services. Mr. W. J. Gilleland, Mr. W. M. Puckett, Mr. T. J. Loker, Mr. W. J. Sharp, Mr. D. L. Herndon and Mr. J. O. Perry, Jr., will please serve as pallbearers and meet at the residence, 10 Springer street. H. M. Patterson and Son.

GRACE—The friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Grace, Mr. and Mrs. K. M. Grace and Miss Edna Grace, of Harkinsville, Ga., are invited to attend the funeral of Mr. T. H. Grace tomorrow (Monday) afternoon, December 26, 1927, at 2:30 o'clock at the residence, No. 823 Park street, S. W. Rev. W. E. Davis will officiate. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

POPE—The friends and relatives of Miss Elmina Margaret Pope, of Harkinsville, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. David H. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pope, of Douglasville, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. John E. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pope, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pope, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Zack Adamson, Colonel Joseph W. Humphries, Judge and Mrs. John D. Humphries, Miss Maggie Endora Humphries, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wright, Mrs. Maude Piggins, Mr. and Mrs. John McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Standridge, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Landrum, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Landrum, Mr. and Mrs. Coy Landrum, Mrs. Maggie Aldred, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Absher, Mr. and Mrs. O. T. Finley, Mr. John H. Dicks and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Brown are invited to attend the funeral of Miss Elmina Margaret Pope Sunday afternoon, December 26, 1927, at the Methodist church in Harkinsville, Ga., at 2 o'clock. Rev. H. O. Nash and Rev. E. D. Hale will officiate. Interment Pope cemetery. The following named gentlemen, all nephews of Miss Pope, will serve as pallbearers and meet at the residence at 1:30 p. m.: Mr. J. C. Pope, Mr. W. D. Pope, Mr. James Howard Pope, Mr. Zack Adamson, Mr. Coy Landrum and Colonel Joseph W. Humphries. Brandon & Williams, funeral directors, in charge.

In Memoriam.

In memory of my dear father, Francis M. White, who died two years ago this Christmas day. Dear dad, how I have missed you. Your daughter, MARY E. (MOTTE) WHITE.

Professional Ethics Transformed Into Professional Service

J. AUSTIN DILLON CO.
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
302 South Pryor Street BNA 4000-4001
AMBULANCE SERVICE

Ed. Bond & Condon Co.
Funeral Directors
Ambulance 123 179 Street, N. E. LAde 1748

H.4214
Joy's

ENGRAVED
Card of Thanks
For Flowers and Sympathy
50c Dozen
Sou. Book Concern

PROFESSIONAL CARDS

Albert Howell, Jr. W. F. Bloodworth
Arthur Reynolds Herman Heyman
Harry Dorsey Mark Belding
DORSEY, HOWELL & HEYMAN
Lawyers
809 to 820 Connelly Bldg. Atlanta, Ga.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 25, 1927.

Southern Senior Team Ends Heavy Work for Monday's Game

Dixie Bunch Faces Heavy Line in Tilt

Westerners Pin Hopes on 200-Pound Line To Emerge Victorious.

Los Angeles, December 24.—(Special.)—The "Boys From Dixie" went to bed early tonight in order to be well prepared to meet Santa Claus tomorrow morning. The boys are a long way from home, but Monday they are counting on making themselves heard about when they meet an all-senior Pacific coast team, picked from the outstanding coast teams of 1927.

The southern all-senior bunch, led by Billy Spears, field general extraordinaire of Vanderbilt, went through a long, tough workout this afternoon, to be followed up tomorrow by a short signal drill and Monday—they reach the barrier.

They will find their way opposed by very, very strong line, averaging something like 200 pounds from end to end. It is on this line that the west pins its hopes for victory in Monday's affray, while the southerners are counting upon speed and the bullet-like aerial thrusts of William Spears to carry the boys to a win in this charity classic. It is expected the game will go to swell the local Christmas charity fund.

Moser, weighing 200 pounds, will be at one end, and Robinson at the other. The first sub end will be a giant of 210 pounds—Kimmell, of Whittier. Moser has been one of the greatest ends on the coast for three years and Robinson is noted especially for his splendid ability at receiving passes. At one tackle will be Vichaus, Montana's giant captain. He weighs 215. At the other tackle will be Scheving, of U. S. C., the fastest charging lineman on the coast. He is light in comparison to Vichaus but at that he tips the scales at 185. The sub tackles are Hutchinson, of Idaho, who is probably the heaviest man on the squad, weighing 220 pounds, and Hodgson, of Oregon, who weighs 198. The best of the guards is Heiser, a 200-pounder from U. S. C. He is as fast as a halfback and he led the interference for Morley Drury this year. At the other guard will be Shaw, of Washington, a 185-pounder. Bonamy, of Washington, will be at center. He is light but has great speed. Bonty and Sharpe, the rival centers, will be about the same weight. The southern team will be heavier at tackle, but the west will be heavier at guards and ends.

In the backfield the west will have considerable more weight than the southerners. Tesreau weighs over 200 pounds. Larazette and Cook are about 192, and Whittier weighs 175. Spears in the southern backfield, Billy weighs about 155 and is traveling a much heavier. Nor is Red Brown. Dodson, the fullback, is about 185. The west will be more than 15 pounds per man heavier in the backfield. Both backfields are chock full of brilliant forward passers. The west will have one southpaw flinger in Larazette.

The south was given the choice of jerseys for the game and chose blue, because Billy Spears has been passing to dark-jerseyed men all the year. The south will have blue jerseys, and white numbers, the west, white jerseys and red numbers. Both teams got their uniforms Friday.

CITY LEAGUE

One of the best basketball games of the season is expected Thursday when the Gulf Refining company's quintet and the A. C. C. Reds meet for first place honors in the City league. Neither of these teams have lost a game so far and both are strong contenders for high honors.

Joe Singleton has been coaching the Gulf and Refine team, and is directing the work of the Reds. Both are former captains and teammates of the A. C. C. The feature game should be a battle royal for the leadership of the City league, in addition to the keen rivalry of players and coaches. These two teams are two of the best outstanding quintets in the city and a fast, well-played game is assured.

Southern Bell, Avondale and the Knights of Columbus all are tied for third place with one victory and two defeats. Southern Bell and the Knights of Columbus meet in a close affair in the opening tilt, and Avondale and the Atlanta Joint Terminal will battle in the middle tilt. A capacity crowd is expected to witness the hectic struggle between the leaders for top position.

The schedule and standing:

Knights of Columbus vs. Southern Bell at 7:30.

Avondale vs. Atlanta Joint Terminal at 8:30.

Gulf Refining company vs. A. C. C. Reds at 9:30.

Xmas Greetings From National Writers

It has been a distinct pleasure during 1927 to contribute to the complete and entertaining sports columns of The Constitution. It has been a boom year for sports in the south with Jones leading the golf parade and southern football rising to highest standards. My holiday greetings to the sports staff and readers go hand-in-hand with predictions of another big season in Dixie.

—ALAN J. GOULD, General Sports Editor The Associated Press.

Many thanks for the opportunity to express my Christmas sentiments next to pure reading matter in the home of sport champions and thoroughbreds.

—WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Even if I were tempted to elaborate on the hearty old formula which has withstood the test of time I couldn't express any more to the readers of The Constitution than I mean now when I stick to "Merry Christmas and a happy New Year."

—FRANK GETTY.

It's always pleasant to send my best wishes for Christmas and the New Year to my friends in Atlanta. Looking forward to another year of sports and as I believe in sport; clean sports, I think it will be a year of sportsmanship. I hope I may be able to visit Atlanta during 1928 and enjoy the hospitality and climate of your fine city.

—ROBERT EDGREN.

A merry Christmas and happy New Year to the golfers of the south from a struggling baseball magnate of the north who is looking for Santa Claus as a partner. May all your golf shots during 1928 be the ones you are thinking about before you hit the ball and remember there are no bunkers in the sky.

—WALTER HAGEN.

Best wishes to the readers of The Atlanta Constitution for a very merry Christmas and a very prosperous year in sports.

—W. W. ROPER.

To the readers of The Atlanta Constitution: Here's hoping that old Santa makes his greatest contribution in sports of all sorts. That the eager big leaguer year of 1928 holds in store baseball, football, tennis and golf thrills galore. That is the holiday, jolly day wish of a party named —GEORGE MORIARTY.

New York, December 24.—(United News.)—Preliminary plans for the selection of the soccer team which will represent the United States at the Olympic games at Amsterdam in 1928 have been made by a subcommittee of the Olympic committee of the United States Football association here.

All players chosen for the team must qualify as amateur players according to the standard approved by the American Olympic committee, which provides that they shall not demand or accept compensation for wages lost during absence from the United States.

Elimination games shall be arranged between teams in the various districts of the east and between teams in the various districts of the middle west. The leading teams of the east and west shall be brought together and the winning team considered the representative team of the United States and entitled to first consideration in the ultimate selection.

Substitute players will be permitted in the representative games, but they shall be limited to the number of players allowed in the traveling team.

T. W. Cahill, secretary of the United States Football association, presided as secretary of the subcommittee, and Colonel G. Randolph Martin, of the American Olympic committee, presided in an advisory capacity.

W. R. Cummings, of Chicago, chairman of the United States Football association Olympic committee; Andrew Brown, president of the U. S. of A., and Wilfred Hollywood, of New York, completed the subcommittee.

Tucson, Ariz., December 24.—Football has been made so complicated by recent rule changes and by the modern diversified attack that the game no longer is easy for the college student to master and at the same time keep abreast of his "other studies," says Coach J. F. McKale, for 12 years pilot of the Arizona "Wildcats."

The day when any husky lad could be an athlete, especially a football player, are gone for good," declares the Arizona university gridiron mentor.

"It's no cinch job for a student who has other subjects to master to acquire a working knowledge of 20 or more plays with all their variations."

"College football is growing out of the class where it can be taught easily to college students."

—

PLANS MADE FOR PICKING SOCCER TEAM

New York, December 24.—(United News.)—Preliminary plans for the selection of the soccer team which will represent the United States at the Olympic games at Amsterdam in 1928 have been made by a subcommittee of the Olympic committee of the United States Football association here.

All players chosen for the team must qualify as amateur players according to the standard approved by the American Olympic committee, which provides that they shall not demand or accept compensation for wages lost during absence from the United States.

Elimination games shall be arranged between teams in the various districts of the east and between teams in the various districts of the middle west. The leading teams of the east and west shall be brought together and the winning team considered the representative team of the United States and entitled to first consideration in the ultimate selection.

Substitute players will be permitted in the representative games, but they shall be limited to the number of players allowed in the traveling team.

T. W. Cahill, secretary of the United States Football association, presided as secretary of the subcommittee, and Colonel G. Randolph Martin, of the American Olympic committee, presided in an advisory capacity.

W. R. Cummings, of Chicago, chairman of the United States Football association Olympic committee; Andrew Brown, president of the U. S. of A., and Wilfred Hollywood, of New York, completed the subcommittee.

Tucson, Ariz., December 24.—Football has been made so complicated by recent rule changes and by the modern diversified attack that the game no longer is easy for the college student to master and at the same time keep abreast of his "other studies," says Coach J. F. McKale, for 12 years pilot of the Arizona "Wildcats."

The day when any husky lad could be an athlete, especially a football player, are gone for good," declares the Arizona university gridiron mentor.

"It's no cinch job for a student who has other subjects to master to acquire a working knowledge of 20 or more plays with all their variations."

"College football is growing out of the class where it can be taught easily to college students."

—

—

The Sports Department of The Constitution Wishes You A MERRY CHRISTMAS!!!

Ben Cotthran, Dick Hawkins, Sam Cox, Whitney Carr, Clarence Nixson

H. P. WHITNEY CARRIES OFF RACE HONORS

New York, December 24.—(P.)—H. P. Whitney carried off premier honors in the turf world during the 1927 season with 73 winners for the highest aggregate earnings on the race track of $327,934. Last year, Whitney also topped the list with earnings exceeding the $400,000 mark.

The Greentree stable, operated by Mrs. Payne Whitney, ranked second this season with firsts in 72 races for total earnings of $260,698. While the Seagram stable had 95 winners, tying with the Audley Farm for leading winners, it was placed third in earnings with $263,912. Audley Farm netted $148,183 and was tenth.

Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, with a small lot of six or eight horses, made a remarkable record for practically a newcomer in the sport by placing seventh. Mrs. Hertz had only 15 winners but the earnings were $175,023 largely resulting from Anita Peabody's victory in the Futurity at Belmont Park.

Washington Opens Cage Season Against Illinois

Seattle, Wash., December 24.—When the University of Washington meets the University of Illinois in the first game of their intercollegiate series on December 27, the Huskies will begin one of the stiffest football schedules to be played by any team on the coast this year. The Purple and Gold will engage in three contests with Illinois, and two each with Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Oregon State, Washington State, Whitman, and Puget Sound.

HAWK-EYING SPORTS BY DICK HAWKINS

Greetings From the Gang.

The great annual marathon is finished and for once the dope held true—Santa Claus won by several lengths, and here's hoping that you were in at the finish to share his gifts to the faithful.

During the next 12 months may the world of sports be as bountiful as it has been in the past 12 months. May there be another great derby with you in the grandstand; may there be another great football season with your favorite team coming under the wire; may there be no more Dempsey-Tunney fights, above all, may all of your cares upset the dope and turn to joys.

Here's a "Hawk-eying" greeting to you at Yuletide, and may it last throughout the coming year.

—DICK HAWKINS.

Unaccustomed as we are to appearing in the public prints through means of this vehicle chauffeured by our Mr. Hawkins, it is with some trepidation that we attempt to compose a symposium of Christmas greetings.

During the course of a year in looking after things for Mr. Hawkins—every sports editor has one of those guys around, you know, and we suppose that in this case we are "it"—we have had our ups and downs just like Mr. J. Dempsey. But it has been a great year—we were lucky in placing our bets.

This thing of dabbling in sports is a great game, and we like it. Pardon us, therefore, if, smilingly and blushing, casting discretion to the wind, we arise and yell at the top of our voice:

"CHRISTMAS GIFT!"

DOG RACING THREATENED IN ENGLAND

London, December 24.—(P.)—The government alarmed thousands of large and small investors in greyhound racing companies through a hint by the home secretary that the government might have to consider restrictive legislation against this new form of British sport.

The secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, said the government was observing the sport with a view to learning of any possible injurious effect on the community, especially its encouragement of betting among children. His remarks were addressed to a deputation of members of the house of commons, representing all three political parties, who inquired as to the government's attitude toward dog racing.

Around 100 new limited companies have been formed in the past few months to promote the sport and, since the shares are generally in small denominations of a few shillings each, the speculation has appealed especially to the poorer classes of investors and in many cases these small value shares have been boosted on the stock market to tremendously high premiums.

Shares Slumped.

The greyhound shares slumped heavily on news of the home secretary's warning and disillusioned shareholders are complaining bitterly of the government's delay in allowing such a large number of companies to be formed before giving the warning.

There is a humorous side to the affair inasmuch that small investors were transferring their attention from the government's investment-saving certificates to the greyhound companies, thus depriving the government of a considerable source of income.

Bob Plays New Golf Role In '28

New York, December 24.—(United News.)—Bob Jones will play a new role in golf in 1928.

The name of Robert Tyne Jones, Jr., appears on the nominating committee's list for members of the executive committee of the United States Golf association.

Bobby will be one of the youngest golfers ever elected to the executive committee of the U. S. G. A.

Almost simultaneously with the arrival of Santa Claus and Christmas last night Mr. Spiller, of the Crackers, kicked in with the announcement that he had bought for himself, the Crackers and Atlanta, a pitcher.

Gearin is the newcomer's name. He's left handed. And hurred last year for Milwaukee in the American association. Won eight games and lost nine. Although it isn't much weather for fishing, Mr. Spiller said that he had been angling for "Brewer" Gearin for some two or three months, and finally landed him. About two years ago Gearin went up to the Giants and last year was sent back to Milwaukee.

From what Mr. Spiller said about the new hurler—and he said plenty—the Crackers have reason to believe they have a man "who will set the league on fire next year. The scouts say he has plenty of stuff and will go down in the big league and ought to make one of the best pitchers the Crackers will have."

Buying Plenty.

The Christmas addition makes about the eighth purchase of the winter, and it seems as though Mr. Spiller didn't mean possibly when he said at the close of last season that the Crackers were going to have a new ball club and a good ball club.

Mr. Spiller went out to Dallas about three weeks ago and bought five all at one opening of the pocket book. Then he bought a pitcher in New York and now comes Gearin. If they're all as good as they are said to be, then we fans might be watching pennant winning ball chasers at the Dell next summer.

The infield will be the newest thing of the outfit. Jim Poole will be on the first sack. He's a new comer. Fred Brainerd, who started many a double play while playing with Buffalo, champions of the International league in 1927, has been bought by the Crackers to play second. Johnny Jones, another International leaguer—from Rochester—will replace Manuel Cusato at short. Walter Gillett, one of the best third basemen Atlanta has had in quite some time, will be back.

New Centerfield.

There in the outfield will probably be Frankie Zoeller in left, Paul Strand, from Portland, of the Pacific Coast loop, in center, and Billy Rhiel, who played at second base with the Crackers last year, in right.

John Brock has been retained as No. 1 catcher. Mr. Spiller is looking for another one. As for pitchers there are Mr. Gearin, just purchased, Graham, from Portland, of the Eastern league; Russell Pence, of Dallas, for whom the Crackers traded Cliff Mar; Art Olson and Tom Rogers from last year's team. The Crackers are looking for more pitchers and hope to have them shortly.

Of course, it's a long time until the opening of the season, and the league does always "listen well." All of the newcomers may be old, broken-down players, or they may be good ones. It is hoped which would permit will regulate amateur boxing and still exclude "the plague of commercialized, unsportsmanlike prize fighting."

Charles A. Ornstein, secretary of the South Atlantic Amateur Athletic union, after a conference with Mr. Pickett, announced that the latter would endorse any change in the district law which would permit will regulate amateur boxing and still exclude "the plague of commercialized, unsportsmanlike prize fighting."

Florida State Loop Meets in January

Orlando, Fla., December 24.—(P.)—Club owners of the Florida State Baseball league will meet in annual session here January 17, to elect a president, draw up a schedule and decide what changes in the league will be made in the circuit next season. J. B. Asher, president, announced.

One of the principal business matters to come before the club owners will be the introduction of claims against the Tampa club, which was purchased about the middle of last season by Charles B. Griener, owner of the Jacksonville club, and who declared he acted for H. Wolf, of St. Augustine. Wolf later denied the deal and the franchise reverted to the Florida State league, carrying claims of back salary for the players and other expenses.

Clubs which were in the circuit last year were Tampa, St. Petersburg, Sarasota, Sanford, Orlando and Miami.

Barney To Hurl First Minor Contest

Newark, N. J., December 24.—(P.)—Walter Johnson, the new manager of the Newark International League club, never has pitched in a minor league contest. He had signed a contract with Tacoma but did not report to that club, jumping right into the big time with the Senators, where he served for 20 years. Now that he is with Newark, he intends to hurl the first game for the Bears in the next campaign.

Epworth schedule for week of December 26:

Thursday, December 25. St. Mark vs. Valley (girls), 6:30. Cascade vs. Epworth (boys), 7. St. Paul Feds vs. Center Street (boys), 8:20.

Friday, December 26. Grant Park vs. Cascade (girls), 6:30. College Park vs. Druid Hills (boys), 7:00. Emory Nurses vs. Druid Hills (girls), 8:20. Emory vs. Trinity (boys), 8:50.

—

—

—

—

—

French Committee Sets Date for Davis Cup Finals

Final Round Held at Paris July 20, 21, 22

Play Will Be Held in New Stadium and on Hard Courts.

Paris, December 24.—(United News.)—The French Davis cup committee has completed practically all arrangements for the 1928 Davis cup play.

The committee fixed the finals definitely for July 20, 21, and 22.

The first round of the European zone must be finished by May 8; the second round, May 30; the third round, June 13; semi-finals, June 24, and the European zone finals must be decided by July 15.

The interzone final will be played July 20, 21, and 22.

President Doumergue, taking a leaf out of President Coolidge's book, will hold the draw for the Davis cup matches at the Elysee, the French white house, in the presence of diplomats on February 3.

Interest Aroused.

The switching of the Davis cup from Forest Hills to Paris has aroused interest in the trophy and most of the 32 Davis cup playing nations are expected to make their entries before Doumergue shakes the slips in a box.

Despite the fact that the French national championships and Wimbledon will take the cream off Europe's summer tennis season, the French federation expects the final round to draw thousands of sportsmen to Paris, especially if the United States meets France for the title.

If a mob comes, there will be an uncomfortable time. Work has been started on the stadium, just outside the Porte de St. Mandé, at the edge of Paris, where the finals will be played. But the stands will accommodate only 15,000 spectators, while matches will be a fair crowd for football matches here.

Play on Hard Courts.

For the first time, too, a Davis cup final will be played on hard courts. This is expected to give France a decided advantage. Another advantage for France is that her federation has chosen July for the tournament, rather than September.

Heretofore, it has been a hardship for France. Her players have been in top form for the national championships and for Wimbledon and then have gone stale. This year these important events will be over before August.

The Davis cup final had to be staged in July in order to pay its best of the month every year. At the end of that month every Parisian of importance leaves town for the mountains and the seashore.

Since France does not play the Davis cup, the United States will meet either Italy or England for the right to challenge France. If Germany can be readmitted, it may prove the best of the European contenders.

England's defeat by Denmark last year in the preliminary rounds was a shock to British officials. This year, with $175,000 to spend in benefiting tennis, British officials are hopeful of producing at least one player worthy of championship consideration.

Kidding Started Connell's Career in Pro Hockey

Ottawa, Ont., December 24.—(AP.)—Alex Connell, goalkeeper of the Ottawa Senators, world's professional hockey champions, broke into hockey and started on a career that led to stardom through the kidding remarks of a friend.

Connell, just out of short pants, never had played hockey and had no particular ambitions that way, though greatly interested in the game, when he joined the Canadian army and went to camp at Barrfield, Ont. A friend of Connell's told the manager of a Kingston amateur team that he had a fine goal keeper in tow from Ottawa, and because it afforded some relief from the monotony of camp life, Connell joined in the kidding, and went out to practice.

Was Poor Skater.

After amazing everybody by playing a game game despite the fact that he wasn't a good skater and had to prop himself against the posts, Connell was asked to sign a form to play in the Ontario Hockey Association, the leading Canadian amateur organization.

"I am not a goalkeeper," said Connell, "I never played a game in my life."

The manager ascribed the words to Connell's modesty, and insisted that Connell sign on the dotted line, which he did. After he had attracted attention to Ottawa he took his work seriously and began to study the opposing forwards and aimed to perfect himself.

The manager's rise was rapid and seven years after he stood in front of a net he was signed by T. P. Gorman, then manager of the Ottawa Senators, to succeed Clint Benedict as goalkeeper when Benedict was sold to the Montreal Maroons.

Flyweight Title Claimed by Trio

Fewer flyweights are fighting around with title claims as a result of the latest eliminations since the retirement of Fido Lakebe, but the situation is still a bit muddled.

At least three 112-pounders now have some official backing for their championship claims. Lately acquired are those of Corporal Ivy Schwartz, recognized as titleholder by the New York state athletic commission, and Frenchy Belanger, accorded similar distinction by the wide-flung national boxing association. But out on the Pacific coast it is difficult to convince fans that either has better claim to the title than Johnny McCoy, of El Paso, who won the California boxing commission's elimination tournament.

Legless Swimmer Tries Hell Gate And the Channel

New York, December 24.—Charles Zimny, stunt diver and golden gate channel swimmer, who "never had any legs and wouldn't know what to do with 'em if I did," has arrived in New York with the idea of a winter time dash across Hell Gate and a trip to England "for a crack at that channel over there."

Zimny, who is 34 years old, 3 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 185 pounds and has a wife and two children back home at Long Beach, Calif., drove across the country in a specially constructed automobile, "working the country fair racket with a high dive and pictures."

An extension clutch pedal and a hand brake solve his automotive locomotion problem and he gets around New York streets and office buildings on a single roller skate. He swims "a regular Australian crawl—without the kick," and crossed the Golden Gate channel in 52 minutes flat. He dives from practically any stunt height, has stayed under water, he says, for 4 minutes and 17 seconds, rides a surf board standing on the thumb and index finger of his hands and plays golf by perching on a chair to get height for his swing. He can drive 125 yards.

His idea of a mid-winter swim across the wide part of Hell Gate is prompted by a desire to show he is in earnest about his proposed trip to England next spring for an attempt at swimming the channel.

Young Griffio Never Forgot to Duck Blow

Young Griffio, who died in New York a few days ago, after living for years in rags and poverty, was once the cleverest boxer in the world. They've been telling stories about Griffio's uncanny skill since the early nineties, when he first appeared in America after "cleaning up" all rivals in the Antipodes. Griffio died at the age of 56. The marvel is that he lived so long, for he was a physical wreck, from hard drinking and wild dissipation, 30 years ago. Poor Griffio never knew anything but the art of boxing. And perhaps he didn't even know that. He seemed to box instinctively. He had the quickness of a cat—the instantaneous reflex action of a predatory animal rather than the slower thinking action of a human being.

In Australia Griffio won 40 or 50 fights with such ease that he was regarded as something of a ring wizard. He was a cheeky youngster and had unlimited self-confidence. Eventually he picked a barroom currawl with Dan Creedon, the cleverest middleweight in his part of the world, fought Creedon and nearly had his head knocked off. After that he was contented with meeting boxers in his own class, and there were few who could lay a glove on him.

Fought Toe to Toe.

Griffio beat the Belfast spider, cleverest of the clever, in eight rounds. He boxed a 25-round draw with the great featherweight champion, George Dixon; a 20-round draw with George Lavigne, lightweight champion and fully the equal of any man who ever held that title. He fought a 10-round draw with Joe Gans, who was afterward lightweight champion and whose cleverness and hitting power are traditional. He lost 10 rounds to Jack Dempsey, who was a marvel in the bare fist days, and who retired, undefeated, as lightweight champion. Griffio beat Owen Zeigler, Jack Dempsey's first opponent, in five rounds.

Young Griffio had an amusing barroom trick. He'd spread a handkerchief on the floor and offer to bet anybody the drinks that he could stand flat-footed on the handkerchief and let anyone in the crowd punch at his face for a minute, without being hit once. Someone always took the bet, and Griffio, who was a boxer and a clown, would duck and weave and avoid all blows. It's traditional that Griffio once won this bet from Kid McCoy, who was as crafty and shifty as Griffio himself.

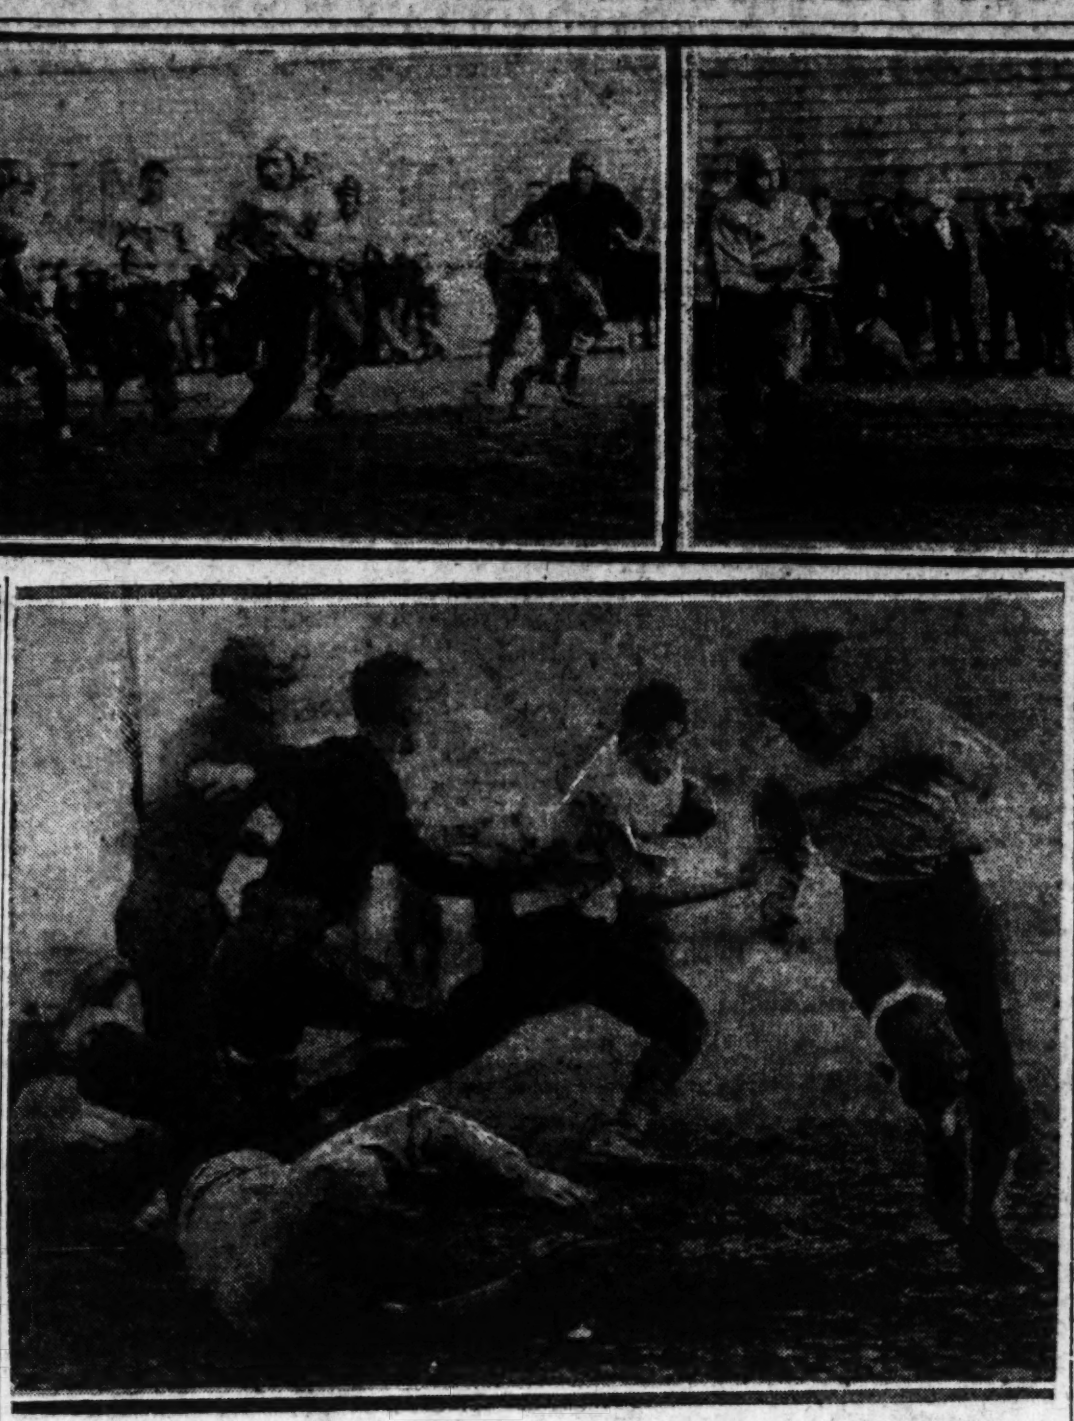

Griffio Needed a Manager.

Griffio was entirely illiterate, and he would be absolutely novelty among modern fighters, because he didn't know how to count money. After one of his fights his manager waited for Griffio in the box office, where he took Griffio's percentage of the gate receipts and divided it skillfully into two piles of greenbacks. One pile was made up of $1,000 in large bills. A thicker pile was composed of $300 in one-dollar bills. Griffio won his fight and ran to the box office, in the lights, to collect.

"I've divided it into your share and my share," said the manager.

"This is mine," yelled Griffio, seizing the fat roll of one-dollar bills and dashing out through the door into the street. Still in his tighty Griffo ran into the nearest saloon, where "the gang" was waiting for him. It was always free drink night when Griffio won a fight. By morning the roll of dollar bills was spent, and Griffio hunted up his manager to borrow some more. It never occurred to him that he had spent his share. He thought it was a great joke on his manager that he borrowed part of the managerial bank roll.

WHEN THE SANDLOTTERS GOT GOING

Photos by George Cornett, Staff Photographer.

Pictured herewith are scenes from the three games staged by the Sandlot league of Atlanta on Grant field Friday afternoon. During the course of the afternoon the North Side Bulldogs took unto themselves the championship of the 125-pound class by trouncing the Maddox Park Rats, 13 to 0. At the upper left Charlie Howard, of the Rinky Dinko, is getting started for a substantial gain. At the right is Sam Pagan, of the championship Bulldogs, fighting his way around and for a gain. Max Hall, of the Polecats, is shown at the bottom, with full steam ahead and going for a large-sized number of yards.

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Continued from Page One.

of The Constitution. Eight months can either seem an eternity or a fleeting moment.

Through his association with the actors in the great sport drama that yearly unfolds itself in this city, through the friendships made with many of those who make up the audience of that drama and through his love of sports those eight months seem but a fleeting memory.

But it is a memory that will live long as one of the happiest in his topsy-turvy life and one which he truly and sincerely hopes will have many an encore in the years to come. For he loves Georgia, he loves Georgia people, he loves Georgia sports, and, after all, what is better than to live and die amid such surroundings.

The season's best and richest greetings.

—WHITNER CARY.

While everybody is wishing everybody happiness, we would like to put in a few good words of Christmas cheer. Every year the folks hand out the good wishes but we would like to be original and wish all an honest-to-goodness merry Christmas and a new year as full of happiness as the 1927 sport year was of upsets.

May all your favorites come through in 1928 and may you enjoy every one of the 365 days of next year as you did the old turkey dinner.

CLARENCE NIXON.

Another year—we have Christmas, that joyous season when all the world is at its brightest. The sports department has "cussed and fussed" for the past 365 days in the hope that you might have a brighter spot in your home. Now that we have the Christmas "spirit" within us, we wish you these greetings:

May you have a better Christmas than you ever had before and may the New Year bring you nothing but health, wealth and happiness.

SAM COX.

Bears Preparing For Penn Passes

Berkeley, Cal., December 24.—(AP.)—Contrasting football tactics are expected to clash in the Pennsylvania-California game here December 31.

The Quakers bewildered Cornell, Harvard and other eastern opponents with a great aerial bombardment in their previous games, while California relied on old-fashioned aggressiveness and line smashing.

To cope with the deadly Murphy-to-Shoher passing combination, Coach Nibb Price has concentrated on a specially-developed defense. If the California campus rumor has it, the California mentor may vary his own attack with a retaliatory drive through the air—a complete departure from the "Golden Bears" style of play this season.

This is the second time the two institutions have met. Pennsylvania comes west seeking satisfaction for a 14 to 0 drubbing administered by California in 1925.

Griffio used to bet that he'd go through a fight without being hit and that he'd win by tapping the other fellow on the left eye. Kid McCoy admitted Griffio's clever boxing and didn't hesitate to pick up Griffio's tricks. Just as he picked up tricks from Fitzsimmons and other fighters. On the train going to Philadelphia to fight Kid Carter, McCoy remarked: "I'm going to show Carter up. I won't hit him anywhere but on the left eye. Watch me."

MANY BRIGHT SPOTS OF 1927 RECALLED AS YEAR PASSES OUT

BY WHITNER CARY.

The sport thrills of 1927. As a year that will go down in sport history as one furnishing more unvarnished drama than any of its predecessors is about to make its final curtain call it is rather interesting to wander backward and pick out from one's memory the incidents during the past twelve months that stand out in boldest relief. What were the biggest thrills? What incidents witnessed during that hectic span have impressed themselves most indelibly on your mind?

To this writer, who has been fortunate enough to witness many of the leading sport dramas of the past 12 months, the three that stand out in boldest relief are the great stand made by the Georgia team in the Yale bowl during the last ten minutes of that historic Yale-Georgia game, the 12-foot putt Bobby Jones sank on the 13th green at Minikahda in his first round match against Maurice McCarthey, and the finish of the Kentucky derby, when Whiskery, of the Harry Payne Whitney stable, collared the tiring Jack in the stretch and then went on to catch and pass the fast-traveling Ommand in the final 50 yards.

There may have been greater thrills dashed out by Fate during the mad parade of 1927, but one would have to cover considerable territory to match any more excitement than was packed into those three momentous incidents.

Thrilling Moments.

When old football fans who witnessed the Yale-Georgia game more as spectators than participants, state after state that the last quarter was the most exciting period they ever witnessed and that they got more real thrills out of it than at any time in their career, one can get some idea of the feelings experienced by a southerner and a Georgia supporter.

For many long weary years the Georgia team had invaded the Yale bowl with high hopes only to emerge with defeat as its portion. Then came October 8, 1927, and the opening chapter began. As that day dawned Georgia was leading Yale 14 to 0, with the best chance of taking the Blue scalp that had ever presented itself.

Then came those last 15 minutes of concentrated action. Fifteen minutes which saw Yale make four drives to within the shadows of the Georgia goal posts. Which saw the Blue team hold one on its one-yard line, and which saw the final Yale thrust miss by a margin which consisted of Scott, the Blue end, having one foot out of the end zone when he caught the accurate pass thrown by Caldwell. A pass that had it been completed would have beaten Georgia.

But it was not to be. The 15 minutes ended with the Georgia rout. Caldwell, the great Yale back who was later declared ineligible against Princeton and Harvard, carry the ball no less than 26 times. It was just one suspense after another. Georgia would turn aside one Yale drive only to see another begin. It was no wonder that when a mercifully ended the hostilities the Georgia rooters were fit inmates to the nearest bug house.

That Wonderful Putt.

A more quiet, but none the less tense situation took place a few weeks later on the green of the 13th hole at Minikahda. As everyone knows the American amateur golf championship calls for the first two holes to be played over the 18-hole route. After that 36 holes are called for. As everyone entered in a national championship is quite capable of that putt, the 13th hole is a matter of life and death to the player.

As Bobby Jones faced Maurice McCarthey, a fine young player from Long Island, on the first of these 18-hole holes, Jones was far below the form he later exhibited in that tournament. In fact, Bobby was considerably below his usual practice form. McCarthey, a golfer no one can trifle with, being opposed to Jones and being in that enviable position where a licking would mean nothing and a victory would mean everything, he would mean everything. The New York boy proceeded to shoot the works.

As Bobby was badly off, the golf of young McCarthey bore rich results. So rich were the dividends that when the two players reached the 13th green Bobby was faced with the problem of sinking a 12-foot side hill putt or go into the embarrassing position of being two down with but five holes left to play. The sinking of that putt meant either defeat or a fighting chance to stay in the running. For even if he sank it he would still be two down. This writer has never forgotten the scene around that 13th green when 3,000 spectators were as silent as the great trees that guard the fairways. There were few fleeting moments, as Bobby carefully studied the green, and then large gallery had ample opportunity to grasp the full significance of the situation. Would Bobby come through and remain in the fight, or would that putt fall to go down? As all knew it did go down.

Big Bob Jones, who was at the side of the green when the little white putt found the bottom of the cup, later told this writer that of all shots Bobby had ever made he considered that putt his greatest shot. There are many others in the career of America's greatest golfer that take high place, but for importance none are greater than that 12-footer that kept him in the 1927 hunt. For golf never had the ability to rise to the occasion when the need is greatest that shot has no equal. A breeze, a drive or an iron

TEX' BACKERS BENT ON GOOD WILL MOVE

BY ALAN J. GOULD.

Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, December 24.—(AP.)—Tex Rickard's more or less well-known "600 millionaires," or rather the guiding spirits among them, seem determined on a campaign of "good will" as an indirect method of bolstering the none too stable foundations of the prize ring.

By this means, perhaps, the wealthy member of the Madison Square Garden club hopes to take the minds of boxing fanatics off sundry events of the past season, which included a succession of unsatisfactory decisions, cries of "fair or foul" and reports of gambling coups that, to close ring observers, boded no good for the future of boxing, especially in New York.

One of the latest manifestations of the "uplift" movement in the new garden place is the conspicuous support aroused by the "600 millionaires" for amateur boxing, especially in financing the trip of the Olympic team to Amsterdam next year.

Emphasis is laid upon this to offset the impression that the garden shareholders are anything but interested in the sport which is scheduled as they are in the development and welfare of the many art.

To further demonstrate this interest in the Simon-pure as well as the "pro," the garden club will be hosts to "Big Bill" Tilden, Bobby Jones and Johnnie Walker, who will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on January 4.

Russia Makes Own Olympics

Soviet athletes, who go in for the tougher varieties of sport such as cross-country running and the tug-o-war, are training hard for Russia's own Olympiad which is scheduled as a counter-attraction to the regular Olympic games at Amsterdam this summer.

Six hundred representatives of workers' sport organizations abroad are to be invited and 1,500 Russian athletes will compete in this "Spartakiade," as it is called. It will be held at Moscow from August 12 to 22.

A "Winter Spartakiade" to correspond to the winter Olympics at St. Moritz, Switzerland, also will be held here starting February 8. Skiing and skating will be the principal sports and the athletes also intend sending 100 of their best skaters to Norway this winter for the Norwegian national holiday.

Individual accomplishments for its own sake is not favored by Soviet sport authorities and "collective sports" predominate in the list of events.

Distance running, cross-country and rifle-shooting are especially favored as means of keeping fit and prepared for war.

Can be made with enough force to take off some of the strain in a way, but when one is confronted with only 12 feet and the occasion calls for the delicate putting touch, there can be no greater strain. When on that putt depends one's hopes of staying in a championship and when 3,000 are watching, the tension must be something beyond imagination.

Whiskery Ramps Home.

Turning from this more or less disguised field of torture, one finds himself on top of the grandstand at Churchill Downs with 10,000 wide-eyed racing fanatics making the Kentucky air resound with yells only known to race track followers. The stretch has been reached. Jack, who was off winging at the start of that mile and a quarter journey, is fast tiring. (Demand is about to take command. Whiskery, the pride of the Whitney stable, is in fourth position. And then the stretch drive! A drive that saw Ommand take command, that saw Whiskery, under the able handling of McAttee, catch the faltering Jack and then in a heroic burst of speed, overhaul the speeding Ommand right in front of the grandstand and go on to win by a scant half length in the final 50 yards.

A good horse race will always make the blood course faster. But let it be such as that one, with such a prize at stake and such a finish and one gets one of those priceless thrills that will always be a prized possession.

Yes, 1927 may have produced great thrills, but this writer will stake those three mentioned against any other three that can be brought forward.

Many Good Players Ruin Al-Americans

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

The annual spasm of All-American football selections is nearly over. Everyone has selected his All-American team. Remains only the interesting rioting between partisans who believe the selections made in other parts of the country are all wrong and intended as a personal insult and injury to his local grid hero. In every college in the land there is at least one player who is spoken of as the real All-American, whether biased "experts" have named him or not. He is All-American in big black print in all the local papers. We couldn't be happy without him. And in fact why should anyone, in any one section who can't have seen all the All-Americans in all our different colleges, to form a personal unbiased opinion, arbitrarily name 11 men and say: "These are the best we have; the greatest 11 men of the American gridiron in 1927? Let us all look at what games we can reach, and be happy in believing that we are seeing the real stars of the game. We can do it anyhow, whether we have expert permission or not.

Oh, yes, I've picked All-American teams in the past. But it was nothing but a game. Not so many great stars to choose from. And the few big teams carried all the favor. It was that we had to do some talk guessing.

And today, with football becoming so that small college teams never heard of outside their own territory and a problem better than the great teams of tradition, where there are a hundred teams with one or two or three players who would be stars in any company—picking an All-American has become merely a game. For doing a little guessing scattering the selections as widely as possible, and trying to please as many people as possible.

Too Many Good Players.

Take that one opinion of center, for instance. In the far west, everybody says that Bettencourt, of St. Mary's, a small college with a great football team, is incomparably the finest center ever seen—a gridiron. Along the Pacific slope they call out the vigilance committee to take care of the nervous center, another champion. And Bettencourt is great. He's probably the roviest of all the roving centers of the year. He does everything that a center can do. He can go half way across the country and there's Reitsch, of Illinois, House, of Chicago, and on the Atlantic slope he has rivalled by the great Reitsch, of Stanford, is regarded as another Nevins, if not more so. There is a movement on to call for a referendum on the matter of whether Bettencourt should be named ahead of Hoffman or not, or whether Miles, of Princeton, or Tesreau, of Washington, or even a small class, that boy from Teaneck, who is another classmate of his uncle, Jeff Tesreau, is a whole of a fullback. The Washington team is a team of giants, but when Tesreau was crippled by a broken U. S. C. men in the first play of the Washington-U. S. C. game the contest practically ended right there.

Drury, of Southern California, has earned first place among the year's quarterbacks, unless you favor Cagle, of the Texas team, who is half a hundred others who deserve a mention. Oosterbaan, Michigan end, is harder to overlook than the Washington moment. After that the picking becomes rather involved. There are no poor football players.

How can it be any other way, when every college has a star? When to hunt through the prep schools for stars as in former years, has a score of prep school stars struggling for each position? Some colleges are talking about having two first stringers to do the traveling and one to play at home. No other way to give the lights a chance to get into the game.

The death of Young Griffio brings to mind the many great boxers of only a few years ago who have slipped into history. Fitzsimmons, Fitzsimmons, world-famed heavyweights are memories. Ketchel, marvel of the middleweights, Greb, Tiger Flowers, Joe Gans, and others, who were champions, are now forgotten. These were names to draw crowds in the old days. We may see their equals, never their successors, as fighting men. The lightweights seem to be carrying these days, Jack McAuliffe, who was champion in the bare fist, London prize ring days, and who retired with the title is still alive and hearty. So are the great Kid Lavigne, and Frank Erne, Battling Nelson and Benny Leonard. Volgaire is in a sanitarium. Rickard, who is still trying to try to "come back" and win the junior welterweight crown.

Of the big men Corbett looks as young as a 20-year-old man. Jeffries is rugged and appears to be a hundred years, like some of his ancestral relatives. Johnson still has his golden rule, although that's about all the gold he has left.

Tommy Burns is managing a heavy-weight fighter and Jess Willard is still a contender. Dempsey plans another campaign against Tommy Ryan. Aside from all these I think Tommy Ryan, former middleweight champion, looks younger and most prosperous. Ryan seemed up a fortune in boxing and real estate, is living on a large income and enjoying life sitting at the riopides and seeing the youngsters do as he did.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

Claims World's Record.

An athlete from distant Natal is laying claim to the world's broad jump record. The 22-year-old native recently is reported to have leaped 26 feet 9 inches.

Red Sox Start Early.

Among the first of the big league baseball teams to swing into action will be the Boston Red Sox, who will go into training at Bradenton, Fla., late in February.

Tunney Plays Golf.

Gene Tunney, the world's heavyweight champion of the ring, is taking a little light exercise in Florida this winter. He is to be seen frequently rounding the golf courses at Miami.

HOLIDAY EXCURSION FARES

Greatly reduced rates to stations in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. The West Point Route. (Adv.)

Football Holds Sport Spotlight During Coming Week

Rules Body Will Meet In New York

Four Intersectional and All-Star Clashes Hold Boards on Pacific Coast.

New York, December 24.—(United News.)—Football returns for a brief curtain call next week.

The American Football Coaches' association holds its sixth annual meeting at the Hotel Astor on Friday, and the nation's leading gridiron instructors will discuss the future of the great American game.

Out on the Pacific coast many of the nation's leading gridiron stars will officially close the 1927 season with four intersectional battles.

"Although the coast's colorful post-season assortment of 1927 football will draw the nation's attention, the important events will take place in a ballroom at the Astor hotel where the rules committee will draw up the playing code for 1928.

On the coast an all-Pacific coast team meets an all-Pacific coast team at Los Angeles on December 26. Also the east-west game takes place at San Francisco.

Penn and California.

In the last day of the year Pennsylvania plays California at Berkeley in a memorial game dedicated to the memory of the late Andy Smith. The annual tournament of reeds game at Pasadena on January 2 will find Stanford and Pittsburgh pitted against each other.

The football meeting this year will be more of an open forum than heretofore. Answering the criticism of the coaches who thought that there was not enough discussion and interchange of football ideas, technique and methods, President William H. Covell has arranged an attractive program this year.

Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, will bring his blackboard to town and illustrate why he thinks the rules as they now stand are not typical of the American game of football. Rockne's subject is "Rules," and there is none other on which the sharp-tongued orator-coach waxes more eloquent. Rockne also will talk on "Defense for the Forward Pass."

Bill Roper of Princeton, will talk on "Quarterback Strategy and the Problems of Scoring Inside the 10-Yard Line."

Glimore Gil Speaks.

Glimore Gil, of Cornell, will speak on "The Complication of the New Game." It's Gil's contention that the game would be better off without the lateral pass, shift, huddle and other complicated plays.

Fielding Yost, of Michigan, will talk on "Ethics."

Other speakers and their subjects follow:

Major Frank Cavanaugh, of Fordham, "Officials."

Dr. John Wilce, of Ohio State, "The Press."

Dana X. Bible, of Texas A. and M., "Principal Formations and Style of Play in the Southwest."

Clark Shaugnessy, of Loyola, New Orleans, "Football in the South."

Hugo Bezdek, of Penn State, "Stabilizing."

Dr. T. K. Richards, of Harvard, "Football From the Doctor's Point of View."

Moving pictures of some of the leading games will be shown. Dr. Robert Z. Zupke, of Illinois, will deliver some of his pungent criticisms. Major John L. Griffith, of the western conference, also will speak.

Thousands of Miles of KEEN SPORT

There are thousands of miles of keen sport ahead of you next spring if you own an Indian Motorcycle. Karoll new in our Club Purchase Plan. One dollar is all it costs to start.

Indian Motorcycles

Indian Sales Company 209 Whitehall Street Atlanta, Ga.

Sport Review of 1927

BY NORMAN E. BROWN.

His Honor, King Pigskin, Grabbed Spotlight in November

FOOTBALL held the boards in November, at least over every week-end—and how!

The opening Saturday witnessed two titanic battles—one between Notre Dame and Minnesota at South Bend and the other between Pitt and W. and J. in the east.

Notre Dame was the heavy favorite in the pre-game dope. The teams fought it out to a 7 to 7 tie. The game was played in the mud.

Pitt and W. and J. had equal claims with two or three other unbeaten eleven, on eastern, if not national, honors, when they met. The game ended a scoreless tie. It proved to be a poorly played game in many respects, however.

The following week saw Notre Dame's hopes of defeating the branches of Uncle Sam's service checked by the advance of the Army. The soldier boys rode rough shod over Rockne's cohorts, 18 to 0. The Navy, however, took a beating at the hands of Michigan, 27 to 12.

The west coast was thrilled with the unexpected defeat handed Stanford, Pacific coast leaders, by Santa Clara, 13 to 0.

Yale defeated Princeton despite the loss of Bruce Caldwell, outstanding star of the Eli team, barred from varsity sports because he had played in two football games as a freshman at Brown university.

The third Saturday saw Harvard's colors dragged in the dust as per usual by Yale, 10 to 0. Illinois clinched the western conference title by defeating Ohio State university.

The Missouri Valley conference adherents were startled by the victory of the Kansas Jayhawkers over Missouri university. The victory prevented Missouri from romping away with the conference title for the third time in four years. The score was 14 to 7.

This same week-end saw some 54 colleges throughout the country clamoring for new coaches on the basis of the week-end and average for the year. This despite the fact that victory in football is referred to as incidental in its importance by many college heads.

Then came Thanksgiving day and the spirit of the holiday season to everybody but Agil Dobie, mournful Cornell coach. Pennsylvania, trounced the Red team, 35 to 0, to celebrate the holiday—the worst trouncing a Cornell team ever has taken under Dobie. The undefeated Pitt team trounced Penn State, 30 to 0. Gibby Welch running wild for Pitt. Georgia, headed for a leg of the national title, defeated Alabama, but of its foe he blocked Morley Drury's attempt to boot a goal after touchdown.

California claimed later that a play scored as a touchdown should have been scored a safety, which would have given the coast team an 8 to 7 victory. Notre Dame defeated the same team a year ago on the coast, 18 to 12.

The football season generally came to an end November 23 with Yale, Georgia, Army, Notre Dame, Minnesota, Princeton, University of California, Nebraska, Dartmouth, Illinois, Texas Aggies and W. and J. all rated as great teams. Take your choice.

Baseball broke into the sport pages during the month.

Kenes S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland ball club, was named president of the American league to succeed E. W. Johnson, who resigned since the league's inception.

Three new major league pilots were named. Jack Lester, coach at Boston college, was chosen to succeed Dave Bancroft as manager of the Braves. Billy McKee, aide to Bob O'Farrell, Cardinal pilot last year, was named to succeed him.

He played a championship course in California in a par 72. With his fine traffic signals and his machine, he finished seven—no, nine. Here's one I saved for Ed Barrow to prove it.

The Babe has made known he is an excellent auto driver. He doesn't fear traffic signals and if his machine doesn't stop along at 76 miles per hour, the driver is restless.

"Say, I'm in great shape," the Bambino went on. "I'm down to 225 pounds, which is 11 pounds less than I scaled during last season."

Bridge Game.

On a train recently Babe was playing a three-spade bid while his opponents and his partner, Dutch Reuther, were ordering sandwiches for immediate delivery. The prospect of eating sidetracked Ruth from the cards and he was set two. Then he spoke his mind.

"How can I play three spades with you fellows yelling one Swiss cheese, two hearts, four ham and eggs?" he demanded.

As for Ruth's golf, well—he couldn't say.

On account of the heavy duty many of the street car men will have during the coming week there will be no games on Tuesday night. The Power club will have a wrestling program on Friday night that will take the place of the basketball.

Pirates To Leave For Camp Feb. 20

Pittsburgh, Pa., December 24.—(AP) Battersmen of the Pittsburgh Pirates will leave Pittsburgh February 16 for Paso Robles, Calif., where they will start spring training February 20, it was announced today. The balance of the team will train February 24, arriving at Paso Robles four days later. The first general practice session will be held on February 28.

The Pirates will meet the San Francisco Seals and Missions in a series of eight practice games, beginning March 16. They will also play Oakland, of the Pacific Coast league, and at Los Angeles meet the Chicago Nationals in a four-game series. The Pirates' trip also includes games with San Antonio, Detroit Tigers at Dallas, Texas, and Memphis, of the Southern association.

N. Y. Poetess Wins Prize.

A New York poet, Molly Anderson Haley, won the prize in the Forum magazine's poetry contest of 1927 for the best translation of Paul Claudel's "L'Enfant Jesus de Prague."

The French ambassador, M. Claudel, himself, selected this poem from among his works and Miss Haley has handled it with exquisite gentleness.

Miss Haley's translation, along with the five next best translations, appear in the January number of the Forum.

GRID APPEAL BOARDSOUGHT BY OSTERGREN

Boston, December 24.—(AP)—Formation of a board of appeal to which colleges can refer for rulings on errors in football decisions will be asked at the Football Coaches association meeting in New York next week by Fred Ostergren, St. Bonaventure coach.

A ruling in a game between St. Bonaventure and Niagara caused a change in the referee's point.

On the play in question Niagara blocked a St. Bonaventure punt and recovered out of bounds and beyond by a Cleveland syndicate, headed by Alva Bradley and including the Van Sweringen brothers, railroad magnates.

Hazen Cuyler, Pirate outfielder star, the benching of whom had drawn a storm of criticism on Manager Double Bush's head, was traded to the Cubs for infielder Sparky Adams and Outfielder Pete Scott.

Walter Hagen gave the golf fans their last real model of the year by winning the national pro title for the fourth time in succession and the fifth time all told. He defeated Joe Turnesa in the finals by the narrow margin of one up, but Turnesa had led him to the last six holes of the match. King Walter defeated Tommy Armour, national open champion, in the quarter final and at Epsom in the semi, playing marvellous golf.

"My own personal opinion," declared the St. Bonaventure coach, "is that the mistake in rules should stand and I agree with coaches who say that a score, legal or not legal, influences the play that follows it and determines strategy and frame of mind of players. But there should be a ruling to decide the course to be followed and I intend to bring up the matter at the coaches' meeting next week and ask such a board of appeal to be designated, its decision to stand."

Mickey Walker, middleweight champion, finished boxing fans something better than a fight by stepping into the light heavyweight ranks to knock out Mike McGuire in less than a round early in the month and outpoint Paul Benjamins later.

Tiger Flowers, first colored middleweight champion, died following an operation to remove a growth over his eye. Flowers, a patient outside the ring, was a picturesque and popular figure in it.

Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns found themselves all dressed up in legal attire and no place to go when Kearns' action to collect a third of Dempsey's earnings drew a decision of "non suit" from the judge at Newark, N. J. Both claimed a victory.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Baseball's "hot stove league" gossip has turned up a new suggestion—that Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker may wind up their careers by playing a season together with the St. Louis Browns, now in process of reorganization.

Some observers point out that the acquisition by the Browns of Lou Gehrig and Heinie Manush from the Tigers helps provide a congenial setting for Ty, who liked and admired both of these players when he was manager of Detroit. The sale of Gehrig and Manush has lightened the St. Louis payroll so that it would not be too heavily drained by taking on such high-salaried veterans as Ty and Tris.

Before Cobb went with the Athletics last season there was considerable discussion of his going with the Browns out of friendship with Lou Hawley, the St. Louis manager. The same consideration might influence the Georgia Peach to try another campaign in the Grand Old League where the Browns have been at low ebb for the past five years.

Speaker, most critics feel, is less likely to go to St. Louis than Cobb. The "hot stove league" has not been so hot in Washington. In fact, Bucky Harris, pilot of the Senators, told newspapermen while here for the baseball meetings that he was not going to keep Speaker in the outer garden. The intimation is, however, that Tris must take a "salary cut" if he sticks with the Senators.

Columbia Without A 1928 Manager

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A few managerial changes seem about the only item under the "new" head in store for the South Atlantic Baseball association as talk of diamond play begins.

Gabby Street, who directed Columbia last summer, goes to Knoxville, Ray Kennedy, second baseman and manager of the Charlotte Hornets for several years, will be in the same role at Asheville while Heinie Groh, of major league fame, will be in the Queen City.

Mike Kelly will be at Spartanburg for the seventh season, while Frank Walker will be manager of the Greenville Spinners for the third year in a row. Joe Berger is taking the piloting job over at Augusta and Wilbur Wood will direct the play of Macon.

No manager has yet been announced for Columbia.

SCOTT LEAGUE

TEAM	W	L	Pct.
Atlanta and Lowry	8	0	1.000
Martin Nash	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000
Gov. H. H. H. H.	8	0	1.000

The third series of games in the Trammell Scott league has passed and only two teams remain with unblemished records—Atlanta and Lowry National bank and Martin Nash Motor company. To make up for them there are two others that have lost all games to date. They are the Pullman company and Cloutier Peabody. The upper division of this league is composed of four teams that are evenly matched and the lower division has four others that are just as evenly matched. There is some talk of giving a second division trophy as a consolation prize to the lower four.

Martin, of the Governor's Horse Guard, is high scorer in this league. He has a total of 30 points accumulated in three games in spite of the fact that his team was defeated once. Caldwell, of the Atlanta and Lowry team, comes second with 25 and Coffman, of the same team, third with 22. Cooper, of Martin-Nash, is next with 20.

Nine men have been removed from the games to date, making an average of less than one removal per game. "Red" Collins and Harry Robinson have been elected the referees in this league, with Mellman as an alternate. At a recent meeting it was decided to honor player passes of the City League at the door.

Dutch Build Olympic Stadium on Swamp

Philadelphia, December 24.—(AP)—Holland, the country where they have to build dikes to keep the ocean out, has had to reclaim a worthless swamp to provide a site for the Olympic games of 1928 at Amsterdam.

Olympic Boxing Team Candidates Show at Dinner

New York, December 24.—(United News.)—Twelve candidates for a boxing team which will represent the United States in the Olympic games at Amsterdam next summer will appear in action at the "first annual world's champions' dinner" to be given by the Madison Square Garden club January 4.

James J. Bush, vice president of the Equitable Trust company, and chairman of the committee arranging the dinner, announced that his committee has inaugurated a drive in cooperation with the Amateur Athletic Union to raise a fund to defray expenses of the American boxing team at Amsterdam.

Bernard Gimbel already has contributed $500 and the "world's champions' dinner" committee has added $1,000.

Eight fans throughout the country are to be asked to contribute from 10 cents to $1 each. Some of the prospective candidates will box at the "world's champions' dinner" to show the wealthy guests present the type of youngsters they are asked to send to the Olympic games.

Five thousand piles from 40 to 50 feet in length were driven into the ground before any building or landscaping could be done. All these details have been taken care of in competent fashion by the Dutch people who know from experience how to combat the sea—perennial enemy to their low-lying land.

How well the Dutch have succeeded is shown in a word picture of the Olympic grounds received here by P. J. Groenendael, acting consul of the Netherlands in Philadelphia.

The 128-acre site which less than 12 months ago was swamp land now is a well-equipped ground for all kinds of athletics.

A stadium seating 40,000 persons is the principal structure and is 855 feet long and 535 feet wide. The football field in the center while around this will be tracks for foot-racing and bicycling.

A lawn tennis stadium larger than that at Wimbledon, England, is under way and a cricket ground also is being provided.

Special facilities for the world's newspaper correspondents include through telephonic service from the Olympic stadium to New York which will be maintained throughout the period of the games.

A tower 150 feet in height will overlook the grounds and while the games are on a column of smoke drifting towards the sky will notify the countryside to that effect.

The cost of the stadium was 2,000,000 guilders or $800,000, which is contributed by 1,000,000 per cent in voluntary subscriptions. The Dutch expect to accommodate 12,000 athletes from 30 or 40 nations.

Gene Tunney Ranked First by Popular Vote

Jack Dempsey Is Second in New York Sun's Annual Ranking With 513 Votes.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Boxing writers and critics have taken up the task of ranking the fighters for 1927 in advance of the annual selections made by Tex Rickard and established as something of a standard by the Madison Square Garden promoter.

Summing up today the results of a poll among 61 newspaper experts, the New York Sun discloses that Gene Tunney, king of the heavyweights, tops the leaders of all other classes in total votes. Out of a possible maximum of 610 Tunney received 608 votes. The Sun notes that one critic placed Jack Dempsey at the top of the heavyweight list, presumably on the theory that the "long count" at Chicago cost the ex-champion a victory. At other places the "dark menace," George Godfrey, first.

Others in "first ten" of the Sun's heavyweight ranking: Jack Dempsey, 513 votes; Jack Sharkey, 463; George Godfrey, 370; Tom Heeney, 318; Johnny Risko, 301; Jack Delaney, 247; Pauline Uscudun, 145; Knute Hansen, 62; and Chuck Wiggins, 36.

The first three, Tunney, Dempsey and Sharkey, are in the same order they occupied in the newspaper's 1926 poll.

Tod Morgan, junior lightweight titleholder, makes next to Tunney in total votes, polling 601 as compared with 465 for Joe Glick, who lost on a foul to Morgan in a recent title bout after outpointing the champion up to the fourteenth round.

Other recognized champions lead their divisions with the following total votes: Mickey Walker, middleweight, 591; Tommy Loughran, light heavyweight, 578; Sammy Mandell, lightweight, 568; Joe Dundee, welterweight, 563; only 13 more than his nearest rival, Ace Hudkins; Bud Taylor, bantamweight, 554.

The featherweight and flyweight divisions, which have no undisputed champions as the year draws to a close, remain tangled in the Sun's balloting. Tony Canzoneri, of New York, tops the featherweight list with 533 votes, but is closely pressed by Benay Bass, of Philadelphia, with 527.

Are Advertisers Honest?

Here is a story told by Roy S. Durstine, New York advertising man, in an article which appears in the January number of the Forum magazine, by way of proving the honesty of good advertising and replying to the strictures of Stuart Chase:

"Not so many years ago, an obscure copywriter was assigned the job of preparing some advertisements for a certain baby food. One reason for his selection was that there was a very new baby in his own home. He talked to a number of baby specialists. He visited public clinics. He read Dr. Holt's big book as well as the small one that was ruling his home just then. And finally, a little while around the mouth because he needed that job just then, he politely but flatly refused to write anything advocating that food for babies."

"Was he fired? Was he ground under the heel of his boss as Mr. Chase's working friends seem to be? Dr. Chapin, "that there is a dead line at 60, 60, 70, or even 80 as far as intellectual possibilities and usefulness are concerned, since this is entirely an individual matter."

Railbirds See Wise Move In Delaney Shift

Believe French Woodchopper Again Being Pushed Up Heavy List.

BY ALAN J. GOULD. (Associated Press Sports Editor.)

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Behind the sudden shift in management of the colorful, but erratic French Canadian fighter, Jack Delaney, the "wise ones" of boxing see unmistakable signs that the erstwhile "Empire of the North" will be pointed for one of the "big shots" of 1928.

This "big shot" might be a match with Jack Dempsey, a "natural" between two of the ring's hardest hitters. Or it might be an early season title match with Gene Tunney, whose trip to Florida hasn't caused any lapse in discussion of the champion's ballyhoo for two battles next year.

Brilliant one time and mediocre the next, Delaney has been one of the main attractions of the sport. He has been up and down the scale several times, but always has remained among the leading draw cards.

Picked as Champ.

A year ago Delaney was freely selected as the coming heavyweight champion, the man most likely to knock Tunney off the throne. Then he ran head-on into Jimmy Maloney late February, losing the decision and considerable prestige, regardless of the plea that he went into the fight with an injured hand and arm. For 1927, at least, Delaney's stock was on the downward slide, victory over Paulding on a foul and a knockout of Paul Benjamins at Chicago haven't sent it soaring to any extent.

If Delaney can shake off these tendencies of being an "in the ring" champion, the man most likely to leap to the head of the heavyweight contingent list. The door is wide open and a much improved boxer, but hardly measures up to Delaney in all-around skill. Johnny Risko is hardly more than a troublemaker. Few alarms and exorcisms will occur. Phil Scott, the British heavyweight, returns in an effort to extend his streak of remaining vertical in two successive American bouts.

Aggies Schedule Michigan State

Starkville, Miss., December 24.—(AP) An intercollegiate game with Michigan State college of football will be scheduled at Starkville, Miss., December 24, announced today by W. D. Chadwick, director of athletics.

The schedule follows:

September 29, Ouachita college at Starkville.

October 6, Tulane university at New Orleans.

October 13, University of Alabama at Starkville.

October 20, Louisiana State university at Jackson.

October 27, Mississippi State college at Lansing, Mich.

November 10, Georgia Tech at Auburn.

November 17, Auburn at Starkville.

Why Die?

Oster was all wrong when he suggested that efficiency ended at 60, according to Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin, writing in the January issue of the Forum magazine. To prove his point Dr. Chapin names a few of the old men who are of primary importance in the modern world—Henderson, 80; Clemenceau, 86; Earl Balfour, 89; Elihu Root, 82; Justice Holmes, 80; Charles M. Depew, 80; George F. Baker, 87; August Hecksher, past 70; Dr. W. W. Keen, approaching 90; Thomas A. Edison, 80.

"It is therefore untrue," concludes Dr. Chapin, "that there is a dead line at 60, 60, 70, or even 80 as far as intellectual possibilities and usefulness are concerned, since this is entirely an individual matter."

Everett Stupper, Inc.

536 Spring Street, N. W.

Wishes His Friends and Customers

A Merry Xmas and Happy New Year

A Merry Christmas

from Atlanta's Fashion Park Clothiers

Pollock & Berg

79-81 Peachtree Street

AUTO SHOW TICKET DEMAND IS HEAVY

Twenty-seven young women who are engaged in a contest to sell tickets to the Southeastern Automobile show, to be held at the auditorium January 23 through February 28, 1928, made their first report on sales Friday at the show's headquarters at the Ansley hotel, officials stating that indications point to heavy attendance.

The automobile show, slated to be the largest ever held in this section of the country, is sponsored by the Atlanta Automobile association. It will display the latest models of cars as well as innovations in every line of the automotive industry.

"All available floor space for the display of automobiles has been sold," it was stated Saturday by F. B. Seward, director, and R. H. Martin, general chairman. "In addition a good space has been contracted for in order that firms may display accessories of all kinds."

The young women engaged in the ticket selling contest were entertained last Tuesday night at the Ansley, with Len Credelle, chairman of the contest committee, in charge. Plans for the automobile show were explained as well as details of the contest. Tickets were distributed among the contestants, who have been chosen from different business houses throughout the city.

The show is awarding $500 in cash prizes to the first four best ticket sellers of the contest. In addition, each contestant is awarded 10 per cent of all the money collected on the sale of admission tickets. The tickets are 50 cents each, good any day.

Entrants in the contest follow: Mrs. Mary Allen, 107 Whiteford avenue, S. E.; Miss Sarah Claude Berger, 231 Gibson street; Mrs. Augusta Baker Bloodworth, 1145 Briarcliff place, N. E.; Miss Frances Ann Burns, 1109 West Peachtree street; Miss Aline Counts, 1130 Piedmont avenue, N. E.; Miss Annie Edwards, 820 West Peachtree; Mrs. J. D. Ennis, 831 Ponce de Leon avenue; Miss Mildred Harding, 1384 West Peachtree street; Miss Marchena Hilderbrand, 680 Spring street; Miss Margaret Housholder, 915 Capitol avenue, S. W.; Miss Thelma Huff, 1041 West Peachtree, N. E.; Miss Alma E. Jones, 1023 Ponce de Leon; Miss Eunice Jones, 306 Candler street, N. E.; Miss Jessie Mae Jones, 451 Glenwood avenue; Miss Sara Kendrick, 946 Drewry street; Mrs. C. William Kilgus, 2209 Ridgedale road; Miss Katherine King, 910 Ponce de Leon avenue; Miss Linnie Lankford, 800 Briarcliff road; Miss Agnes Lee, 250 Spring street, N. W.; Mrs. George A. Matson, Jr., 405 Arnold street, N. E.; Miss Sue Medlock, 815 Drewry street, N. E.; Mrs. A. L. Miller, 733 Park Circle; Miss Mae Reneau, 719 Spring street, N. W.; Mrs. Hazel R. Rixman, 182 Elizabeth street; Mrs. Mollie Tomlinson, 85 Roswell road; Miss Sarah Wade, 65 Moreland avenue, N. E.; Miss Mary Lee Webb, 305 Morgan street, East Lake.

NEW FIRE APPARATUS IS PLACED ON MARKET

Detroit, Mich., December 24.—Yearly fire losses in the United States are over $500,000,000 and a large proportion of all fires are in the urban or rural districts. In an effort to provide specially designed fire apparatus meeting the specific requirements of fire service in such communities and thus help to bring this loss down has been made between the American LaFrance and Foamite Corporation and the General Motors Truck company to place on the market medium-size, fire-fighting apparatus which will be known under the trade name of American-LaFrance-G. M. C.

The American-LaFrance-G. M. C. is specially designed for fire department requirements. The capacity will appeal particularly to the small communities where there is an urgent need for fire apparatus that can meet all the emergencies of a fire and still be well within the financial means of the community.

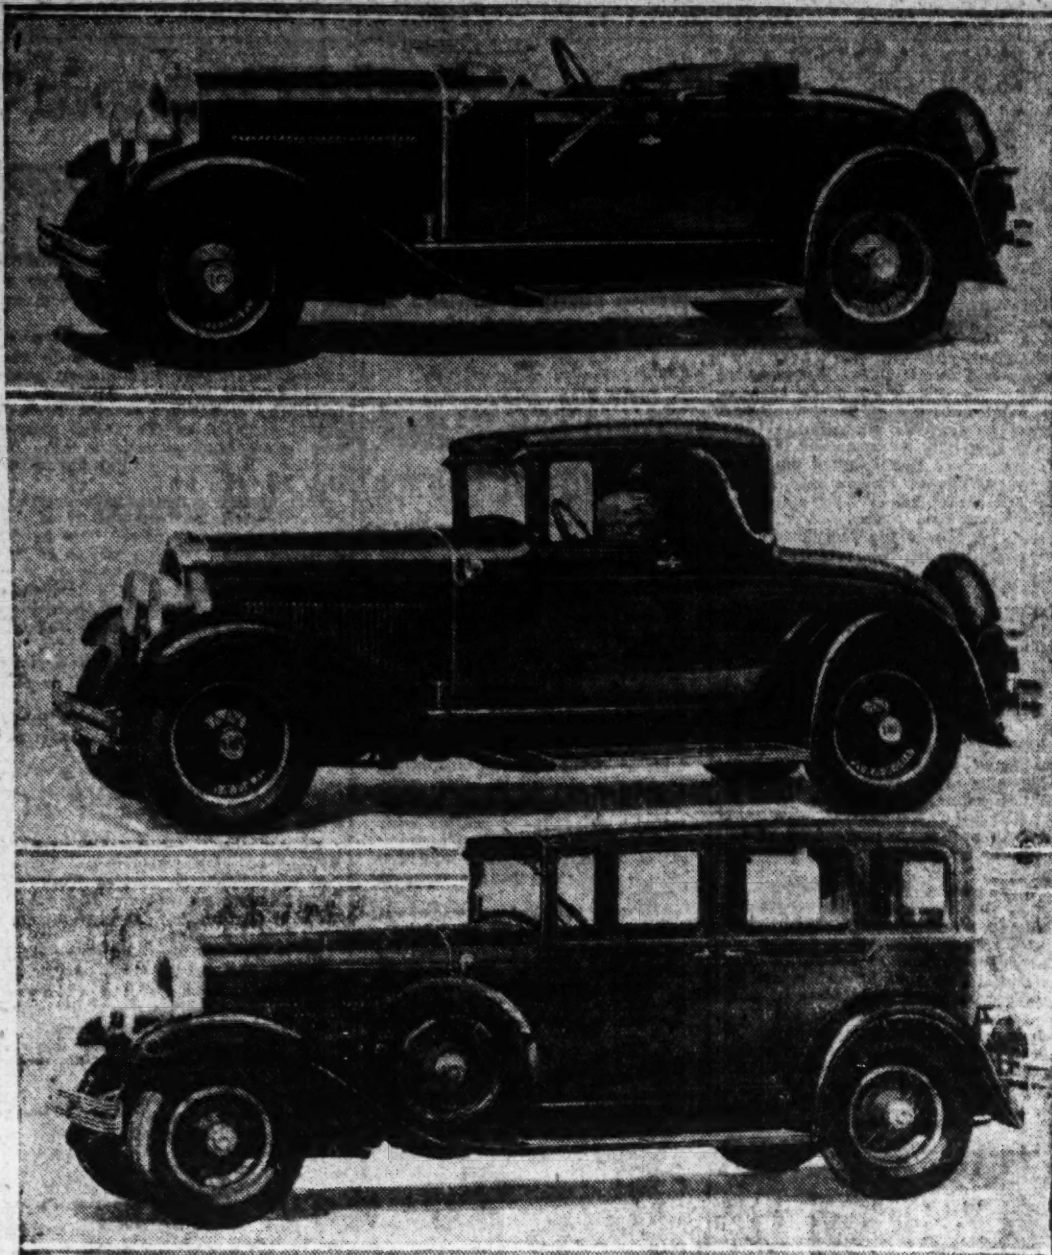

This arrangement permits communities to get up-to-date fire fighting equipment at a price practically any village can afford. The new American-LaFrance-G. M. C. fire apparatus is designed so that it will stand the strain and wear of fire fighting. It is no longer necessary to mount fire fighting equipment on commercial truck chassis which are not built for this type of emergency work.

The fire fighting equipment carried on these units is completely manufactured by American LaFrance. It is of the same standard as the American LaFrance equipment used in the large majority of American cities and is built with proper regard for quality in material, workmanship and design.

The pump is the American LaFrance rotary gear type and is of the design as that found in the heaviest and most fire apparatus. It has a capacity conservatively rated at 500 gallons per minute at 120 pound pump pressure. The chemical tanks, ladders and other fire fighting equipment, also are of the highest quality.

The chassis, manufactured by the

New Marmon Models To Appear Monday

Above are pictured three of the beautiful new Marmon "78" models which will go on display Monday at the Marmon Atlanta company on West Peachtree street.

Dodge Equips '128' Line With Four-Wheel Brakes

Dodge, Bros., Inc., is now equipping all passenger cars in its "128" line of four with the latest and most efficient type of steel-draulic (mechanical) four-wheel brakes, a company announcement today states. The cars comprising the "128" line are the de luxe sedan, the sedan, the coupe and the cabriolet roadster.

The new four-wheel brakes are of the expanding band type, operating mechanically on 12-inch drums. They can be operated with the lightest foot pressure and make possible absolutely uniform braking on all four wheels. Although they constitute a major improvement to Dodge Brothers four-cylinder line, they are being added at no extra cost to the purchaser. The de luxe sedan, in fact, is being reduced $25 and will hereafter sell at $950 f. o. b. Detroit. Prices of all other types with four-wheel brakes remain the same.

"Dodge Brothers four-cylinder line gains another important selling advantage through the addition of mechanical four-wheel brakes," according to local Dodge Brothers dealers in discussing the most recent improvement. "Since the company first introduced the line last summer, it has gained rapidly in popularity with the purchasers of moderate-priced cars. The slogan by which it was introduced—'America's fastest four'—has been one of the most potent reasons for the remarkable success which it has achieved, for with the public's recognition that Dodge Brothers four-cylinder cars are equal to all other cars in speed many of the light sixes, sales mounted steadily. The remarkable acceleration of the new cars—0 to 25 miles through gears in less than seven seconds—and their ability to make 25 miles to the gallon at 25 miles per hour have also proved substantial arguments in their favor."

"The addition of four-wheel brakes, making possible deceleration as notable as the mile-a-minute performance of which Dodge Brothers fours are capable strengthens the advantage which they have enjoyed in their field and should add greatly to their popularity next year."

New Pierce-Arrow Models Have Both Types of Lamps

Pierce-Arrow's famous fender headlamps appear in a new and modern design on the recently introduced series 81. While they retain the characteristics of the type which has been an exclusive patented feature for many years, the new lamps have been modeled so as to harmonize with the graceful airplane type fender.

The new fender headlamps carry with them small auxiliary helmet type lamps mounted midway between fender and radiator in an extremely graceful grouping.

General Motors Truck company is recommended and approved by both companies for use with fire pumps. It has been specially designed to withstand the severe strains of continuous pumping over many hours and represents the latest development. The six cylinder Buick motor in this chassis is exceedingly sturdy and in the pumping tests conducted under supervision of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, passes a continuous twelve hour test with a perfect record.

The American-LaFrance-G. M. C. fire apparatus will be sold exclusively by the American-LaFrance organization through their factory branches which are located in all principal cities.

In addition to their distinctive beauty, the Pierce-Arrow headlamps are a factor of safety, for they give a wider illumination, and act as a guide for more accurate steering, enabling drivers to see the edge of the pavement on a dark night. They also cause oncoming cars to give Pierce-Arrow a wider berth at night.

For those who prefer them, bracket lamps are offered as optional equipment at no added cost. The new Pierce-Arrow bracket headlamps used on the series 81 are made in a special design, the helmet type.

With announcement of its 1928 line of machines, the Indian Motorcycle company, of Springfield, Mass., terminates its policy of yearly models. From now on changes and improvements will be incorporated throughout the year as the occasion demands. This decision, according to the company's officials, has been reached after a careful investigation of the advantages and disadvantages of the past policy. It is felt that the change will be of great benefit to both consumer and motorcycle dealer.

Of the 40 new features announced in 1928 models, probably one of the most important is a perfected and most complete lubrication system. This system, as prompted by outstanding and recognized motorcycle engineers is that of "putting the oil where it belongs" under simplified engineering principles.

Ever since the American motorcycle made its official debut in this country, motorcycle lubrication has been under a constant stage of development and improvement so that today, it is believed, an acme of perfection has been reached.

By this new method of lubrication, oil is poured or drawn into the very vitals of the powerplant by means of hollow passages which conduct the lubricant to places where it is most needed. The oil is delivered directly to the main bearing of the motor and the whirling action of the main bearing throws oil over the entire interior of the engine, making for the most thorough lubrication. Separate oil from the bearings is thrown upward where it lubricates the cylinders, pistons and other parts. This oil then sinks to the motor base and is picked up by the fly wheels and further circulated throughout the motor.

Slays Wife, Shoots Self.
Norfolk, Neb., December 24.—(United News.)—Theodore Schlack, 50, shot and killed his wife here tonight with a revolver, and then shot and probably fatally wounded himself. The shooting was attributed to domestic trouble.

POSEY IS NAMED SERVICE MANAGER OF J. M. HARRISON

W. A. Posey, Jr., widely-known shop foreman, has been promoted to the position of service manager with J. M. Harrison & Co. Mr. Posey has the benefit of seven years' experience in automobile shop management, coming to this concern less than a year ago. By virtue of his ability and integrity he has gained the admiration of the concern and its service patrons.

W. A. POSEY, JR.

J. M. Harrison & Co., well-known used car dealers, have also in the past year gained a strong foothold in the new car field with the Chrysler line. In announcing their enlarged facilities for rendering greater service to both used and new car patrons they do so with the realization that any business succeeds only in proportion to the service rendered, officials state.

NINE RUMANIAN STUDENTS GIVEN TERMS IN PRISON

Bucharest, Rumania, December 24. (AP)—Nine students tried by a court-martial for theft and devastation during the anti-Jewish riots at Oradea Mare on December 6 have been sentenced variously to from ten days to five months in jail.

The senate of the Rumanian universities has announced that the students proved guilty of theft, profanation and devastation shall be expelled forever, while those found guilty of lesser offenses shall be expelled for one year.

Winter Is Here!

Make your open touring car or roadster as snug as a sedan with a Miller Winter Enclosure. Let us install one now. Then your car will be equipped for any weather. It will look lots better too. Phone, or stop by, for full details—this week. Don't wait.

A-C Miller & Co.
37 COURTLAND STREET N.E.
— WRECKED BOOBS RESULT IN RUIN — RUIN IN RUINING THINGS STRAIGHTENED
Phone WALSH 2991-2992
Established 1906

PROSPERITY ERA SEEN FOR MEXICO

That business conditions in Mexico are improving and that an era of prosperity is ahead for the republic is the opinion of James G. Shirley, general manager for Cia. Unida De Ventas, S. A., the company which distributes Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks throughout two-thirds of Mexico. Mr. Shirley has spent the past week conferring with the executives of Dodge Brothers, Inc., at the Detroit factory.

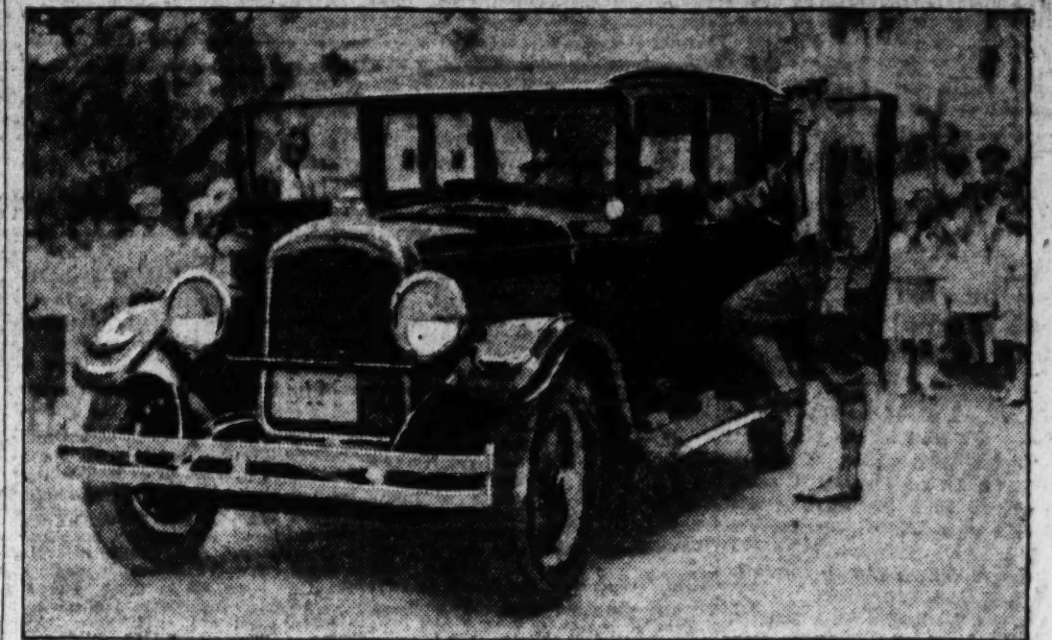

Good roads are being built in Mexico and the public is becoming more familiar with the value of automotive transportation, according to Mr. Shirley. In many instances railway and street transportation companies have substituted Dodge engines for mules or other power. Bus lines are springing up in many parts of the country and a constantly increasing tonnage is being carried on trucks.

Recently a Dodge Brothers car made the first transcontinental trip across the central part of Mexico in 85 hours, a non-stop run and thereby established a new accomplishment. The trip was a test of the stamina of the Dodge car and the endurance of the driver. It was heralded throughout the country and the performance greatly stimulated interest in this car.

Wilbur Carries Victim's Mother To Tragedy Scene

Providence, R. I., December 24.—(AP)—A mother's faith and sleepless vigil were rewarded this morning when Mrs. M. L. Stevens, of this city, started over the road by the side of Secretary of the Navy Curtis D. Wilbur, on their way to Provincetown, where

Pacific Fliers Praise Flying Cloud

After winging their way from San Francisco to Hawaii, two famous aviators, Ernie Smith and Emory Bronte, first civilians to conquer the Pacific, took particular delight in cruising around Honolulu in a Reo Flying Cloud, named in honor of the finest, fastest clipper ship that ever sailed the seven seas and holder of the record trip from New York around the Horn to San Francisco.

Carried to world-wide fame by the mechanical perfection of their sturdy plane, the two noted aviators were quick to recognize the same perfection in the Reo Flying Cloud and expressed their admiration for the car's ability by stating that the Flying Cloud performed with exceptional precision and was the acme of automobile comfort.

The photograph above shows the Pacific birdmen about to enter the Reo Flying Cloud for a spin around Honolulu.

her son, Joseph L. Stevens, lies perhaps dead in the torpedo chamber of the sunken submarine S-4.

Mrs. Stevens, who had spent the entire night alone in the deserted waiting room of the Union station here, was the first person to greet

Secretary Wilbur and Admiral Charles

F. Hughes as they alighted from the Everglades express, which arrived here from Washington at 7 o'clock.

"I am Joe Stevens' mother," she informed Secretary Wilbur. The head of the navy department said nothing, but took her gently by the arm.

"I came to ask you to take me with you to Provincetown," she announced.

"That can be arranged," the secretary assured her.

Secretary Wilbur, Admiral Hughes and Mrs. Stevens left Providence in an automobile at 7:35.

Four Wheel Brakes FOR AMERICA'S FASTEST FOUR

DODGE BROTHERS ADD NEW EQUIPMENT AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE

Four-wheel brakes of the latest and most efficient Steeldraulic type now insure deceleration equal to the amazing acceleration of America's Fastest Four!

Swift, time-saving travel is now made still safer by increased braking efficiency.

Step on the brake pedal and feel the positive, cushioned braking, absolutely uniform on all four wheels.

At $875 for the Sedan, f. o. b. Detroit, this famous Four with complete factory equipment, represents the smartest, swiftest, sturdiest, low-cost transportation money can buy.

The car is roomy—yet compact.

Turns in a 38-foot street—parks in 17½ feet of curb space—yet provides ample room and exceptional comfort for five adults.

Spring length 85% of wheelbase—the longest in its price class.

Mile-a-minute performance!

25 miles to the gallon at 25 miles per hour.

A brilliant performer by every standard—a sturdy car from end to end.

A Four of striking beauty—smartly finished—tastefully appointed—luxuriously upholstered—long, low and gracefully designed.

A car you can drive for years because in every detail it is built the good Dodge way—carefully and accurately—of materials that pass Dodge Brothers high and critical standards.

Six months in public service, this Four has already won as proud a name for itself as any product ever built by Dodge Brothers.

After stern trial, it has been accepted as a value—a genuine and trustworthy value. And now with four-wheel brakes at no extra cost, you can buy it knowing that money has no greater buying power in the field of transportation.

Lambeth-Eskridge Motor Co., Inc.
456 Peachtree St. IVy 4211

Open Evenings
Decatur Branch—519 North McDonough St.
Griffin Branch—114 W. Solomon St.

DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

To Our Customers and Friends We Wish a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

CHRISTMAS—the season for the renewal of old friendships—for the expression of good will and kindness—is here. Our wish is that this may be for you a Christmas day long to be remembered for its happiness and Good Cheer and that we may serve you better many years to come.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER TRUCKS COMPANY

MERCER LEE, Manager. P. W. JENKS, Assistant Manager

NICKEL, SILVER and GOLD PLATING
Auto Parts, Silverware, etc., Replated and Made New BAKED ENAMELING
Mirrors Resilvered—Block Tinning
Metal Beds Refinished, Wood Finishes
SIMMONS PLATING WORKS
219-221 Pryor St., S. W. WALnut 6244-65
Established 1895

TIRE SERVICE SETS RECORD FOR INDUSTRY

"Nine dollars' worth of service for every hundred cents" is the outstanding performance of one present-day commodity: tires, according to Miller tire men. The consumer's food dollar, his clothing dollar, his rent dollar are today performing about half of what they did 25 years ago; his tire dollar alone multiplies its power by nine. Compared with these others its buying power is as 18 or 20 to 1. Scientific improvement in rubber working, advancement of tire engineering knowledge and economies in tire production have made possible this unique position held by the modern tube and casing. To back up this startling statement these tire authorities point to two facts which are incontrovertible. They are evidenced by price records and mileage records. Fifteen years ago fabric tires were all the market afforded. As every veteran motorist knows, the miles of service per tire were less than a third of the present average. The supplanting of fabric construction by the card principle, introduction of improvements in design which have reduced tread and sidewall flexing with its generation of internal heat, ply separation and wear, and the innovation of flat, road-shaped treads have placed at the service of the motorist added mileage that was beyond the wildest dream of the horseless carriage driver of the earlier day. Today's tire unreels from three or four to six or even eight times the 3,500-mile guarantee of ante-bellum days. As for costs, tire prices are a matter of record. In the day of dwindle-ing dollars, it is a cheerful thought for motorists to contemplate that that tire dollars loom up as giants among pigmies. The United States is the largest purchaser of diamonds among all countries in the world, having invested $105,000,000 through London alone since the war, according to an answered question in this week's issue of Liberty.

RAILWAY CLERKS ELECT WEBSTER NEW PRESIDENT

John W. Webster was elected president of the Atlanta lodge No. 522, Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, at the recent annual meeting at the lodge rooms in the Red Men's wigwam on Central avenue. Other officers are: T. N. Kinnebrew, vice president; Edward L. Knopf, chaplain; J. B. Poyas, recording secretary; Paul V. Ray, financial secretary-treasurer; J. A. Barrett, sergeant-at-arms; Billups Woods, inner guard; J. L. Holloway, outer guard; and C. M. Bonner, chairman protective committee. J. W. Webster, E. M. Bonner and Paul V. Ray were nominated as delegates to the thirteenth regular and fifth triennial clerks' convention, which will be held in Columbus, Ohio, next May.

Psychology Lecture.

"The Spiritual Significance of Christmas Symbols" will be the subject of a Christmas lecture to be given by Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, psychologist, Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the mahogany room of the Ansley hotel.

for Economical Transportation

CHEVROLET

A NEW CHEVROLET

Jan. 1ST

JOHN SMITH COMPANY

190-196 West Peachtree St.

DECATUR CHEVROLET CO.

Decatur, Ga.

EAST POINT CHEVROLET CO.

East Point, Ga.

WHITEHALL CHEVROLET CO.

Whitehall and Forsyth Sts.

ANDERSON BUTLER CO.

Marietta, Ga.

GEO. M. JONES

Buckhead, Ga.

Q U A L I T Y A T L O W C O S T

Markets of World Fully Covered

New York, December 24.—Following is the official list of transactions on the New York Curb Market, giving all stocks and bonds traded.	5 Fairbanks Morse 5s '42. 97 1/2	4 Firestone Tire 5s '42.. 96 1/2	38 Fla Pow & Lt 5s '34 97 1/2
--	----------------------------------	----------------------------------	-------------------------------

Sales (in thousands)		High, Low, Close
1	Alum Co Am	1285	1281 1281
2	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
3	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
4	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
5	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
6	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
7	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
8	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
9	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
10	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
11	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
12	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
13	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
14	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
15	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
16	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
17	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
18	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
19	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
20	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
21	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
22	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
23	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
24	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
25	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
26	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
27	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
28	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
29	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
30	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
31	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
32	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
33	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
34	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
35	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
36	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
37	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
38	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
39	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
40	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
41	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
42	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
43	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
44	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
45	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
46	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
47	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
48	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
49	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
50	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
51	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
52	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
53	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
54	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
55	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
56	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
57	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
58	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
59	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
60	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
61	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
62	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
63	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
64	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
65	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
66	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
67	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
68	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
69	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
70	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
71	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
72	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
73	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
74	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
75	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
76	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
77	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
78	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
79	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
80	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
81	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
82	Alum Ind	1285	1281 1281
83	Alum Ind	1285	1281

Photoplay News

CONDUCTED BY LORENZO JONES JR.

Colleen Moore Sows Wild Oat All This Week

Star's Latest Picture Comes To Howard Screen.

Colleen Moore, vivacious star, comes to the Howard this week in her latest comedy-drama, "Her Wild Oat."

An all-star cast supports Miss Moore in this picture. Marshall Neilan, famous director, who made some of the star's outstanding hits, directed "Her Wild Oat," adding innumerable comedy touches for which he is so renowned.

"Her Wild Oat" shows Miss Moore as a little lunch wagon owner who takes her life's savings and spends every cent on one week of luxury and thrills at an exclusive seacoast resort. Her hoped-for splash in society is only a ripple, however, and she is persuaded by a newspaper reporter friend to obtain recognition by impersonating a duchess. After a day of worried glory, the pseudo duchess is exposed, and Colleen's troubles begin all over again.

Larry Kent, who left the medical college of the University of California to enter motion pictures, plays the chief supporting role. He has had prominent roles in "The Sea Tiger," "McFadden's Flat," and "The Whirlwind of Youth," and is a most promising young actor.

According to advance reports, "Her Wild Oat" is up to the usual exceptionally high Colleen Moore standard. Her role as a lunch wagon proprietress and a titled member of ultra-society affords her many unique opportunities to provide arch merriment.

On the stage, Al Short and his Melody Boys will present "Hello, 1928," a merry jubilee of joyous entertainment produced especially for—and in keeping with—the holiday season. "Hello, 1928" was devised and staged by Mr. Short.

James R. Grainger, general sales manager of Fox Films, made a flying trip to Hollywood from Dallas, Texas, to attend the western premiere of "Sunrise," directed by F. W. Murnau.

'SLIGHTLY USED,' FILM AT METROPOLITAN

Rolling with fun and spirit is May McAvoy in "Slightly Used," which plays at the Metropolitan this week. The story is pitched to high comedy, telling of a clever elder sister who strikes upon the idea of a fictitious marriage to enable her younger sister to marry.

Choosing an army major, Cynthia announces to her folks she has married and her husband, Major John Smith, has sailed to join his regiment. All goes well until a newcomer arrives with whom Cynthia falls in love. To rid herself of her imaginary husband, she has reports of his death published in the newspaper. It so happens a real Major Smith actively exists and upon reading of his death he hurries to the scene of action to discover its cause.

Filiculous situations follow in rapid succession for Cynthia as complications, explanations and love develop. The play moves at a gusto tempo, with Conrad Nagel never before so pleasing to the eye as in his army uniform and May McAvoy younger and prettier than in any of her recent releases.

Others in the splendid supporting cast include Robert Agnew, Andrew Ferris, Eugene Breseger, Sallie Eilers and Anders Randolf.

The musical theme for the picture will be "The Hours I Spent With You," and Enrico Leide has chosen as overture a selection from Broadway's musical comedy, "Funny Face."

A clever comedy with Charley Chase, "There Ain't No Santa Claus," with Metropolitan News and Views conclude an unusually good program.

Alamo No. 2.

Found—an American boy who doesn't want to grow up and be president.

He is "Peter Pan" in Herbert Brenson's production for Paramount of J. M. Barrie's popular fantasy. "Because Peter heard his mother say that one day he would grow up and be president, he ran away from home the day he was born."

"I won't grow up and be president. I want to remain a boy and have fun," says the wonderful little woodland sprite whose story has appealed to millions since it first appeared on the stage of the Duke of York theater, London, December 27, 1904.

Betty Bronson, selected by Barrie with "The Little Noddy," starring himself, plays the role of "Peter Pan." Ernest Torrence, Cyril Chadwick, Milton Sills and Jacqueline Logan in "Burning Sands," Wednesday. "The Little French Girl," with Alice Joyce; Thursday, Norma Talmadge in "Secrets"; Friday, "Flaming Youth"; Saturday, Jack Holt, "Call of the North."

SCREEN

The first five releases for the new year have been announced by Warner Bros. The initial picture for 1928 will be Irene Rich in "Beware of Married Men," released on January 14. Lloyd Bacon directed. Rin-Tin-Tin will be seen on January 28 in "A Race for Life," directed by Ross Lederman. The February releases begin on the eleventh of the month with "The Little Noddy," starring

Lynn White Band Stage Feature At Local House

Lynn White's Harmony Boys, popular local dance orchestra, have been retained by Lucas-Jenkins and will be the special added stage attraction all this week at the West End theater. In addition to a big program of screen features, the White orchestra is one of the finest in the city, and this is the first time that such an imposing attraction has been presented on the stage of a community theater.

The attraction is featured by Frank McSherry's trombone solo and Dayton Sherwin's baritone voice. Sherwin is known throughout the east as a big time performer, having played the Loew and Albee circuits. Sherwin comes from Chicago. White's orchestra is led by an old Atlanta jazz band favorite, Rufus Groover.

The screen program offers Richard Dix in "Quickstep" on Monday and Tuesday of this week, in which the popular young star is seen as a policeman on the Indian reservation. Colleen Moore in "Twinkles" is the feature on the screen for Wednesday only. This picture will be followed by "The Rough Riders," which plays on Thursday and Friday at the West End. "The Rough Riders" is the thrilling and impressive story of the Spanish-American war, with such famous characters as Teddy Roosevelt being represented in the picture.

"The Great Mail Robbery" will be featured for Saturday only at the West End.

On the upper left is a scene from "Serenade," starring Adolphe Menjou at Keith's Georgia theater this week. Next is a view of "Wild Geese" with Belle Bennett in the leading role at the Rialto all week. On the upper right is a scene from "The Fourflusher," featuring Marion Nixon, at the Capitol. May McAvoy in "Slightly Used," center, is the Metropolitan attraction. Lower right is Colleen Moore in a scene from "Her Wild Oat" at the Howard. Below are John Gilbert and Greta Garbo in a scene from "Love" at Loew's Grand.

"ROUGH RIDERS" OPEN TENTH ST. PROGRAM

Opening on Monday and Tuesday with "The Rough Riders," sensational film of the Spanish-American war, the Tenth Street theater this week offers one of the most versatile bills of its career, and one ranging from the most thrilling drama to the funniest comedy.

"The Rough Riders" tells the story of the Spanish-American war from start to finish in a gripping manner, and included in the list of famous men portrayed in the film is none other than Teddy Roosevelt. Lois Wilson is featured on Wednesday in "The Gingham Girl," the picturization of the famous stage play by the same name.

In "Twelve Miles Out" which plays

'The Fourflusher' Is Feature Film On Capitol Sheet

"The Fourflusher," heralded as one of the best screen comedy-romances to be seen on a local sheet in many months, will be featured all this week on the Capitol theater screen with Marion Nixon, Universal's bewitching young star in the leading role, that of the young heiress to the shoe store king.

The hero is a clerk in her father's store. But by a series of what, in this day, is referred to as "fourflushings," the clerk manages to convince the young multimillionaire that he has exactly $4.32 for every Chinaman in Shanghai.

After that—well, the young lady thinks the shoe clerk is first cousin to Rockefeller, as she naturally would. But unfortunately, "fourflushers" must inevitably come to a showdown, and the showdown in this picture is reached in a most uproariously comical manner.

In addition to "The Fourflusher" on the screen, a big bill of Panatage's vaudeville will also be featured. The headlining turn is Passeri's Romantic Revue, one of the most striking presentations of song and dance seen on a local stage in several seasons.

On the same bill will be seen Tampa, the Thruston-Kellar magician, and the court favorite of kings and queens of England. Three other Panatage's acts will also be featured.

GREAT TOLSTOY STORY SCREENED AT LOEW'S

Christmas week at Loew's Grand theater will witness the production of one of the year's outstanding sensations when "Love," with John Gilbert and Greta Garbo is presented at this theater as the feature picture attraction for this week. The production of "Love" is based on the L. N. Tolstoy novel, "Anna Karenina," and it gives the great team of Gilbert and Garbo their most notable opportunity.

Some of the most effective illusions ever devised for the screen and based on moving the camera in unison with the movements of the players, were worked out for this vivid romance of life among the aristocracy of Russia before the revolution, which Edmund Goulding directed, and in which Gilbert and Miss Garbo appear together for the first time since "Flesh and the Devil."

The camera followed them as they walked amid gaily uniformed officers and gorgeously costumed women in the vivid palace scenes; it followed John Gilbert on horseback in the spectacular military maneuvers, swept great rooms from floor to ceiling, in the vivid palace scenes; it followed the human eye does, when one turns from one thing to look at another. This is the real secret of camera technique—to try to approximate the action of the human eye.

Gilbert plays Count Vronsky and Miss Garbo the tragic Anna in the new production, a gorgeous romance of Russia, in which their love is pursued by a strange avenging destiny. A notable cast appears in the picture, including George Fawcett, Brandon Hurst, Emily Fitzroy, Philippe De Lacy and many others of note.

The spectacular palace scenes, the sleigh ride in the snow, the storm, the military maneuvers, and other gorgeous incidents form a lavish background for the central romance of the lovers pursued by a sinister fate and dramatic tragedy.

"Beau Geste" Next Week. "Beau Geste," voted the best picture produced during the year of 1927 and winner of the gold medal prize, will return to the Atlanta screen next week, when it will play a two-day engagement at the Alamo No. 2 theater on Whitehall street.

The Alamo No. 2 theater prides itself in being able to present such a picture as "Beau Geste" to its patrons at popular prices. Every scene and every title that was in the picture when it played Atlanta some time ago at road show prices will be seen in this presentation. There will also be a special music score arranged especially for this picture by the Alamo orchestra.

Henry Leyford Gates, who wrote the original story of "The Red Dance of Moscow," to be picturized by Raoul Walsh for Fox Films, is a personal friend of Maxim Gorky, Russian novelist, having visited him in Russia.

Belle Bennett plays the role of Amelia Gare, the downtrodden wife of a cruel, domineering, upper Minnesota pioneer farmer. Eve Southern plays the role of her daughter Judith, who breaks the father's bondage only to fall into another more awful.

On Thursday and Friday at the Tenth Street, John Gilbert, the star, is seen as the rollicking and yet grim-purposed young hijacker who stops at nothing short of murder to obtain the one he loves.

On Saturday, Betty Bronson will be seen in "The Golden Princess," a delightful little picture.

10th Theatre

Mon-Tues
The Rough Riders
With Chas. Farrell

Wednesday
The Gingham Girl

Thurs-Friday
"Twelve Miles Out"

Saturday
"The Golden Princess"

JOHN GILBERT GRETA GARBO
IN "LOVE"
An EDMUND GOULDING Production from the novel "ANNA KARENINA" by LYOF. N. TOLSTOI
A METRO-GOLDWYN-MAYER PICTURE
The Stars of "Flesh and the Devil" together again
LOEW'S GRAND
Week of Dec. 26---Starts Tomorrow

METROPOLITAN PRESENTS
CHRISTMAS WEEK

CONRAD NAGEL
MAY McAVOY
ROBERT AGNEW

SLIGHTLY USED
A Captivating Comedy of Marriage à la Cartel

BIG PICTURES
LITTLE PRICES

CHARLEY CHASE in "THERE AIN'T NO SANTA CLAUS"
A Pathé Comedy

METROPOLITAN NEWS AND VIEWS
ENRICO LEIDE AND HIS METROPOLITAN ORCHESTRA
Starting Hours: 11-12:30-2:15-4-5:45-7:30-9:15

Actually Astounded
New York Picture Fans
"WILD GEESSE"
By Martha Ostenso
STORY READ BY MILLIONS
Was Translated in 9 Foreign Languages

A Dramatic Picturization of a Phase of Life That Holds and Enthalls

And the Cast
BELLE BENNETT, ANITA STEWART, DONALD KEITH, EVE SOUTHERN, RUSSELL SIMPSON, JASON ROBARDS, WESLEY BARRY, RITA RAE, EVELYN SELBY.

Direct From Its Premier Showing at the Roxie in New York

Playing Entire Week
BEGINNING MONDAY

ADMISSION
Adults 20c
Children 10c
Adults 30c
Children 10c

RIALTO

HOWARD
One of the Public Theatres
STARTS TOMORROW
Supreme Holiday Entertainment!

COLLEEN MOORE
in
"HER WILD OAT" WITH LARRY KENT

Captivating Colleen is here again as the dazzling debutante of the Ritz... the daredevil aviatrix who goes tail-spinning into society. You'll reap a harvest of hilarity from "Her Wild Oat!"

On the Stage
AL SHORT and his MELODY BOYS Present
"HELLO 1928"
A Merry Jubilee of Joyous Yuletide Entertainment, Featuring:
Ancient and Jazzy "The Kumbaya"
Kamboo "The Kumbaya"
Billy "Uke" Carpenter "Bert and Eleanor Gull" Devised and Staged by AL SHORT

"CONRADERS"
A Comedy
Screened by Tishler

George Lee HAMRICK at the ORGAN

Theatre Talk

CONDUCTED BY LORENZO JONES, JR.

My Maryland, New Operetta Opens Monday at Erlanger

New Musical Play Slated To Make Theatrical History; Has Wide Appeal

"My Maryland," the Dorothy Donnelly-Sigmund Romberg operetta, worthy successor to this author's and composer's "Blossom Time" and "The Student Prince," continues to delight audiences wherever presented.

The musical play, one of the latest of the Messrs. Shubert's productions, because of its strong appeal to all classes, young and old, is likely to make theatrical history, so far as musical offerings are concerned, in this country. Besides its wonderful music and excellent staging, "My Maryland" has in pronounced degree all the elements that make for thrilling drama and story suspense.

"My Maryland" has been built around that page in American history which tells an interesting love story that develops and has its culmination in the tense atmosphere of the days of 1862—the love affair of a southern belle and a handsome and gallant captain in the army of the north. It is one of the most beautiful love stories, with its sacrifices, ever presented on a stage. The story is a glorification of noble characters, whether they represent the north or the south, whether they be "boys in blue" or "boys in gray." And, rippling upon the surface of this wonderfully dramatic story, there is merriest genuine comedy.

Mr. Romberg has done one of the best scores of the many good ones he has contributed to the musical stage of America. He has written a number of original creations, and he also has blended and welded old southern tunes. There are several stirring song numbers for the large soldier chorus, one of which is "Your Land and My Land," that seldom fails to bring a cheer from the audience. "My Maryland" evokes a response from everyone for whom youth, adventure and patriotism form a part. The note of youth and the charm of young love are redolent in this quaintly delightful operetta. The Messrs. Shubert have provided an excellent cast of principals. The company numbers over 100. "My Maryland" will be the Christmas attraction at the Erlanger theater for the week commencing Monday night, December 26, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday. Seats for all performances may be had at the Erlanger box office and at Phillips & Crew Piano company.

Tudor.

Battling Indians and halfbreeds in the south and Tom Mix outwitting outlaws in the west are the keynotes of the week's program at the Tudor, where Tom Mix is in "The Frontiersman." The story of the subduing of the Creek Indians in Alabama and Georgia, with Mix in the role of a scout, disappointed in love and who after fighting a duel, is sent out to escort a beautiful blonde to Fort Mims, arriving there after the fort had been burned by the savages, and then fighting his way back to Nashville and his commanding officer.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday Tom Mix appears in "The Arizona Wildcat," in the role of an ex-army officer who had won that title because of his desperate fights during the war, who had picked up a little polo, and later uses that skill with all other he possessed in rounding up a crooked gang which hoped to get away with a fortune. The picture is full of thrills, of the real Mix kind, and is the latest offering of the screen's greatest cowboy actor.

On Atlanta Stages This Week

At the top of the layout are the Howard Atlanta Beauties in Al Short's big stage presentation there this week. On the lower left, the young lady with the turban hat is a member of the team of Faber and Wells, at Keith's Georgia. Next is Ruth Urban, one of the stars of "My Maryland" at the Erlanger. On the upper right is a scene from the big headlining turn of Tampa, the mystic, at the Capitol theater this week. On the lower left is ensemble scene from "My Maryland" at Erlanger. On the lower right is a scene from the dance revue headlining Loew's bill at the Grand theater.

JOHN GILBERT STARRS ON PALACE PROGRAM

John Gilbert, the sensational star of "The Big Parade" and a score of other screen successes, is the featured player in "Twelve Miles Out," which opens the week at the Palace for runs of Monday and Tuesday.

"Twelve Miles Out" is a story of rum runners and hi-jackers on the high seas and it is just about as thrilling as any picture could be. For Wednesday, the Palace will show "See You in Jail," with Dorothy Mackall and Jack Mulhall.

"The Wanderer," another good picture, is slated for showings of Thursday and Friday at the Palace, and top-hole screen entertainment is promised in this screen story.

"The Coward," a picture of the Robert Service story, will be shown on Saturday.

BIG MIDNIGHT FROLIC SLATED FRIDAY NIGHT

The 81 Theater on Decatur street will wind up the year 1927 with a bang on Friday night, December 30, with the third and biggest midnight frolic of the season, according to announcement Saturday by Manager Bailey.

The attraction for the occasion will be Irving C. Miller's "Brown-Skinned Models," a show that is bigger, brighter and better in every way than its popular predecessors at the series of midnight revues for whites only.

The performance will begin at 11 o'clock on the night of December 30, and tickets have been placed on sale at the box office of the theater, Manager Bailey announces.

Irving Miller is known as one of the greatest theatrical producers of the colored contingent in New York. He has produced a number of shows which made big hits on Broadway and later took entire American magazine covers and the verdict of critics is that his latest attraction, the "Brown-Skinned Models," is his best.

Among other successes staged by Miller are "Broadway Rastus," "Shuffle Along," "Bandana Days" and others. It is said that the same time-fut lyrics that marked these shows are featured in "Brown-Skinned Models," and the dancing is said to be far above par.

The show also boasts the services of two thoroughly capable comedians and Manager Bailey promises all who attend a rip-roaring evening of the highest type of entertainment.

Host of Readers.

When "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," by John Fox, Jr., was first published, it had a host of readers who discussed the novel over their dinners, at clubs and elsewhere and swore by it as one of the most compelling of the brilliant author's stories. Nor has the demand for this work ever been less than great. It is a perennial favorite and as such will be welcomed in film form when Rich and Barthelmess appears as the hero of the First National picture.

Great—Tim McCoy
THE FRONTIERSMAN
Mon. Tues. Wed.

Tom Mix
IN
THE ARIZONA
WILDCAT
TUDOR

MENJOU SWINGS BATON IN GEORGIA PICTURE

Dancing shadows, a symphony orchestra, a curtain rising with its attendant mysteries—and Adolphe Menjou as the director of the orchestra! That's the setting for "The Serenade" featured film story at Keith's Georgia this week, to be shown in addition to a big holiday program on the stage.

"The Serenade" is not only the greatest picture Adolphe Menjou has ever made but it is said to be the most convincing photodrama yet presented in the field of romance. Briefly the story concerns the age-old question of whether art and marriage can be reconciled. Menjou has the character of a Viennese musician who achieves fame and fortune. Through all of "The Serenade" runs the sweet haunting love song that was dedicated to the young artist's first great love.

Kathryn Carver, whose face has graced more American magazine covers than any other stage or screen star, plays the lead opposite Adolphe Menjou. Others in the cast include Lawrence Grant, Lina Basquette and Martha Franklin. You'll enjoy "The Serenade" for its sweet and wholesome story and clever acting. It will be shown all week with four complete shows Monday and Saturday.

Alamo No. 1.

Francis McDonald in the great picture "Desert's Toll" will be shown at the Alamo No. 1 theater Monday and Tuesday. This is a story of a man that was betrayed by a woman. By her charms he was lured into the hands of his enemies who left him tied to a tree in a desert to die. But he was saved and was soon able to avenge his sufferings. Gordon Clifford is in his most exciting picture called "Oil and Romance," to be shown Wednesday and Thursday.

Hard-riding Buck Jones in "Whispering Sage" uses guns, fists and ropes to revenge the death of his brother and quiet the misunderstanding between two bands of terrorists. His brother was shot from ambush by some unknown and Buck set out to get his man.

PALACE THEATRE

MONDAY-TUESDAY
JOHN GILBERT IN
"Twelve Miles Out"

WEDNESDAY
"See You in Jail"

THURSDAY-FRIDAY
"The Wanderer"

SATURDAY
"The Coward"

81 THEATRE DECATUR ST.

Midnight Frolic

FRIDAY, 11 P. M.

ERWIN C. MILLER'S

"BROWN SKIN MODELS"

This is a new edition of the show by the same name that last year drew the biggest white audience $1 ever had. They will all want to come again, so get your tickets early. SINGERS—DANCERS—COMEDIANS—a-plenty.

Tickets Monday at the Theatre, 75c—$1.00. WA. 1154

BIG JAZZ ORCHESTRA HEADS GEORGIA BILL

The "California Nighthawks," headed by Joe Rea and his company of 15 artists, will be the big drawing card for Christmas holiday week at Keith's Georgia theater. Jerry Eby, musical director and master of ceremonies, has developed a program just filled with good things in entertainment. Twelve of the organization are young men, healthy, husky, happy young Americans, of whom nine are instrumentalists; one a "dancing" fool; another a nut comedian and the twelfth a tenor of more than ordinary ability.

Three charming young ladies, a soprano and two dancing maids, complete the ensemble. The "California Nighthawks" were designated by Mayor Walker of New York as his "official orchestra" during his stay at Miami, last season, where they were a big hit at Coral Gables. This is the big radio band which has broadcast its programs from all parts of the country.

Then there's Sid Moorehouse, an English comedian, making his first tour of the American "Music Halls." In London, Sid Moorehouse is a fixture of the "Halls" but has also been seen in several English reviews. As a comedian and entertainer few have been sent across the waters with greater acclaim and none have received greater notices from press and public.

Alice Lawlor, "That Red Headed Girl," who has personality plus, will present a program of songs. She has a reputation through the making of records and is an entertainer of class. A comedy singing and talking skill will be presented by Harry Faber and Lee Wells. It's smart and right up-to-the-minute stuff. Elegance is a big word but the Zellia sisters have an offering which justifies the word. They have a novelty presentation and an aerial exhibition, which is said to be the last word in elegance and athletics.

Four complete shows will be given Monday and Saturday, with the regular three stage performances on other days during the week, in which the film feature, "The Serenade," with Adolphe Menjou is the star, will be the screen attraction.

'RUSSIANS DIFFERENT,' SAYS GRETA GARBO

Playing a Russian woman was different from any task Greta Garbo has ever attempted for the women of Russia are different from any women in the world, according to the famous Swedish screen actress, who has the feminine lead opposite John Gilbert in "Love," opening at Loew's Grand theater Monday.

As Anna Karenina in "Love," an adaptation from the Tolstoy story, Miss Garbo is playing a role that took intensive study.

"The Russian women of the days before the revolution," she said recently, "were perhaps, the case of the aristocratic class, the most cultured women in the world. They were taught many languages, and always

GOOD CHRISTMAS BILL FEATURED AT GRAND

For the Christmas week bill of fare in a vaudeville way Loew's Grand theater this week will bring a noteworthy bill and one that has pleased uniformly wherever it has been offered. The headline act on the new bill is the big comedy singing and dancing act of Earl Brown and Irene Renee with the Cantor girls. This is a big, flashy dancing turn, clock-full of fast comedy. Among the well-known artists in the groups are Popola, Florence Rosen, Annette Blackstone, Helen Howell and Iris May. The act is entitled "An Opportunity Contest" and contains several special musical numbers.

Another well known vaudeville headline attraction which will appear on the new bill here is "Tin Types," presented by York and King, assisted by Ray Fant and Madeline Lee. This is a fast act with several popular comedy songs and dances.

The Royal Gascoynes will bring a new European act which is filled with a wide variety of entertainment. One of the features of this turn is the work of the famous "Teddy," a balancing dog.

Late song hits will be featured in the act of Harry Smith and Jack Strong in "Voices From the West." Here are two great harmony singers who will appear in a program of popular song numbers.

The opening act on the new bill will be a wire-walking exhibition by Joe Page and Nora Glass, entitled "Dance Eccentricities in the Air." These are two of the foremost wire performers in the country and they give a daring exhibition of their skill.

With this great vaudeville program will come the motion picture sensation, "Love," based on Tolstoy's novel "Anna Karenina," with John Gilbert and Greta Garbo in the leading roles.

Despite the condition of the peacetime culture flourished in Russia. The Russian ballet, for instance, fostered by the crown much as the Royal Dramatic theater is fostered by the crown in Sweden, set a mark in the art of the dance that no other country could approach. The women of Russia are naturally graceful, and seem to absorb culture as no other women of Europe did. Of course, this is probably all changed now—but the romance of the women of Russia still lingers.

In support of Miss Garbo and John Gilbert in the new film are Brandon Hurst, George Fawcett, Emily Fitzroy, an other well-known players, "Love" was directed by Edmund Goulding for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Forsyth Closes.

Due to financial unsuccess of the venture, the Forsyth Players, stock organization at the Forsyth theater, closed Saturday night after a run of 11 weeks. The Forsyth group opened here October 10. No plans for reopening the Forsyth are known at present.

ERLANGER

ATLANTA'S PLAYHOUSE BEAUTIFUL
Xmas Week Tomorrow Mon. Dec. 26 MATINEES WED.-SAT.

BY THE TRIO THAT NEVER FAILED:
Score by SIGMUND ROMBERG
Composed of "THE STUDENT PRINCE" & "BLOSSOM TIME" Book & Lyrics by DOUGLASS POMERLEAU
Staged by J. C. HUFFMAN Who Staged "THE STUDENT PRINCE" & "BLOSSOM TIME" my Maryland

CAST OF 150
GREAT SINGING-MALE CHORUS OF 60
America's Finest Musical Production!
Comedy, Drama, Music, Love, Romance—ALL HERE
GOOD SEATS STILL AVAILABLE. (Prices include Tax)
NIGHTS: $2.30-$2.75-$3.20-$1.65-$1.10-$0.50.
WED. MAT. 50c to $2.20 SAT. MAT. 50c to $2.25
SEATS AT BOX OFFICE AND AT PHILLIPS & CREW PIANO CO.

KEITH ALBEE GEORGIA

Make the CHRISTMAS Complete —Go to Keith's—
4 Complete Shows Monday

adolphe menjou IN "serenade" A Paramount Picture

Who was the contented woman in this Impresario's life? The wife who loved him passionately or the prima donna whose eyes invited him? A daring drama—a bit smart—but not too sophisticated.

Pathe News
Today's News
in Picture Form

Monday
Vaudeville
2:15-4:30-6:45-9:00
"The Serenade"
1:30-1:50-7:45-10:00 P. M.

Christmas Week Vaudeville

Joe Rea's California Nighthawks
(that Big Radio Band you have so often "listened in" to) Singers—Dancers—Comedians—Musicians
Cast of 15 Artists

Alice Lawlor
That Red Headed Girl
Zelia Sisters
Aerial Elegance

Faber & Wells
Everybody Talk
Syd Morehouse
Nature's Nobleman

Continues
1:00-1:10 P. M.
Mat. 50c to 25c
Night. 50c to 80c
Logic Reserved

LOEW'S GRAND THEATRE

THIS WEEK
MONDAY HOLIDAY
Four Vaudeville Shows
2-4-6-8-9 P. M.
Here is the Film
Event of the Year
The Stars of
"Flash and the Devil"
Together Again
The Greatest Lovers of the Screen in the Greatest Love Story
At 2-4:30-7:55-10 P. M.

JOHN GILBERT AND GRETA GARBO IN "LOVE"

A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Picture from Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina."

ON THE STAGE AT 3:30-6:45-9 P. M.

Earl Bronson & Irene Renee Company
WITH THE CANTOR GIRLS—PEPIA—FLORENCE ROSEN—ANNETTE BLACKSTONE—HELEN HOWELL AND IRIS MAY—IN AN OPPORTUNITY CONTEST

YORK & KING PRESENT
"TIN TYPES"
—WITH—
Roy Fant & Madeline Lee

Royal Gascoynes
FEATURING "TEDDY"
The Wonderful Balancing Dog

HARRY SMITH & JACK STRONG Voices from the West

JOE PAGE & NONA CLASS in the Air

M. G. M. News
and Loew's Novelties

AFTERNOON 2:15, 4:30, 6:45
NIGHTS 8:15, 10:00, 11:15

Great Dance Act Tops at Capitol For Current Week

Dance revues, as they go, are all pretty much of the same old, same old. They incorporate and present certain set features which have come to be recognized as a part of every vanderbilt dance revue, and the presentation is either good or bad in varying degrees.

Only once in a long while does a revue come along that is really entitled to outstanding mention. But when it does, then variety patrons can mark that theater down on their list of "See by all means."

At the Capitol theater this week one of the outstanding dance revues of the stage will be presented. It is Passeri's Romantic Revue, and it is the very essence of romance. This revue has been staged and arranged by Amedeo Passeri, the noted conductor, who personally will conduct the Capitol orchestra this week during the presentation of the revue.

From the opening scene, which presents a background of a Venetian canal, and the picturesque and colorful "Love's Nocturne," Drigo, to the closing number, the Italian street song from "Naughty Marietta," the act is one intensely interesting presentation of dance and music.

In addition to the Romantic revue, four other great Pantheas acts will be presented this week at the Capitol theater. Tamps, one of the greatest magicians of the age will be seen with a large company of assistants in Thurston-Kellar mysteries, a magnificent spectacle showing many new directions in the art of magic, including mysterious and wonderful illusions, surrounded by lavish settings. Christy and Dunn, "Two Southern Gentlemen," will present a delightful spirit of comedy and humor in the program. Their act is composed of a series of songs, dances and comedy.

GOOD SCREEN PROGRAM SEEN AT PONCE DE LEON

Rarely has a better balanced program of screen entertainment been offered at a local theater than that arranged for presentation the current week at the Ponce de Leon theater by Manager William J. Davis, who has been quite noted for his judgment in booking good pictures for the patrons of his popular neighborhood.

For instance, on Monday, there is the presentation of one of the great comedy masterpieces of all time, "The Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," which has achieved equally as great fame as a picture as it has a book and stage play.

On Tuesday, Mary Carr will be starred in "Over the Hill," a really dramatic episode of a mother's love for her children and of the children's thoughtlessness that sends the loving mother "over the hill" to the poorhouse. Nellie Sullivan and her dancers will also be featured on Tuesday in a big dance revue and presentation, and the story of "The Covered Wagon," will be shown on Wednesday only. There is scarcely an American film which has been so popular as "The Covered Wagon," and according to indications, crowds will attend the showing Wednesday at the Ponce de Leon.

Real drama on the high seas will be seen in "The Blood Ship," coming to the Ponce de Leon on Thursday and Friday. Hobart Bosworth and Jacqueline Logan, in addition to Richard Arlen, the sensational young star, are featured in "The Blood Ship."

"The Great Mail Robbery," a thrilling picture, will be shown on Saturday only.

gags which have made it one of the most popular on the Pantheas circuit. Dorothea Summers, comedienne and singer extraordinary and vaudeville headliner, will also be featured on the new Capitol bill opening Monday. Miss Summers is noted for her distinctly original method of presenting her new songs and for her remarkable and winning personality.

White hot carbons, matches and electric light bulbs are eaten before the very eyes of audiences by The Narfys, vaudeville fire-eaters, who will open the new Capitol bill.

On the screen this week will be seen "The Fourflusher," starring Marion Nixon in a sappy comedy-romance.

WEST END THEATRE
DIRECTION: LUCAS & JENKINS
Special Added
Attraction All Week
Night Only LYNN WHITES
And His HARMONY BOYS
10 Real Musicians
Also Darton Shearin,
Singer
On the Screen
Monday and Tuesday
RICHARD DIX IN QUICK SANDS
Wednesday
TWINKLE TOES
COLLEEN MOORE
Thursday-Friday
THE ROUGH RIDERS
With CHAS. FARRELL
Sat., "The Great Mail Robbery"

PONCE DE LEON AT BOULEVARD
MONDAY
"THE CONNECTICUT YANKEE" AT KING ARTHUR'S COURT
BY MARK TWAIN
TUESDAY
MARY CARR IN
"OVER THE HILLS"
WEDNESDAY
"THE COVERED WAGON"
KERRIGAN-WILSON
THURSDAY-FRIDAY
ROBERT BOSWORTH
JACQUELINE LOGAN
"THE BLOOD SHIP"
SATURDAY
"THE GREAT MAIL ROBBERY"

'Robinson Crusoe' Is Howard Film For Kids Matinee

As a special Christmas week attraction to the "kiddies" the Howard has booked "Robinson Crusoe," which is the screen adaptation of Daniel Defoe's immortal story by the same name. There is no doubt about the fact that this announcement will prove interesting to Atlanta children—just as it would to children anywhere—for there is probably no other book which has a more universal appeal than the widely known "Robinson Crusoe."

Matinees will be held daily at 10 a. m., beginning Monday throughout Christmas week. There will be only one showing of Robinson Crusoe each day; children are, therefore, urged to come promptly at 10 a. m. in order to avoid missing any part of the picture.

WILL ROGERS AGAIN RAPPS CONGRESSMEN

Will Rogers' well-known attitude on congress is exemplified in his big comedy special "A Texas Steer," coming week of January 2 to the Capitol theater. The story is that he was elected without his knowledge while he was on the range. His socially ambitious wife (Louise Fazenda) had been liberal with his money in buying votes with the help of three Texas politicians. Brag, Tell and Blow.

"Pa, you're elected," is Ma's greeting to him.

"Elected to what?" exclaims Pa.

"To congress."

"Hell, I ain't goin' to be congressman."

"Yes, you are. I spent a lot of money gettin' you elected and you can't back out now."

The Texas politicians are indignant.

"What do you mean, you're not going to congress. You boys here have been working our heads off," argues Brag (Mack Swain), clinching his point by displaying two huge revolvers.

"Well," Rogers sputters, "I'll go on one condition—I don't want anyone to ever find out where I am. My poor old mother and father told me never to join the circus, and here I am elected to the biggest one in the world."

Will Rogers has titled his photoplay, and none of his humor has been missed. Besides Louise Fazenda, his supporting cast includes Ann Rork, Lillian Tashman, Douglas Fairbanks Jr., George Marion, Mack Swain, Lucien Littlefield, William Orlandson, Sam Hardy, Arthur Hoyt and Bud Jaimison.

"A Texas Steer," produced by Sam E. Rork, was directed by Richard Wallace and the screen version faithfully follows the old Howard stage success, "A Texas Steer." It is a First National Special.

F. W. Murnau, German genius who made "Sunrise" for Fox Films, entertained 50 screen celebrities following the premiere of his masterpiece at the Carthay Circle theater in Hollywood.

Here's Ours!

LORENZO and ELMO. (two Spanish boys) are shown here, for no reason. These two chaps are responsible for The Constitution's theater section each week, so toss your bouquets or heave your eggs, as the case may be. In the background are seen tugging at their leashes, Blunder and Sitzen, department mascots.

BY LORENZO JONES AND ELMO HAMBY.
Now, we'll take off our burlap whiskers and admit that it's really us who are writing this stuff. The whole idea is that in order not to be left behind in the Yuletide stampede, we want to arise, if absolutely necessary, and wish our readers (both of 'em) a completely MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Manager Lewis Hanes—a whole lot in "Big Parade."
Charles Tidwell, treasurer—well, what do treasurers usually want?
At Keith's Georgia:
Manager Rolfe Eggleston—Two new tricks of legerdemain.
Assistant Manager Everett Steele—Dictionary of new and choice (more or less) expletives.
At Loew's Grand:
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. James—people, people, people and throw in the Fifty Million Frenchmen who can't be wrong provided they want to go to Loew's.
At the Howard:
Manager Ernest Morrison—a brand new 10-year contract signed by Al Short and better theater critics.
Assistant Manager Edwin Adler—

Al Short Stages Bright New Year Show at Howard

On the stage at the Howard this week Al Short and his Melody Boys will present "Hello, 1928," a merry jubilee of joyous entertainment produced especially for—and in keeping with—the gay holiday season.

This production was devised and staged by Al Short, which in itself is sufficient recommendation to those who have seen Mr. Short's "kiddie shows" and his fashion show at the Howard within the past few months.

The following entertainers will be featured in "Hello, 1928":
Accent and Jamboree, "Whirlwind Dancing Marvels," are said to be exceptionally talented dancers, executing a varied program of graceful numbers.
Bert and Eleanor Coll will offer singing, dancing and instrumental numbers which will undoubtedly make a decided hit.
Billy "Uke" Carpenter, musical comedian, and Kamberoff, tumbling acrobat, will offer novelty acts which completes the bill. It is a "The Human Fun" made up of a number of beautiful girls, is a beautiful, artistic novelty.

Ladies of the Evening" is the act which completes the bill. It is a spectacular, scenic production, with special music and effects.
Altogether, "Hello, 1928," should be easily on a par with the high standard set by Mr. Short.

Gene Forde is directing Tom Mix in an original story by Harry Sinclair for Fox Films. In this picture, titled "Hello, Cheyenne," Mix characterizes a telephone lineman.

JOY WEEK
Merry Christmas!
CAPITOL
ATLANTA'S FINEST THEATRE
THIS WEEK
The FOURFLUSHER
On the Stage
AMEDO PASSERI, Conductor, presents
PASSERI'S ROMANTIC REVUE with Vocal and Dancing Stars featuring COSMA, vulgar distinguished American soprano
CHRISTIE and DUNN
"Two Southern Gentlemen"
GASTON and DE ANDRE
Among the World's Greatest Tarsiphoem Artists
5 PEOPLE—SPECIAL SCENERY
DOROTHEA SUMMERS
Singing Comedienne
and
ONE OTHER BIG ACT

HOWARD
One of the Public Theatres
STARTS TOMORROW
A Special Christmas Treat for the Children!
"Robinson Crusoe"
From Daniel Defoe's
Immortal Story
A thrilling, fascinating screen adaptation. You know how children loved the book—Now they will enjoy the picture even more!
ONLY ONE PERFORMANCE
—DAILY AT 10 A. M.
THROUGHOUT THE WEEK
Adults 25c
Children 10c

ALAMO NO. 2
MONDAY OUR CHRISTMAS SPECIAL
"PETER PAN"
DOORS OPEN AT 9:30 A. M.
TUESDAY—MILTON SELL
"BURNING SANDS"
WED—ALICE JOYCE-MARY BRYAN
"THE LITTLE FRENCH GIRL"
THUR—NORMA TALMADGE
"RECKETS"
FRIDAY—"FLAMING YOUTH" SATURDAY—"TACK HOLE"
"CALLS OF THE NORTH" ADMISSION 10c MATINEE
TO ALL
EVERY DAY EXCEPT SATURDAY
NKKY WEEK—BRAU GENTLE

At the Smaller Theaters

Star attractions at the smaller theaters this week are, top, Lynn White's orchestra at West End; from left to right, Dorothy McMillin in "See You in Jail" at the Palace; Richard Dix in "Quickhairs" at the West End; Tom Mix as "The Arizona Wildcat" at the Tudor; Charles Farrell, star of "The Rough Riders," at the Tenth Street; Betty Bronson in "Peter Pan" at the Alamo No. 2, and Lois Wilson, star of "The Covered Wagon," at the Ponce de Leon.

Circus Is Appealing.
What is there about the circus atmosphere that appeals to most human beings of every station in life and at every age? Peterfamilias takes his young hopefuls to see the big show and gets a great kick out of it himself. No one seems to be immune. Thus a motion picture founded upon circus life has the double lure of the movies and the circus. Such a film is "Do It Again," in which Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes are working. This First National picture, which Marshall Neilan is directing, has its background the Al G. Barnes shows, one of the biggest in the world.

Thrills, intimate touches of tent show life, clowning, animals, freaks and all that goes with the big top and its smaller, even more colorful, enclosures appear in "Do It Again."

Even a comedy star is not immune to the ravages of that real estate origin so aptly dubbed by Will Rogers as the Escrow Indian; and Harry Langdon's comments on an experience he had convulsed the troupe one day during the shooting of closing scenes on "The Chaser." Harry and several of his company were clustered at one end of the set, waiting for a shift of lights when the talk turned to real estate. This reminded the comedian of the fact that he had recently been lured into investigating one of these "investment" purchases by a bona fide realtor whom he knew slightly. The house he was shown was of the typically flimsy construction indigenous to the mild California climate—only this one was more so.

Before the CURTAIN

After "Flash and the Devil," it was to be expected and likewise ferociously hoped that M-G-M would produce more more pictures featuring the tempestuous John Gilbert and the cool, seductive Greta Garbo.

M-G-M has been long enough about it. But perhaps they sought for a story worth of the two, and if personal opinion matters, they have found in Tolstol's "Anna Karanina," which plays under the more box-office title of "Love" all this week at Loew's Grand.

There are a score or so of screen "teams" which have sprung up in the last year, but of the lot Gilbert and Garbo stand out as a bit different from any of the rest. Mr. Gilbert, a fiery and headstrong type, seems to perfectly synchronize with the cold and yet dazzling soulless beauty of Miss Garbo.

Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky are perhaps the second choice. But whereas Mr. Colman is always (and should be) cast in roles that are completely of the "hero" type, Mr. Gilbert is a part that is just a little bit too bad for a "hero," and a bit too good for the "villain."

Miss Banky is everything that is sweet and good and beautiful. Garbo is the personification of beauty and goodness, apparently, but underneath there burns a flame of uncontrollable and blindly headless evil that must have afflicted the boy of Cleopatra, Helen of Troy, and all the other so-called "vamps" of history.

But to return to the subject.

At the Capitol theater this week, Manager "Merry" Semple will present one of the most pretentious bills ever offered at that house. Headlining will be Passeri's Romantic Revue, for of the few of the many thousands of vaudeville musical dance revues which are in variety's figurative "Who's Who."

Big Revue.
At the Capitol theater this week, Manager "Merry" Semple will present one of the most pretentious bills ever offered at that house. Headlining will be Passeri's Romantic Revue, for of the few of the many thousands of vaudeville musical dance revues which are in variety's figurative "Who's Who."

Lavish Entertainments Mark Christmas in Hollywood

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Hollywood, Calif., December 24.—(Special Correspondence).—Christmas is Christmas, indeed, so far as Hollywood is concerned, for it is being celebrated by the stars of motion pictures with every national custom, old and modern, that makes it the big day in the year.

Gift giving to rich and poor is always lavishly done here and entertaining and calling are the order of the day after the family folk have had the turkey and trimmings.

Open house is held at all the big houses in the colony with the host or hostess taking a bit of time off to dash about on a whirlwind tour of the other festivities. Hollywood's big pine-wreathed pictures, candles burning in the windows Christmas eve, lighted outdoor trees made Hollywood a family town for the evening.

Emil Jannings and his wife, together with Conrad Veidt and Paul Leni and his wife, led the German colony with grand plans for the old country. Kris Kringle merrymaking. At Jannings' home they are strong for Christmas cakes and music. The local German colony, S. C. Hagen, Dr. Ludwig Berger, Fred Murnau, Camilla Horn and other prominent members of the colony planned to help with the festivities and try to imagine snow where the palms and orange blossoms blow.

Jean Herscholt, Danish actor, planned the biggest Yule affair of the Danish colony. He and his wife and small son, Jean, Jr., are giving a purely old country party, all morieland Danes being invited to partake of Danish food, of which Jean hints darkly there is no end to variety. Dances, old songs, Christmas games and a few surprisingly modern old Danish customs were Herscholt's program for the young folk to laugh over. Rodolf Rosing is holding open house Christmas eve. Regional beauty prizes and presents of a snow carnival and house party up at his cabin in the San Bernardino mountains. Reggie's Yule log has been burning since the day of the Danish cabin and the Christmas tree was selected weeks before the first snow fell.

Louise Fazenda, who always makes a great occasion of Christmas and who shops all year buying gifts for the big day, is spending the festival with her new husband, Hal Wallis, his mother and sisters, her mother and father, all grouped about the glowing board which always bears fruit cake made by Louise herself.

Irene Rich is happy in her first Christmas day in her new home on Wilshire boulevard with her husband, D. F. Blaukenhorn; her daughters, Jane and Frances, and her mother. Daughter Frances rushed west from Smith college for the big day. A round of parties for the two girls is planned by Irene, who has spent her old time collecting favors, prizes and presents for the events. Irene will start back east at the end of the week with Frances and go on to New York, thus the New Year will be spent on the train.

Ramon Novarro is celebrating the glad day with a Spanish fiesta at his home, to which he has invited many Latin friends as well as others. He will present a historical playlet within his miniature theater.

Dolores Del Rio, with her husband, Jaime Del Rio, is happy in having her parents, Senor and Senora Acuna, with her from Mexico City. Don Del Rio's time table was arranged to bring him back from New York on Christmas Eve. The Del Rio's big day begins with church services and progresses to a Spanish holiday dinner to which friends have been invited followed by open house and calling till late into the evening. Jaime Del Rio's Yule gift of his celebrated wife was a gold chain with a diamond clasp, a watch and a service which he ordered from Paris.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Beery have a venison feast off a deer that Wallace killed for the day's feature. Raymond Hatton, Mrs. Hatton, Louise Brooks and Eddie Sutherland, her husband, dine with the Beerys.

Beth Hutton is giving a Christmas Eve house-warming in her new 15-room home in Beverly Hills with her husband, George Webb.

Elton Fair and Bill Boyd installed a 15-foot Christmas tree in their patio. Bill Boyd is dressing up as Santa Claus to hand out the gifts to a lot of young ones youngsters that Elton has as annual Christmas pensioners. Nearly every star in Hollywood has a long list of Christmas beneficiaries among the poor children and folk of the town, but it is only by accident that one finds it out.

Margaret Livingston has several children of her dead sister's who will be the enthusiastic reactor, "and close the door," Langdon did so.

"Can you hear me?" called the agent in a tone which was more than adequate to the comedian.

Go into the next room," advised the comedian.

spend the season with her. Their tree stands all ready in the parlor. Margaret gave a party for her own friends several days preceding Christmas so that she could have all her time tomorrow for the kids.

Jack Dempsey and Estelle Taylor spend every Christmas Eve with Jeanie McPherson and her mother and this year is no exception. The friendship has lasted ever since the day when Estelle and Jeanie and De-Mille all worked together on "The Two Commandments." Jack and Estelle have a quiet at-home dinner with the family and friends coming in the afternoon to call and see the tree.

Estelle is fitting up Jack's den with festive furniture. It is a surprise for the head of the house of Dempsey, who was so relieved to be home from his dismissed lawsuit with Jack Kearns that he took Estelle off in her last year's gift to him, a Lincoln car.

Norma Shearer and her new husband, Irving Thalberg, are going to Lake Arrowhead for the holidays. She has never gotten over her fondness for the white Christmas of her native Canada.

Jack Holt, Adolphe Menjou and Larry Romain pronounce themselves three hard-boiled eggs who will spend the day playing golf. Larry Romain was so relieved to be home from his wife, Dorothy Dwan, and has been sneaking to a neighbor's garage when Dorothy isn't about. His golf game is being played with the new set of hand-made clubs Dorothy ordered for him.

Oliver Borden plans a dinner party with friends at which her mother will preside. Olive spent weary hours posing for a large portrait of herself in silk to give her mother, and Mrs. Sybil Borden had a terrible time keeping it a secret that she was giving Olive a bedroom set in hand-made orchid and green.

Charles Farrell, far from his Cap Cod family, prefers a solitary Christmas with canned beans in his shack at the beach. The afternoon calling will miss Charles, who is strongly suspected that Janet Gaynor may lure him forth to attend festivities among the young folk tomorrow night and Monday. Janet, who has been away a tree with her widowed mother at their Hollywood home.

Charles Farrell's idea of a gratifying Christmas present is an automobile. He has promised that he will surely get number four of all the autos of a certain new model of a certain four-cylinder make when distribution of the model begins here. Charles is perhaps the most unspoiled of all the young fellows who have been till now in a place in the sun in the year just closing. No $14,000 custom roadsters on the bankrupt installment plan for him.

Bill Hart is gathering several of his friends for a Christmas dinner at his ranch at Newhall. He is hopeful his invalid sister Mary can preside. Bill is a lavish giver to all his friends and to little Bill, especially, who will be with his mother and grandmother.

Tom Mix and his wife and little Thomas are all set for a shopping time at the Mir mansion on the hill. Mrs. Mix's mother and other relatives and friends will help make it a big day with open house in the afternoon and evening.

Harold Lloyd's Christmas centers about his wife, Mildred Davis, and little Mildred Gloria. Burningshops for the new home in Benedict canyon figured in the Lloyd's Christmas budget. Harold has delighted about 50 householders about Hollywood with whole-like turkey, plenty of ham, bones will be affixed to the Christmas tree at the kennels for Harold's 50 pedigreed pups.

Gloria Swanson and her husband, Hank the Count, and her daughter and son by former marriages, planned a big home celebration in their Beverly Hills mansion with the good old American trimmings. A huge tree is lighted on the expanse of lawn.

Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks gave their respective clans a Pickford for a family party tomorrow evening. Mrs. Charlotte Pickford, Mary's mother, and Lottie Pickford and her husband, Alan Forrest, and Mary's niece, Mary, will be included and later in the day young Douglas Fairbanks, who plans dinner with his mother, Mrs. Beth Sully, will come out to the party.

Beth Daniels and her mother and grandmother are giving a party for friends at Beth's beach house.

The Talmadge girls, Norma, Constance and Natalie, with their husbands, Joe Schenck and Buster Keaton, and Mrs. Peg Talmadge, are spending Christmas with Natalie and the two little Keatons for dinner with calls for the afternoon and evening.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 25, 1927.

VOL. LX., No. 193

"In Bethlehem lowly, is born a sweet child,
All pure and all holy, all gracious and mild."

In the glow of log fires, where holly wreaths hang and mistletoe adds that note of frivolity so indispensable to Christmas cheer, Atlanta society will gather today. For Christmas has come. Tinsel-covered Christmas trees are providing the atmosphere for many a family gathering. Angels with fat faces and genial smiles are peeping over the top of many a proud fir tree to see how a little red wagon with gold trimmings and a baby doll with a far-off plaintive cry can bring delight from the heart of a child.

A congenial group will gather this afternoon from 4:30 to 6 o'clock at the home of Miss Ida Sadler on Thirteenth street to enjoy a delightful Christmas party which is to be given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Hammond Bailey, of Griffin, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rosenbaum, of New York. Miss Marston Cobb Bryan will keep "open house" at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Shepard Bryan, on Peachtree road and Wesley avenue, assembling a congenial party for a real treat of Christmas gaiety.

Indicative of the universality of Christmas spirit, homes throughout the city will be thrown open to welcome friends from far and near. Cheer will be dispensed with that generosity and scope to which the day is conducive. Mr. and Mrs. Sims Bray will be hosts at a midday party in honor of their brothers and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Russell Clapp, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Demere, of Savannah: Mrs. Clapp was formerly Miss Jennie Mobley and Mr. Demere was Miss Josephine Mobley. Others entertaining today are Miss Edna Belle Raine, Harvey B. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. West, Miss Nell Terry Quarles and Miss Elizabeth Crankshaw.

Miss Josephine Hollis Entertains at Tea.

Miss Josephine Hollis was hostess at tea Saturday afternoon at her home on Avery drive, complimenting her attractive cousin, Miss Rolline Dews, of Miami, Fla., who is her guest and for two lovely debutantes, Miss Florence Eckford and Miss Edna Belle Raine.

The hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. W. O. Cheney and a group of attractive girls, Misses Marion Wolff, Billy Johnson, Suzette Heath, Marion Hull Smith and guest, Katherine Jackson, of New York, and Kitty Park.

One hundred and twenty-five guests attended this delightful occasion.

Miss Ewing Is Feted Visitor

Mrs. O. X. Mauldin kept open house Saturday evening at her home on East Twelfth street, in honor of Miss Gwendolyn Ewing, of Orlando, Fla., the guest of Miss Louise McKinney. Miss Mary Dickey will entertain at a 6 o'clock dinner Sunday at her home on Drexel avenue, in Decatur, in honor of Miss Ewing.

The guests will be Misses Gwendolyn Ewing, Louise McKinney, Dr. and Mrs. H. T. Andrews, H. L. Greenwood, H. L. Dickey and G. M. Dickey.

Miss Porter Will Keep Open House.

One of the many delightful informal affairs planned for Christmas will be the "open house" at which Miss Peggy Porter will be hostess Sunday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lowry Porter, on Peachtree road. Miss Porter will be assisted in entertaining by her parents, her grandmother, Mrs. J. T. Crass, and Miss Yolande Gwin.

No invitations have been issued, but many of Miss Porter's wide circle of friends will attend to enjoy the delightful hospitality of the Porter home.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt To Keep Open House.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Clinton Pratt will hold open house this afternoon at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue. Mr. Pratt, who has been in Cincinnati for the past two months, arrived Thursday to spend the holidays in Atlanta. Mr. and Mrs. Pratt will entertain at a large evening bridge party next week.

Miss Davison Honors Lovely School Girls.

Miss Jane Davison was hostess at dinner Friday evening at the dinner-dance at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel in compliment to her sister, Miss Betty Davison, who is home for the holidays from the Deverell school in New York; and for Miss Susette Heath, who is spending the holidays at home from Hollins college.

Covers were placed for Miss Davison, Miss Heath, Roby Robinson, Dan Warner, Harry Holland and Miss Davison.

Miss Hollowell To Honor Pirates' Club.

Miss Mellie Hollowell will entertain the members of the Pirates' club Tuesday morning, December 27, at 11 o'clock, at home, 1585 North Decatur road.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn To Be "at Home."

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn will be "at home" informally Monday afternoon, January 2, at their home on Myrtle street, the lovely occasion to assemble a group of their close friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn will leave January 27 for Asheville, N. C., where they will be honor guests that evening at a brilliant dance to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Raoul at the Billmore Forest Country club. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn will return to Atlanta January 29.

A black and white photograph of a woman in a long white dress and veil standing on the steps of a house. She is flanked by two children, also in white dresses. The house has a prominent pediment with a large star in the center. The photograph is framed by a decorative border with a repeating pattern of small circles and dots. The overall style is reminiscent of early 20th-century photography.

Mrs. Anne Bates Wash and her charming daughters, Elizabeth, at the left, and Emily, at the right, posed to illustrate the famous Roman statue, "Mother of the Launched by Roman matrons that she possessed no jewels, Cornelia, the mother, answered, "My children are my jewels in which I alone delight." Thus it demonstrates the fact that the fineness in the heart of a child is the loadstar toward which the whole of creation moves this Christmas day. Photograph by Kenneth Rogers, staff photographer.

Miss Dorothy Deuel To Wed
Rev. Henry Scott Rubel

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Duell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Austin Duell, of the Schenley apartments, Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Henry Scott Rubel, of Milwaukee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Rubel, of Brightwater, Long Island, will be solemnized on Wednesday afternoon, December 28, at 5:30 o'clock, at the Trinity Episcopal church, Pittsburgh, the Right Rev. Alexander Mann, bishop of Pittsburgh, officiating.

Miss. Delnel graduated from Washington seminary in 1922 and since that time, after a year in Carnegie Institute of Technology, of Pittsburgh, she has been in several New York productions and starred with her sister.

Mr. Rubel was graduated from Wisconsin university in 1923, and is a member of Alpha Delta Phi and Pi Epsilon Delta fraternities and of the Haresfoot club. He graduated from the General Theological seminary, New

Mr. Andrew Lawrence Riker, Jr., of Fairfield, Conn., will be her sister's minion of honor. Master Harry Austin Deuel, Jr., will be the ring bearer. The twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McLain, Nancy and Gladys, of Pittsburgh, will be the flower girls.

Donald Clarke Rubel, of Philadelphia, will be the brother's best man. William E. Schmertz, the third, of draws. Lawrence, of Fairfield, Conn.; Mrs. M. Spauld, of Penn.; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Clarke Rubel, of Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Bertram Answorth, of Springfield, Mass.; Frank Scammell and his daughter, Catherine, from Johnstown, Penn.

After the ceremony a wedding supper will be given in honor of the bride and groom by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornbushel at their apartment in the Schenley.

Georgia Products Dinner Served
At Georgian Terrace January 1

Prominent and representative Atlantians will participate of Georgia products at a great Georgia products dinner to be given at the Georgia Hotel on New Year's day, Sunday, January 1.

Cooperating with the "All Georgia Day" is the Atlanta Federation of Yacht Clubs. Mr. Henry C. Smith, manager of the Georgian Hotel, has announced he will have acted in this movement. The products men and women of Georgia products mean on New Year's day in order that the large number of representative Georgians who make their home at the Georgia Terrace will be afforded the opportunity of a Georgia products New Year's celebration.

The Statewide Fair, being planned for the use of all Georgia products as a fitting beginning for the new year, according to officials of the city, is urged to cooperate.

Among the prominent citizens attending on Georgia products New Year's day at the Georgia Terrace are Mayor Governor Hugh M. Dorsey.

Once More
It's Christmas
Time Again

"Be merry all, be merry all,
With holly dress the festive hall;
Prepare the song, the feast, the ball,
To welcome merry Christmas."

Once more—it's Christmas time! The perennially beautiful story of the Star of Bethlehem guiding the shepherds, and the Babe born in the manger, is being observed all over the Christian world today. Old faiths and hopes, new dreams and vows, so true a part of every Christmas-tide since that celestial morn- hundreds of years ago, bringing joy and good will into the hearts of peoples. Poinsettia blossoms, holly and mistletoe boughs, and crimson wreaths hung at the windows in which glowing candles are in full view, are but outward symbols proclaiming that greater inward glory, finding its truest expression in "Merry Christmas."

Sending out cards of good will to friends and relatives is a part of Christmas, broadcasting the priceless greeting to shut-ins, elderly men and women, and less fortunate whose lives are made brighter by such thoughtfulness. Holding memories last a lifetime if accompanied by the spirit glowing with love, radiating cheerfulness and happiness. The old, old custom of giving at Christmas began 1,925 years ago, when three weary Wise Men followed a gleaming star that brought them to a lowly stable where they laid down their gifts of gold, frankincense and myrrh.

Miss Ruth Bowen
Weds. Mr. Fuller
At Church Ceremony.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Fuller will receive with interest the announcement of their marriage, which took place in the Central Congregational church at noon Thursday, December 22, in the presence of a few intimate friends. The ceremony was performed by their pastor, Dr. D. Witherspoon Dodge.

The charming bride was Miss Ruth Bowen; daughter of Mrs. Robert L. Bowen, of Alpharetta, Ga., and has made Atlanta her home for two years. Mr. Fuller is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Watson Fuller, lifelong residents of the city, and is associated with the firm of Jones, Evans, Moore and Powers. Mr. and Mrs. Fuller left immediately for an extended motor trip through Florida and will be at home on Juniper street after January 3.

Mrs. Johnson
Honors Mrs. Fife
At Bridge Party

Mrs. Chester W. Johnson entertained at a bridge party Thursday evening at her home in West End, complimenting Mrs. Charles B. Eife, of Knoxville, who is the holiday guest of her mother, Mrs. W. C. Griffith, on Lucile avenue. Christmas decorations were used effectively throughout the home. The honor guest was presented with a handsome French boudoir pillow. The high score prize, an exquisite pillow, was won by Mrs. J. S. Nunam, and low score prize by G. Douglass Griffith, Jr. Consolation prize was a salad course Mrs. Fie. A delicious salad course was served. The becoming model of wine colored cake, and Mrs. Fie's cake of browned brown satins. The guests were Mr. straight, Mr. Charles B. Fife, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Nunam, Mr. and Mrs. N. Ponder, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Gwalt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Catlin, Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Layfield, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Barber, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rice, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. DeLeppert, Mr. and Mrs. G. Douglass Griffith, Mrs. Earl Cox and Mrs. C. Griffith.

Among other entertainments planned in Mrs. Fife's honor will be the bridge party at which Mrs. Clark Barber entertains Tuesday evening assembling a few intimate friends of the honor guest.

Mrs. Grady Herrington
Is Guest of Honor.

Mrs. Otis Adair and Miss Anne Jewett entertained Thursday evening at a bridge party at the home of the latter on Delmont drive in compliment to Mrs. Grady Herrington, of Winston-Salem, N. C. who is spending the holidays with her mother Mrs. M. B. Jarrett.

Mrs. Doresey, Dr. W. J. Bloch, president of the Fulton National bank, and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar New-comb, Dr. and Mrs. Dunbar Roy, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Elkin,
Mrs. Howard McGee, and Mrs.
Marion Harp, Mary Peeples Coudlege,
George L. Dinkins, Mrs. A. G.
Mrs. L. D. Linquest, Mrs. A. Mar-
Mrs. W. L. Congrove, John M. Ste-guerie, Stuart T. Taylor, James
Mrs. and Mrs. R. H. Stifford,
Mrs. Edward K. Van Winckle, and
Mrs. George B. Wilson, and Mrs.
Mrs. Werner Brice Pearson and Miss
Sally Pearson, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome
C. Beane, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Colea,
Convey, Mr. and Mrs. James
Mrs. and Mrs. Bell Holland, Mrs. Joanna Moody, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard
Hass, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gooden,
Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. Mrs.
and Mrs. McCerren, Mrs. T. M. Bradley,
Edward Brady, Dr. and Mrs. Charles
T. Hodges, Mr. and Mrs.
Rich, Mrs. A. F. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Jig-
Mrs. J. Woodward, Miss Marion Woodward, Lewis H. Beck, Mr. Johnson, and Johnson, Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Du-Mrs. John C. L. Stoner, Eugene Callaway, Miss Lillian Tidwell, and Mrs. Palmer, Van Winchester, Mrs. Chas. Dickson, and
W. E. Chapman
others.

Trux Bankston, of Covington, president; Mrs. H. O. Ball, of Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. I. Bashinski, of Dublin, second vice president; Mrs. W. H. McKennie, of Montezuma, third vice president; Mrs. Powell Cotter, Barnesville, recording secretary; Mrs. R. E. Everett, of Covington, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Julian Lane, Statesboro, treasurer; Mrs. Harry Craig, Augusta, registrar; Miss Mildred Rutherford, Athens, historian; Mrs. Kirby Smith Anderson, of Madison, assistant historian; Miss Rebecca Black DuPont, Savannah, recorder of crows; Mrs. Charles Quilman, auditor; Miss Lillian Henderson, of Atlanta, custodian of world war records; Mrs. J. J. Harris, of Sandersville, state editor; Mrs. Loula Kendall Rogers, Tennessee, poet laureate.

Executive Presidents—Mrs. W. S. Coleman, Atlanta; Miss Anna Carolina Benning, Columbus; Mrs. Ida Evans Eve, Augusta.

Mrs. V. Trox Bankston, of Corvington, president of Georgia division, U. D. C., in appointing chairman for the forthcoming year, introduces these announcements with the following earnest message. She says: "The devotion and ability of these women in all U. D. C. causes, it is with pride and joy the work of the Georgia division is placed in the capable hands of the following committee. May each chairman succeed in making her department a live, active factor, and may each member of every committee be a contributing factor to the cause, for these departments are the essential gears in our great wheel of progress."

State Directors and Committees.

No. 1—Better Moving Pictures: Mrs. John M. Anderson, Barnesville, chairman; Mrs. Lamar Lipscomb, Atlanta, secretary; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta; Mrs. James Porter, Macon; Mrs. Nell Knight Cleghorn, Summerville; Mrs. J. T. Turner, Eatonton, secretary; Mrs. C. H. Walker, Dalton.

No. 2—Francis S. Bartow Memorial, Rabun Gap-Nacooche School: Mrs. E. A. Caldwell, Monroe, chairman; Mrs. J. B. McCall, Macon; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta; Mrs. W. Walcott Lamar, Macon, and Mrs. A. B. Hull, Savannah.

No. 3—Convention Propaganda: Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta, chairman; presidents of all chapters holding cups, banners and trophies.

No. 4—Confederate Portraits: Miss Mary L. Wright, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. R. Mrs. R. McGinty, Chattanooga; Mrs. T. A. Collins, Ellaville; Miss Hattie Powell, Statesboro; and Mrs. Julia Bennett, Jessup, No. 5—Lillian G. Smith, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. M. M. Moultrie, chairman; Mrs. C. D. Shellcutt, Sanderville, assistant chairman.

No. 6—Director of Collecting Books: Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. Bradley Cordele, chairman; Mrs. Ida Carter Harlan, Calhoun; Mrs. W. A. Roberts, Gainesville; Mrs. M. F. Pelham, Macon; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Pelham; Mrs. H. C. Walker, Eatonton; Mrs. G. S. Whitner, Thomasville; Mrs. J. A. Hall, Decatur; No. 7—Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta, chairman; Emma Farr, West Point, chairman; Mrs. Frank Mason, Atlanta; Mrs. Roy Dallas, LaGrange; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta; Mrs. M. G. Gentry, W. McCloed, Abbeville; Mrs. V. I. Wilson, Augusta; Mrs. C. E. Montfort, Greensboro; Mrs. C. N. Bussey, McKee, and Mrs. J. Gelders, Fitzgerald.

No. 8—United Confederate Veterans' Hall, State Normal School, Athens, chairman; Mrs. J. M. Lassiter, Congress, Georgia, secretary; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Atlanta; Mrs. G. B. Girardeau, Thomaston; Mrs. J. R. Clements, Pelham; Mrs. Luther Wilson, Roberts; Mrs. C. H. Pelham, Macon; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Macon; Mrs. R. A. Norris, Covington.

No. 9—Editorial Department of State for Confederate Veterans: Mrs. Anna Felker Lewis, Knoxville, chairman.

No. 10—Extension: Mrs. Clyde F. Hunt, Thomson, chairman; Mrs. H. A. Hunt, Macon; Mrs. J. M. Madison, Madison; Mrs. J. M. Roark, Dawson; Mrs. G. P. DeWolf, Ellaville; Mrs. J. W. Hooks, Gordon; Mrs. W. W. Manly, Dalton; Mrs. J. W. Atkins, Dalton; Mrs. Bettie Reynolds Cobb, Carrollton, No. 11—Georgia Day and Flags in Schools: Mrs. J. W. McCall, Dalton, chairman; Mrs. J. W. McCall, Dalton; Mrs. T. W. Crawford, Lexington

[illegible]

On this day which commemorates the quest of the Three Wise Men who followed the gleam of the star, our hearts are filled with pangs of gratitude for the beautiful life and example of our Savior. The Three Wise Men, journeying afar to do homage to a newborn king, brought of frankincense and myrrh. And when they found themselves in the presence of the royal babe in the manger they fell upon their knees and worshipped, offering up the riches of their treasure.

And today we who still follow the gleam of the star feel it a privilege to offer in His name treasures, not perhaps of frankincense and myrrh, but gifts that will bring happiness and comfort to those who carried the colors of the Confederacy high. We are singing a hymn of praise in thanksgiving that we still have so many of that honored band with us.

May we as the year slips out with silent tread, realize more fully the beauty and dignity of our obligation to them, our noble veterans of the grey.

No. 41—Caldwell, Monroe; Mrs. Lena Feltner Lewis, Monroe.

No. 42—World war memorial educational fund: Miss Alice Baxter, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. Charles Phillips, Atlanta; Mrs. Walter Grace, Macon; Mrs. Lee Trammell, Madison; Mrs. C. H. Meyer, Quitman; Mrs. D. L. Whiteside, Darien.

No. 43—Commemorative days: Mrs. F. Foster, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. R. B. Little, Carnesville; Mrs. J. H. Sutton, Clarksville; Mrs. Hamilton Kinney, Cornelia; Mrs. Turner Brewer, Douglas; Mrs. J. J. Harris, Dalton.

No. 44—Jefferson Davis historical foundation: Mrs. W. E. H. Seacey, Griffin, chairman; Mrs. H. O. Ball, Jackson; Mrs. John T. Lindsey, Dalton; Mrs. J. M. Rogers, Gaffney; Port Garner, Mrs. W. T. Bacon, Madison.

No. 45—Veterans reminiscences: Mrs. A. Hardy Richard, Madison, chairman; Mrs. J. C. Clark, Covington; Miss Neppie Hunt, Sparta; Miss Helen Long, Newnan.

No. 46—Organizer children of confederacy: Mrs. Maud Edwards Marx, Dalton, chairman; Mrs. Peter Nix, Albany; Mrs. A. C. Cobb, Cedarhurst; Miss Lois Biles, Marietta; Mrs. J. C. Little, Louisville; Mrs. S. S. Little, Dalton.

No. 47—Director children of the confederacy: Mrs. W. H. McKenzie, Montezuma.

No. 48—Fireproof library museum for U. D. C. history and relics: Mrs. Maud Edwards Marx, Dalton, chairman; Mrs. Julia D. Bennett, Jonesboro; Mrs. J. I. Hammond, LaFayette; Mrs. J. C. Little, Louisville; Mrs. G. W. Carroll, Monticello.

No. 49—Transportation: Mrs. James L. Mimms, Hawkinsville, chairman.

No. 50—Book of war records: Mrs. L. T. D. Quimby, Atlanta, chairman; Mrs. Mortimer Hayes, Douglas; Mrs. Dozier Douglas, Ellaville.

No. 51—Chairman badges and insignia: Mrs. Ezzie Bashinski, Dublin. Judges, Coleman Pringle loving cup; Mrs. J. C. Little, Dublin; Mrs. Kirby Smith, Anderson; Madison; Mrs. P. H. Eater, Decatur.

Mrs. Oscar McKensie, of Montezuma, ranking U. D. C. officer from Georgia, sends the following Christmas greeting:

"As the glad yuletide season again rolls around with its joyful opportunity of bringing gladness and happiness to all who come our way, it is with the greatest sense of gratitude and joy that I am privileged to again end to Georgia Daughters my very best wishes for a merry Christmas and a most happy and successful 'U. D. C. New Year.

 Remember the two special ideals for your U. D. C. work this glad New Year:
 "First, 'Poor is the country that has no heroes, but begared is that country which, having them, forgets.' Our first duty is to our veterans; cheer and comfort the living and honor the memory of those who have died for us."
 "Second, 'We are the people of a great organization, we must hold high the banners of education, patriotism and true history.'
 "Second, keep in mind the fact that you are the life just what soever you put in. Make your work for the U. D. C. of paramount importance and a great joy will result to you."
 "Please show it is ever my pleasure to serve you."

"Though Christ a thousand times in Bethlehem be born,
If He's not born in thee, thy soul is May the spirit of Christ dwell in the hearts of each member of the Georgia division, U. D. C. during these days of the year.

Surely there is no more fitting time to see that our beloved veterans have all their physical, social and spiritual needs met. Let them come as our first thought this year.

The weather suggests a fireside scene. God grant that every veteran may enjoy the glowing warmth of a bright, radiant fireside, and that their hearts may be warmed by the knowledge of the devotion of the Confederate Daughters.

Here's love to each one of you and best wishes for your happiness.

(Signed) Mrs. W. Trox Bankston,
President of Georgia division, U. D. C.

Russell Brinson, president of the Georgia Children of the Confederacy, issues the following message:

Greetings to Georgia Children of the Confederacy. As the year comes to its Christmas season, in each heart at this time may peace, joy and love abound. Let us at this time pledge ourselves to a closer cooperation with our local chapters and state organization, resolving to do our bit to make our accomplishments for the coming year the best ever. Let us remember our veterans, whose ranks are so rapidly thinning, and do all in our power to make the sunset of their lives pleasant. My wish for each of you is a merry Christmas and a happy, prosperous New Year."

Mrs. L. W. Greene, chairman publicity for the Georgia division, U.
 D. C., issues the following message:
 "My dear co-workers: Greetings from the department of publicity.
 Pathways of memory with love lights
 a gleaming,
 Upon happy trails, that Christmas time leads,
 Bring to your hearts the joys of your childhood,
 Like echoes of bird calls from far-away meads;
 In musings so tender, abounding in sweetness,
 Cheery with garlands of yesteryear
 boughs,
 Imagery kissed by a glory-like sunshine,
 Thus, to awaken love's embers,
 Yes, enjewels the hours—of Yuletide."

many visitors to the community among them are Mrs. O. S. Walker's mother, Mrs. W. H. Warters, of Atchison, Kan.; Mrs. A. E. Sotter's mother, Mrs. W. F. Clark, of Belton; and Mrs. C. F. Knowlton's son, John Knowlton, who is a student at Staunton Military academy, Staunton, Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben S. Forkner's daughter, Miss Louise Forkner, who is attending the State Woman's college at Millfeldville, and their son, Lawrence Forkner, a student at Reinhardt university, at Macon, Ga.; Mrs. J. W. Hatch's guests, Mrs. S. H. Janey and Miss Alma Janey, of Pageland, S. C., and Miss Florence Neil Askins of Lancaster, S. C. These charming visitors were entertained through out the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Reall, of Fairfield Drive, and Mrs. Beall's sister, Miss Jane Broadhurst, a student, of the college, were also present.

Dr. O. S. Walker, of Exeter road, left Friday for a visit with his parents in Lexington, Ind.

Mrs. Ida Askew and Miss Martha Askew, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. S. White, of Decatur, were dinner guests Christmas day at Mr. and Mrs. Howard Askew at their home on Clarendon road.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Antnrim and children, Peggy and Forcie, are spending Christmas at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Antnrim's parents in Indianapolis, Indiana.

Miss Clara Askew, of Clarendon road, leaves Tuesday (or Birmingham, Ala., to be the guest of Miss Katherine Woodberry.

A Christmas party was given Friday evening at the Community club.

"To the members of the Georgia Division, United Daughters of the Confederacy; to the Confederate veterans and widows of veterans, I extend hearty Christmas greetings and sincere wishes that the coming year may be filled with peace and happiness for all. A permanent merry Christmas is what I wish you today, not one that ends with the setting

Mr. and Mrs. Waymen H. Braswell, of Decatur, announce the marriage of their daughter, Louise Ann, to Julius St. Cyr Watson, of West Palm Beach, Fla. The marriage was solemnized in Jacksonville, November 14.

After the holidays Mr. and Mrs. Watson will make their home in Florida.

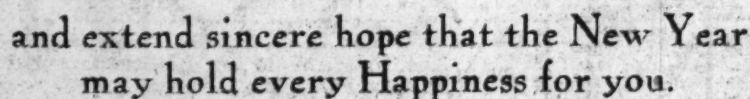

Christmas music was a delightful feature of the evening and Santa Claus was there with a gift for all the guests. Dancing was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Mrs. I. S. Jeans was hostess to the R. E. Lee chapter of U. D. C.'s at its meeting Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. R. W. Hatcher presided and the opening song was Dixie. The minutes were read by the recording secretary, Mrs. R. B. Moore. After transaction of business matters, Mrs. L. P. Longino rendered two vocal solos. Mrs. Hatcher told of her visit to Washington city last week and was present at the unveiling of the Alexander Stephens statue, which was placed in the Hall of Fame.

Govington, Ga., December 24.—The Bartow chapter, U. D. C., met in the local hall last evening with the president, Mrs. Walter Weeks Daves, presiding. Mrs. H. B. Roberts, chairman of program, held a short session, after which we began the program. We were glad to hear that to be used each month for programs. She suggested that the Children of the Confederacy have charge of several programs throughout the year in order that we might have a full display of the ability of the younger branches of U. D. C. in Cartersville, and also that the young people might become more interested in the work of the chapter to which they will soon be eligible for membership.

The upkeep of Confederate graves at Cartersville was discussed and it was decided that the Bartow chapter would contribute to the work, according to the extent of its ability.

Charge of Mrs. Robertson, who introduced the program. Miss Sackland, Anna Elizabeth Hankel, Elizabeth Anna and Anne Jackson, the senior members of the Children of the Confederacy. With Miss Anna Elizabeth Robertson presiding, they gave a most interesting program, combining the thought of Thanksgiving and Christmas. "Silent Night" was sung by the choir. The hymn "Merrill's Song" by Nellie Hammond and Anne Hankel, Psalm 107:1-15, was read by Miss Alma Milner. Miss Anna Elizabeth Robertson read the story of the birth of Irving Russell, a southern writer of little known. Miss Anna Jackson read one of Russell's Christmas stories. The hymn "Silent Night" was sung. The closing article of her own composition, "What the U. D. C. Has to Be Thankful For."

[illegible]

Geo. Griffin, Jr. Wheeler Mangum

Model Laundry

409 Houston St., N. E.
Phone WA 1mut 2372

Again we pause for a moment to celebrate the birth of our Savior and King; to express our appreciation for the beauties and joys of life, and especially for the confidence and loyal friendship of those in our community who by their patronage have made possible the phenomenal growth of this institution.

An Old-Fashioned
MERRY CHRISTMAS and an Abundant
NEW YEAR

Store Closed Monday

Duffee - Freeman

FURNITURE OF CHARACTER

1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, 2003, 2004, 2005, 2006, 2007, 2008, 2009, 2010, 2011, 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, 2020, 2021, 2022, 2023, 2024, 2025, 2026, 2027, 2028, 2029, 2030, 2031, 2032, 2033, 2034, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, 2041, 2042, 2043, 2044, 2045, 2046, 2047, 2048, 2049, 2050, 2051, 2052, 2053, 2054, 2055, 2056, 2057, 2058, 2059, 2060, 2061, 2062, 2063, 2064, 2065, 2066, 2067, 2068, 2069, 2070, 2071, 2072, 2073, 2074, 2075, 2076, 2077, 2078, 2079, 2080, 2081, 2082, 2083, 2084, 2085, 2086, 2087, 2088, 2089, 2090, 2091, 2092, 2093, 2094, 2095, 2096, 2097, 2098, 2099, 2100, 2101, 2102, 2103, 2104, 2105, 2106, 2107, 2108, 2109, 2110, 2111, 2112, 2113, 2114, 2115, 2116, 2117, 2118, 2119, 2120, 2121, 2122, 2123, 2124, 2125, 2126, 2127, 2128, 2129, 2130, 2131, 2132, 2133, 2134, 2135, 2136, 2137, 2138, 2139, 2140, 2141, 2142, 2143, 2144, 2145, 2146, 2147, 2148, 2149, 2150, 2151, 2152, 2153, 2154, 2155, 2156, 2157, 2158, 2159, 2160, 2161, 2162, 2163, 2164, 2165, 2166, 2167, 2168, 2169, 2170, 2171, 2172, 2173, 2174, 2175, 2176, 2177, 2178, 2179, 2180, 2181, 2182, 2183, 2184, 2185, 2186, 2187, 2188, 2189, 2190, 2191, 2192, 2193, 2194, 2195, 2196, 2197, 2198, 2199, 2200, 2201, 2202, 2203, 2204, 2205, 2206, 2207, 2208, 2209, 2210, 2211, 2212, 2213, 2214, 2215, 2216, 2217, 2218, 2219, 2220, 2221, 2222, 2223, 2224, 2225, 2226, 2227, 2228, 2229, 2230, 2231, 2232, 2233, 2234, 2235, 2236, 2237, 2238, 2239, 2240, 2241, 2242, 2243, 2244, 2245, 2246, 2247, 2248, 2249, 2250, 2251, 2252, 2253, 2254, 2255, 2256, 2257, 2258, 2259, 2260, 2261, 2262, 2263, 2264, 2265, 2266, 2267, 2268, 2269, 2270, 2271, 2272, 2273, 2274, 2275, 2276, 2277, 2278, 2279, 2280, 2281, 2282, 2283, 2284, 2285, 2286, 2287, 2288, 2289, 2290, 2291, 2292, 2293, 2294, 2295, 2296, 2297, 2298, 2299, 2300, 2301, 2302, 2303, 2304, 2305, 2306, 2307, 2308, 2309, 2310, 2311, 2312, 2313, 2314, 2315, 2316, 2317, 2318, 2319, 2320, 2321, 2322, 2323, 2324, 2325, 2326, 2327, 2328, 2329, 2330, 2331, 2332, 2333, 2334, 2335, 2336, 2337, 2338, 2339, 2340, 2341, 2342, 2343, 2344, 2345, 2346, 2347, 2348, 2349, 2350, 2351, 2352, 2353, 2354, 2355, 2356, 2357, 2358, 2359, 2360, 2361, 2362, 2363, 2364, 2365, 2366, 2367, 2368, 2369, 2370, 2371, 2372, 2373, 2374, 2375, 2376, 2377, 2378, 2379, 2380, 2381, 2382, 2383, 2384, 2385, 2386, 2387, 2388, 2389, 2390, 2391, 2392, 2393, 2394, 2395, 2396, 2397, 2398, 2399, 2400, 2401, 2402, 2403, 2404, 2405, 2406, 2407, 2408, 2409, 2410, 2411, 2412, 2413, 2414, 2415, 2416, 2417, 2418, 2419, 2420, 2421, 2422, 2423, 2424, 2425, 2426, 2427, 2428, 2429, 2430, 2431, 2432, 2433, 2434, 2435, 2436, 2437, 2438, 2439, 2440, 2441, 2442, 2443, 2444, 2445, 2446, 2447, 2448, 2449, 2450, 2451, 2452, 2453, 2454, 2455, 2456, 2457, 2458, 2459, 2460, 2461, 2462, 2463, 2464, 2465, 2466, 2467, 2468, 2469, 2470, 2471, 2472, 2473, 2474, 2475, 2476, 2477, 2478, 2479, 2480, 2481, 2482, 2483, 2484, 2485, 2486, 2487, 2488, 2489, 2490, 2491, 2492, 2493, 2494, 2495, 2496, 2497, 2498, 2499, 2500, 2501, 2502, 2503, 2504, 2505, 2506, 2507, 2508, 2509, 2510, 2511, 2512, 2513, 2514, 2515, 2516, 2517, 2518, 2519, 2520, 2521, 2522, 2523, 2524, 2525, 2526, 2527, 2528, 2529, 2530, 2531, 2532, 2533, 2534, 2535, 2536, 2537, 2538, 2539, 2540, 2541, 2542, 2543, 2544, 2545, 2546, 2547, 2548, 2549, 2550, 2551, 2552, 2553, 2554, 2555, 2556, 2557, 2558, 2559, 2560, 2561, 2562, 2563, 2564, 2565, 2566, 2567, 2568, 2569, 2570, 2571, 2572, 2573, 2574, 2575, 2576, 2577, 2578, 2579, 2580, 2581, 2582, 2583, 2584, 2585, 2586, 2587, 2588, 2589, 2590, 2591, 2592, 2593, 2594, 2595, 2596, 2597, 2598, 2599, 2600, 2601, 2602, 2603, 2604, 2605, 2606, 2607, 2608, 2609, 2610, 2611, 2612, 2613, 2614, 2615, 2616, 2617, 2618, 2619, 2620, 2621, 2622, 2623, 2624, 2625, 2626, 2627, 2628, 2629, 2630, 2631, 2632, 2633, 2634, 2635, 2636, 2637, 2638, 2639, 2640, 2641, 2642, 2643, 2644, 2645, 2646, 2647, 2648, 2649, 2650, 2651, 2652, 2653, 2654, 2655, 2656, 2657, 2658, 2659, 2660, 2661, 2662, 2663, 2664, 2665, 2666, 2667, 2668, 2669, 2670, 2671, 2672, 2673, 2674, 2675, 2676, 2677, 2678, 26

THE FEDERATED CHURCH WOMEN OF GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga.: Mrs. Edgar Craighead, recording secretary, 1739 N. de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Wallace Rogers, president, 175 Hunt street, Atlanta, Ga.; Miss Rosa Woodberry, first vice president, 149 Peachtree circle, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. M. F. Boykin, second vice president, 425 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. L. L. Lewis, honorary president, 1621 Ponce de Leon, Decatur road, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Elijah Brown, corresponding secretary, 821 Piedmont avenue, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. C. R. Stauffer, treasurer, 887 Virginia avenue, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. L. A. Witherspoon, auditor, 65 Fifteenth street, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. J. W. Willis, state editor, 820 Myrtle street, N. E., Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Arthur Hale, Methodist editor, 1050 Gordon street, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Episcopal editor, 43 Peachtree place, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. John Kerkis, Christian (Disciples) editor, Box 81, Brookhaven, Ga.; Mrs. D. L. Carson, Congressional editor, 688 Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Albert Braxwell, Federation founded by the late Mrs. Albert Braxwell.

"Laborers together with God." 1 Cor. 3:9.

Your Best for The Master!

Dr. J. Campbell White, great Christian leader, tells of a wonderful experience in the lives of his friends, Mr. and Mrs. Paton, of Pittsburgh. "Their only child, a beautiful, clever, tender girl, came to them one day and said she wanted to be a missionary in Africa. They were so much in sympathy with Christ that they said, 'We shall be very glad to have you go.'"

"Then, as they thought and prayed over it for a few days, they decided that they could not let anybody else support their daughter, and so they sent word to the mission board that they wanted to have the privilege for the rest of their lives of paying their daughter's salary while she worked over yonder in Africa."

"And when one and another of their friends came to them protesting against this madness in sending their only child away off to bury her life in the heart of Africa the simple answer to their critics was in words like these:

"Our Lord has given His best to us, and our best is not too good for Him."

MRS. J. C. LANIER,

West Point, Vice President of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of Georgia.

Park St. Methodist School Presents Xmas Dramatization

Park Street Sunday school, under the sponsorship of Mrs. M. M. Burns' class, presented a most charming dramatization of Dickens Christmas carol Sunday evening, December 18. Mrs. Edward Smearing adapted and supervised the production. She was assisted by Mrs. Burns and Mrs. Edward Akin. The cast follows: Scrooge, Mrs. Smearing; Mrs. Cratchit, Mrs. Elizabeth Tillman; Marley's Ghost, Eric Rhodes; Tiny Tim, Robert Franklin; welfare committee, Charles Tillman, Mr. Roberts; Cratchit children, Mac Burns, Mary Franklin, Preston Hill, Jim Tillman.

The Lawrenceville Missionary Society of the M. E. church, met recently at the home of Mrs. W. E. Simmons. Following the regular program a service was held honoring Mrs. Simmons, who is the only living charter member of the society. A history of the society was given by the president, Miss Minnie Peoples. The Lawrenceville society was organized by Rev. W. A. Parks, presiding elder of the Gainesville district, and was one of the first in the conference. Mrs. Parks attended the session of the general conference in Atlanta in 1878, returned to Gainesville and organized

Missionary Union Officer Writes On Training School

Mrs. J. C. Lanier of West Point, vice president of the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union of Georgia, submits the following article on the advantages offered by the Baptist Woman's Missionary Union Training School.

When Fidelia Fiske, missionary to Persia in years past, began her work, so eager was she to make Christ known in that Christian land, that she did not wait to learn the language, but so soon as she could repeat, in the foreign tongue the words, "Give me your daughters," she went from house to house ministering and pleading that the girls might come to her, that she might win them to Christ, and that they, in turn, would go forth to tell the story and win others.

With like eagerness and with the same holy aim the Woman's Missionary Union Training school is asking for our young women from Baptist homes in the southland. "Give me your daughters," it is saying, "that I may give to them my best thought, that I may train them in body, mind and spirit so that they will be prepared to enter every phase of Christian service and witness for Christ at home and abroad."

Bearing the Message. Truly, these "daughters" are telling the good tidings under many conditions and are gridding the earth with the message of Christ's love for the world. The students of the school have gone from its doors to enter many departments of Christian work. "Woman's Missionary Union," home mission board, Sunday school board, as B. Y. P. U. workers, church missionaries, nurses, mission and mountain school teachers, Bible teachers in schools and colleges, pastors' wives and workers in orphanages, the students are successfully laboring. One hundred and forty-seven young

Baptist News Is of Interest Throughout State

Circles of the Women's Missionary and Benevolent society of the Second Baptist church met Monday afternoon to assemble filled Christmas stockings and baskets of toys for the children of the good-will centers. A beautiful Christmas service was held, Mrs. Carter Helm Jones presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Hal F. Heitz.

A quilt made by Circle 12, Mrs. C. L. Studdard chairman, was presented to the pastor and Mrs. Jones. The quilt was made of the W. M. U. colors, orchid and white, and the design a wheel. In the hub of the wheel was embroidered "Dr. and Mrs. Carter Helm Jones, 1927, W. M. U. Circle 12, Mrs. Hal Heitz, president; Mrs. C. L. Studdard, chairman." In the rim of the wheel the names of the following deacons were outlined: A. D. Adams, Ernest F. Brown, W. E. Campbell, E. L. Connally, D. P. Darrington, W. R. DuVall, Paul A. Eggle, F. R. Etheridge, Hugh K. Fischer, J. S. McCullough, E. M. Scott, Gordon G. Singleton, John S. Spalding, J. J. Vogel, C. C. Wayne and L. A. Witherspoon. The names of 84 church members were outlined in the spokes, and outside friends in the ground space.

At the next meeting of the Business Women's league, January 8, Circle 2 will be in charge. Miss Leon Floerach is chairman, and Mrs. W. A. Dedmon is co-chairman. Mrs. F. J. Paxton is the president.

A Christmas party was enjoyed by the children of the Cradle Roll, beginners and primary departments of the Sunday school, Wednesday afternoon. The program by the Fidelia class at the Sunday school Christmas celebration, recently held in the Second Baptist church, was a special feature of the service.

Oakland City Church

The W. M. U. of the Oakland City Baptist church met Monday, December 19, with the president, Mrs. C. C. Hudson, presiding. The mission study chairman reported 13 books studied this year.

The W. M. U. and the Y. W. A. have met all points on the standard of excellence; the Sunbeams have met their appointments, and most of the points on the standard. On behalf of the society, Mrs. R. A. McMurray presented the president with a beautiful picture as a token of their love and appreciation of her work.

The following officers were elected for 1928: President, Mrs. A. C. Cawthorn; first vice president, Mrs. C. C. Hudson; second vice president, Mrs. O. C. Luff; third vice president, Mrs. Rita Guinard; secretary, Mrs. V. V. Makasir; treasurer, Mrs. Lella Turner; intermediate G. A. counselor, Mrs. W. F. Denuard; junior G. A. counselor, Mrs. E. F. Coffey; R. A. counselor, Mrs. J. J. Willis; Sunbeam leader, Mrs. W. E. Ford.

Federated Women Meet. A called meeting of the Federated Church Women was held at the Y. W. C. A. building Tuesday afternoon, December 13, to revise the constitution and by-laws and to elect officers for the year 1928. After discussion and slight alterations, the constitution and by-laws were adopted as revised.

Mrs. Graham, chairman of nomination committee, presented the following slate, which was unanimously

Assistant to Deaconess

Miss Katie Herndon, of Kinston, N. C., who is making her home in Atlanta this winter as assistant to Deaconess Bessie Allen of the Wesley Community House, 346 Whitehall street. The community house is supported by the Methodist board of city missions of Atlanta.

Miss Herndon was graduated from the Scarritt College for Christian Workers in Nashville, Tenn., last June. She spent a part of her vacation attending the regional conference on city missions at Lake Junaluska, N. C., where she went as a guest of the Atlanta board. As Miss Allen's assistant, in charge of the clubs, she is doing splendid work and is rapidly creating for herself a place in the hearts of the Methodist women of the city.

adopted: Honorary president, Mrs. T. Lewis; president, Mrs. Edgar Craighead; first vice president, Miss Rosa Woodberry; second vice president, Mrs. C. P. McLaughlin; recording secretary, Mrs. John Kerkis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Elijah Brown; treasurer, Mrs. C. R. Stauffer; auditor, Mrs. L. A. Witherspoon; state editor, Mrs. J. W. Willis. The denominational editors are nominated by their respective denominational representatives on the executive board.

A class in psychology begins Monday, January 2, at 7:30 o'clock. Dr. Goodrich White, dean of the psychology department at Emory university, will conduct this ten-lecture course. This is a wonderful opportunity for those who cannot reach the university. Miss Helen Gershon is in charge of registrations. Register at once by calling Miss Gershon in the evenings, Main 0308-W.

The Jewish Women's club has opened classes in culture and social activities. Mrs. Linwood Jester and Mrs. D. C. Hiscok instruct the classes in dancing and expression, held every Tuesday afternoon from 2:30 to 5 o'clock. The children are being pre-

All Saints Body Deplores Welding Of Prison Shackles

Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Episcopal editor, submits the following article: The Women's auxiliary of All Saints church recently put itself on record as deploring what seems to be the generally prevalent method of placing shackles upon prisoners.

In such cases the shackles are welded which, not infrequently, results in much suffering as, during the process, even a steady hand may slip and burn the prisoner. But this is by no means the end of the torture, for once welded the shackles remain intact. Surely there must be some other safe means of restraint which would not altogether interfere with the prisoner's rest at night; for every human being is entitled to God's gift of sleep.

Following the leadership of Mrs.

Houston Johnston, who has done much to alleviate unwholesome conditions, the Women's auxiliary of All Saints church passed a resolution urging that some more humane way be employed for the restraint of prisoners than that of welding their shackles. Some individual members of the auxiliary, together with Mrs. Johnston, have further interested themselves in trying to bring about a change in this matter.

Atlanta, always in the vanguard with sensible reformatory measures, is likely to be one of the foremost cities of the country to institute a different method of shackling prisoners. Plans are now on foot to bring about an improved discipline in places of detention.

All Saints Pupils' Gifts.

Trained from the kindergarten up to the senior department to think of others less fortunate than themselves, pupils of All Saints church school will on Christmas morning be bearers of gifts which are designed for the needy. At a beautiful service of praise to be held at 10 o'clock in All Saints church, all members of the school will assemble. Christmas hymns and carols will be sung by a children's vested choir and the rector, Dr. Memminger, will give an appropriate message. During this service the pupils, in procession, will carry their various gifts to the chancel and place them in a manger as a token of thankfulness for "God's unspeakable gift" in the incarnate Babe of Bethlehem.

The gifts from the children of All Saints church school will later be distributed at the Holy Innocents mission, where they are sure to bring joy to many a child's heart that might otherwise know little of such happiness as is all too often the exclusive experience of more privileged children.

Five and Twenty Club Entertained.

The Five and Twenty club met Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Wood.

The home was beautifully decorated in true yuletide fashion. Under the Christmas tree was a present for each member of the club. After the presents were given out by Mr. Wood a series of ruck games were played. The club will be entertained on its next regular meeting by a theater party given by Ralph Allen and William England.

"Regenstein's Smart Styles"

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

Store Closed All Day Monday, December 26th

REGENSTEIN'S

"55 Years in Atlanta"

Store Opens 9 A. M.

"Regenstein's Smart Styles"

Store Closes 5:30 P. M.

Store Closed Monday

Store Closed Monday

REGENSTEIN'S After Christmas SALES

Tuesday Morning, December 27th

A Store-Wide Event Making It Profitable for Every Woman to Shop Here

GIFTS

All Gift Novelties

1 1/3 Off

Ribbon Novelties

All Garters, Sachets, Etc., Etc.

1 1/2 Price

Sale—Tuesday Morning

MILLINERY

Choice of Our Entire Stock of FALL TRIMMED HATS Velvets, Felts, Soliels, Satins, Metallics

$5

Formerly Selling $15.00 to $40.00

JEWELRY

All Costume Jewelry

1 1/3 Off

BAGS

All Fine Bags

25% Off

Sale—Tuesday Morning

Briefly Told

Mrs. J. C. Lanier, West Point, Ga., trustee for Baptist Woman's Missionary Training school of Louisville, Ky., calls on Baptist women of Georgia, at this gift-making time, to remember the girls of this institution by sending them boxes of canned peaches and pecan nuts. Such gifts should be reported promptly to Mrs. Lanier.

The Georgia girls at the Baptist Training school are: Miss Vannie Mathis, Sandersville; Miss Nola Hasty, Chickamauga; Mrs. Ruby Young, Manchester; Miss Florine Smith, Milledgeville, and Miss Margaret Jackson.

Mrs. F. W. Withoff, of Fort Valley, was elected trustee of the Georgia Baptist Orphan's home, at Hapeville, at the recent Georgia Baptist convention. Mrs. Withoff has been for years an active W. M. U. worker and her articles on "Fidelity" in the monthly issues of Royal Service, are convincing and strongly Biblical.

The annual meeting of Baptist Women's Missionary union, of the Atlanta association, takes place at the First Baptist church, January 20. Mrs. Wilbur M. Jones, superintendent, and eight efficient district secretaries will report a year of excellent achievement.

Kirkwood O. E. S. To Install Officers.

A public installation ceremony of Kirkwood chapter No. 225, O. E. S., will be held Tuesday evening, December 27, immediately following a short business session. Mrs. Julia Jackson Turner, past grand matron, will be the installing officer assisted by Mrs. Pauline McFarlan, as grand marshal; Mrs. Ida Hardwick, grand chaplain; and Miss Eleanor Speers, grand organist. The officers to be installed are: Mrs. Ivan C. Lewis, worthy matron; S. Troy King, worthy patron; Mesdames Eva L. Lanier, associate matron; Mary E. Simon, secretary; Emma R. Anderson, treasurer; Lula Howard, conductress; Emma B. Ruffy, associate conductress; Mettie V. Elrod, chaplain; Cora L. Ozmar, marshal; Katie Morrison, organist; Nina M. Leslie, Adah; Clyde Slaughter, Ruth; Weltha F. Warren, Esther; Annie G. Johnson, Miriam; Leola H. DeLoux, Electa; Alice M. Driggers, warder; and A. N. Driggers, sentinel.

Miss Hamrick Weds Robert Edward Williams. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hamrick, of Talking Rock, announce the marriage of their daughter, May Belle, to Robert Edward Williams, of Ball Grounds, the marriage having been solemnized at Center, Ala., June 18, 1927.

PAPPY'S Orange Marmalade

For Breakfast - Try a Jar

THE CONSTITUTION'S PARENT-TEACHER PAGE

Edited by
MAYNOR LEE TOLER

OFFICERS GEORGIA BRANCH, NATIONAL CONGRESS OF MOTHERS AND PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATIONS—Mrs. P. H. Jeter, of Decatur, president; Mrs. J. J. Hoffmayer, of Albany, first vice president; Mrs. A. F. McGhee, of Macon, recording secretary; Mrs. James Calhoun, of Columbus, corresponding secretary; Mrs. John D. Hester, of Savannah, second vice president; Mrs. W. W. Smith, of Atlanta, recording secretary; Mrs. H. T. Locher, of Gainsville, seventh vice president; Mrs. C. J. Foster, of Decatur, president; Mrs. Cliff Barnes, first vice president; Mrs. B. W. Smith, second vice president; Mrs. W. L. McCalley, Jr., recording secretary; Mrs. H. T. Locher, corresponding secretary; Mrs. B. G. Orvell, treasurer.

Willis A. Sutton Issues Xmas Greetings to Atlanta Parents

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of Atlanta's public schools, issues the following Christmas greetings to the parents of Atlanta:

"For five and a half to six hours a day you send to the teachers, principals and supervisors of Atlanta's schools the most precious possession of all your lives. These children are committed to us in order that we may try to assist you in training them for health, scholarship, citizenship and character. We of the public schools have appreciated your cooperation in the great objectives mentioned.

"With the limited means at our command and with the training which we possess, we have tried worthily to discharge this important obligation. We turn your boys and girls back to you for this Christmas season, trusting that each of them is better for having been in our care. We have tried to plan wisely and well for them, and we trust that our efforts will be commended in their lives.

"To each of you at this family feast, when the child is the center of all thought and activity, we send the greetings of our hearts to each of you, and pray that every family circle will be blessed with the real spirit of the Christmas season. Earnestly praying that no accident may befall any of our children during the Christmas season, that morality and character may be the dominant notes in their seeking, we send you our heartfelt and best wishes for a very merry Christmas and the happiest of all New Years."

State P.T.A. President Issues Xmas Greetings.

In all our homes on Christmas day, May a candle burn for P.T.A. A. whose cheerful ray shall bring a smile To every teacher, parent, child, And light each friendly heart and soul.

With health and peace and joy unalloyed.
FLJOY OLIVER JETER,
President Georgia Branch National Parent and Teachers Congress.

Hapeville P.T.A. Holds Meeting.

The Hapeville P.T.A. met Friday, December 16. Mrs. W. M. Schneider, president, presided. After the business meeting, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, state P.T.A. president, gave an interesting talk. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. Hodges and Mrs. Kimball.

Moreland P.T.A. Hears Mr. Barron.

A spirit of Christmas prevailed at the December meeting of the Moreland P.T.A. Tuesday afternoon. Gifts were drawn from a gaily-decorated box by each member, following a grand march, music being furnished by Miss Lucy Harris, teacher of the first grade.

The speaker was J. P. Barron, president of the Atlanta Public School Teachers' association. Mr. Barron presented the problems of the public school teachers now before the public, explaining conditions in detail, and clearing up many doubtful points.

A social half hour followed during which time teachers and mothers had opportunity to become better acquainted. Prize for the best attendance of mothers was given to Miss Belle Cockrell, sixth grade. Mrs. Marvin Woodall, vice president, presided.

O. E. S. Chapters To Install Officers.

Monday evening, December 26, Capital City chapter No. 111, O. E. S., will hold its annual installation of officers at 7:30 o'clock in Fraternity hall, Marietta street. Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, worthy grand marshal of the General Grand chapter, will be the installing officer, assisted by a corps of capable grand officers.

Inman chapter No. 112, O. E. S., will have a joint installation with the Masonic lodge in Inman Thursday evening, December 29, in the Masonic hall. Mrs. Rose Mae Ashby, worthy grand marshal of the General Grand chapter, O. E. S., will be the installing officer for the chapter. She will be assisted by Mrs. Ida Dale, of Rome, grand marshal; Mrs. Annie Hubert, grand chaplain; Mrs. Kate Massey, grand organist.

The year that is passing has been good to us. And your loyalty, your confidence—your friendship was the greatest factor in this success.

We acknowledge our appreciation with the sincere hope that you will enjoy a most Happy Xmas and Prosperous New Year.

HIGHTOWER Hardware Co.
132 Whitehall St.

ALL TOYS 1/2 Price
THIS EXCLUDES ONLY WHEEL GOODS AND SKATES
Store closed all day Monday.

HIGHTOWER HDW. CO.
132 WHITEHALL ST.

R. L. Hope P.T.A. Report Shows Many Varied Activities

A representative crowd of mothers met in the auditorium of the R. L. Hope school Tuesday afternoon with a number of interested visitors. Reports of the various chairmen featured the meeting. The house and grounds committees, who have purchased $400 worth of playground equipment, reported that it would be installed immediately after the holidays. Report was made that a framed picture of "Uncle Remus," which was a gift from the association of that name, and framed by the seventh grade, hangs upon the wall of the hall entrance.

The membership drive, under the direction of the membership committee, Mrs. John Colley, chairman, announced that seven additional names had been added to the roster of the association and that the seventh and sixth grades had run a close race in gaining the most new members, but at last count the honor would go to the seventh grade, Miss Emma Longino, teacher.

The kindergarten committee reported that several new pupils were to augment the present number enrolled after Christmas and asked that all present tell their friends that this kindergarten, which though small in size, used the methods employed in all the larger ones and was well worthy of their patronage.

Mrs. Howell Dodd, library chairman, announced that the books in the school library would become a circulating one in the near future. The children whose work reaches a certain standard may borrow same, and Miss Georgia Wilder, the principal, will devote one day each week herself to the running of this library for the children who desire to take advantage of it.

Mrs. George Ripley, Jr., president of the association, announced that a shed for the children to be sheltered under waiting for the street cars will be erected at an early date. The attendance prize was drawn by Mrs. Hollis Hope.

Mrs. Ripley introduced Mrs. George Taylor, president of the P.T.A. A. council, who told of the objective of this association and the work in which it was engaged. At its conclusion, two ladies volunteered to attend the meetings of council each month, in company with the president, who were Mrs. H. W. Lester and Mrs. David Prince. Mrs. A. G. Maxwell gave a reading.

R. E. Ramsey, supervisor of the upper grades of Fulton county, gave an instructive address. It was announced at the conclusion of the program that the next meeting, January 18, will be one for the "daddies" and will be held at night, when a noted jurist of the city will be asked to be the principal guest and speaker upon this occasion.

W. A. Bass P.T.A. Board To Meet.
The executive board of the William A. Bass Junior High school meets with Mrs. William Kingston Wednesday morning, December 28, at her home, 1102 Springdale road. All members who expect to attend are requested to notify Mrs. Kingston as luncheon will be served at 1 o'clock.

Forrest Ave. P.T.A. Meeting Is Featured By Xmas Program

Christmas carols were sung and a Christmas play was given by the children at the Forrest Avenue P.T.A. A. meeting Wednesday afternoon. The play was under the direction of Miss Kate King and Miss Marion Lambkin.

After a short business meeting Mrs. Charles Foster, who was the guest of honor, gave a very instructive talk on home study. She stressed the point that a child should have a certain time to study and should not be disturbed during the study hour. Mrs. Foster was presented with flowers from the association.

Mrs. Hubert Rawliger was given a large basket of flowers by the P.T.A. A. Mrs. Rawliger gave Christmas greetings and presented Miss King, on behalf of the association, a lovely gift.

The grade prizes went to Miss Lambkin's low sixth for the largest number present and Mrs. Basskin's high first for the greatest percentage. The gold side, led by Miss Sara Sudduth, won over the silver side led by Miss Annie Parham, by a small fraction. This is an attendance race, which will end with the "daddies" meeting to be held in January.

Crew Street P.T.A. Holds Meeting.

The P.T.A. A. of Crew Street met Wednesday afternoon in the school auditorium with Mrs. A. Kahanon, the president, presiding. Judge Watkins, of the juvenile court, was the interesting speaker. He told of the appalling number of children, between the ages of 10 and 15, who are brought before him for all sorts of wrongdoing. He stressed the importance of early home training.

Miss Eliza Leasone, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Rittenbaum, sang several solos. Prizes were awarded to the low kindergarten and sixth grade.

Highland P.T.A. Reports Activities.

The December meeting of the Highland P.T.A. A. drew a crowd that filled the school auditorium Wednesday, Mrs. C. A. Alexander presided in the absence of the president, Miss Lucy Adams, speaking on the subject of "Recreation," pointed out that to properly understand the subject one must not lose sight of the derivation of the term, which really means to "to recreate" and that it can apply equally well to the mind and spirit as well as the body. The following committee chairmen made reports: Mrs. Fred Ragland, on donations in welfare committee; Mrs. Ralph McCallan, on membership; Mrs. Frank Fair, on Christmas donations for the orphanage; Mrs. B. B. Euchs, on the ice cream party to be given to the pupils of Miss Spears' and Mrs. Thurman's rooms for winning the membership drive and Mrs. E. D. Knight on the need for a mother to supervise the Camp Fire girls. After the business was finished two plays were given by different rooms. Miss Mary McDaniels' first grade pupils acted out a Christmas play, "Santa's Plight," written almost entirely by the sixth grade pupils and Miss Maud Thurman's room gave a play arranged by their teacher from two stories they have been reading. In the count of mothers, Miss Maud Thurman's and Mrs. M. M. Armstrong's rooms again carried off the prizes.

Hapeville P.T.A. Hears Mrs. Jeter.

The Hapeville P.T.A. A. met at the school Friday afternoon. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. W. M. Schneider, president. After a short business session, Mrs. P. H. Jeter, state president, was introduced and made a talk on "The Duties of the Parent." Mrs. Jeter recommended the following books as additions to the home libraries: "Training of Children in a Christian Home" and "The Hidden Years." After Mrs. Jeter's talk the president announced that a large sum of money, also quantities of clothing, coal and groceries were on hand for the empty stocking fund and the committee was asked to meet with Mrs. Schneider to complete plans for distribution of these things to the unfortunate families of the community.

Williams St. P.T.A. Holds Meeting.

The Williams Street P.T.A. A. met Thursday with Mrs. George Harley, president, presiding. After reports by the various committees a very interesting program was given by high-six and low-four.

Mrs. Nell's class, high-six, won the dollar for having the greatest number of mothers present. The second attendance prize, tickets to the Howard, was given to high and low-three. Miss Dallas, teacher.

Boys' High P.T.A. Given Musical Program.

The Boys' High school P.T.A. A. had an interesting meeting Tuesday evening, December 20, in the military building, John Hancock, president, introduced G. W. Walter, conductor of Boys' High orchestra, and M. H. Davis, director of the Dramatic club, both of whom presented a program of unusual beauty. The program as presented by the orchestra of fifty pieces, was of the highest quality and was unusually tuneful and attractive. A one-act play, "The Wonder Hat," by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman, was given by the Dramatic club of Boys' High and was presented with remarkable finesse. Those taking part were Carlos Lynes, Walter Paschall, Walter Anderson, Henry Kingston and William Lambright.

Grant Park P.T.A. Holds Meeting.

The Grant Park P.T.A. A. met Tuesday with Mrs. Ruffan presiding. Mrs. Raymond Golf, chairman of the Better Films committee, asked that a fruit shower be held at the school Wednesday, December 21, for the unfortunate children of the community. She also asked for clothing and shoes to be repaired to be used at the Better Films Christmas party.

The low-six entertained the mothers with a play, "The Spirit of Christmas," and with Christmas carols. The first meeting of the new year will be a daddies' meeting on January 10, at which time Superintendent Sutton will speak.

High-one won the prize for the largest percentage of mothers present.

"Regenstein's Smart Styles"

STORE CLOSED MONDAY

REGENSTEIN'S

STORE CLOSED MONDAY

AFTER-CHRISTMAS SALES

Tuesday Morning, December 27th

A Store-Wide Event Making It Profitable For Every Woman to Shop Here

WINTER COATS

For Sports and Dress

BEAUTIFULLY FURRED

COATS

$25.00

Former prices to $59.50

COATS

$39.50

Former prices to $55.00

COATS

$48.00

Former prices to $69.50

COATS

$55.00

Former prices to $79.50

COATS

$59.50

Former prices to $89.50

WINTER COATS

For Sports and Dress

HANDSOMELY FURRED

COATS

$69.50

Former prices to $95.00

COATS

$79.50

Former prices to $110.00

COATS

$89.50

Former prices to $125.00

COATS

$100.00

Former prices to $149.50

COATS

$125.00

Former prices to $198.50

20% to 50% Off

ALL FUR CHOKERS

Now!

20% Less

Every Coat, Dress, Fur, Fur Coat—"REGENSTEIN'S Regular Merchandise." Selected From Our Large Stocks. No Samples, Left-Overs or Imperfect Garments Included in This Sale. You know "REGENSTEIN'S" Quality

Please Note: All Sales Final—No Returns; No Exchanges

GEORGIA STATE FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS

ORGANIZED IN 1896—MEMBERSHIP 30,000—JOINED GENERAL FEDERATION IN 1896—MOTTO: "WISDOM, JUSTICE, MODERATION"—CLUB FLOWER: CHEROKEE ROSE

President, Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear; vice president, Mrs. A. H. Brenner, of Augusta; second vice president, Mrs. S. V. Sanford, of Atlanta; recording secretary, Mrs. Homer Williams, of Thomasville; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John P. MacDonald, 1635 Peachtree road, Atlanta; treasurer, Mrs. W. W. Stark, of Commerce; parliamentarian, Miss Rosa Woodberry, of Atlanta; editor, Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford, of Atlanta; general federation secretary, Mrs. Altona Richardson, of Atlanta; Georgia Federation headquarters, 502 Chamber of Commerce building. ATLANTA DISTRICT PRESIDENTS—First, Mrs. A. J. Byrd, of Mettler; second, Mrs. H. H. Perry, of Albany; third, Mrs. Robert E. Lee, of Fitzgerald; fourth, Mrs. W. H. Jones, of Greenville; fifth, Mrs. Kate Green Hess, 307 Oxford place, N. E. Atlanta, Phone DR. 3753; sixth, Mrs. L. A. Collier, Barneville; seventh, Mrs. Herbert E. Hogue, of Marietta; eighth, Mrs. A. O. Skelton, of Hartwell; ninth, Mrs. J. E. McGilroy, of Norcross; tenth, Mrs. J. W. Hooks, of Gordon; eleventh, Mrs. G. V. Cate, of Brunswick; twelfth, Mrs. J. C. Meadows, of Vidalia. Miss Julia McIntosh Sparks, state publicity chairman, 509 Chamber of Commerce building.

Georgia Federation President Extends Christmas Greetings

TO THE CLUB WOMEN OF GEORGIA, GREETINGS!

The Christmas season is one of cheer and happiness. The spirit of good will is abroad in the world at this season as at no other. In the midst of all that is bright let us not forget the many things that have come into our lives for which we should be thankful, among the best of which is the splendid work our federation has done during the year we are closing, and the wonderful spirit of cooperation and loyalty to its ideals that has marked our efforts, also for the continued growth of our school at Tallulah and for the good health of the children who are committed to our care.

My Christmas wish is that health and happiness may be in your homes, that peace and contentment may fill your hearts, and the spirit of good will begun at this joyous season may last the whole year through.

A merry Christmas and a happy new year to all the club women of Georgia.

Sincerely yours,
ELLA F. BRANTLEY,
President Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Lewis H. Beck Is Santa Claus To Tallulah Falls School

The "Light in the Mountains" had two Christmas celebrations this year, Monday, December 19, the date of the closing of school until January 3, the entire student body and faculty gathered in the Isma Dooly auditorium and enjoyed a brilliant Christmas tree which is the gift to the school of their great friend and patron, Lewis H. Beck, of Atlanta, who is the donor of the $25,000 scholarship fund which bears his name. The Lewis tree had upon its spreading branches an individual gift for every one of the 212 pupils as well as for the 16 grown-ups who constitute the faculty and force of the plant. There were bright colored tarleton bags, of the approved Santa Claus model for every body, filled with raisins and nuts and candy and all the good things which the season bring. The staffs department of the school gave a beautiful present to Mr. Beck, the product of their best hand workers, showing in some part their appreciation of his constant thought for them. Mr. Beck was not able to be present on the happy occasion and the gift was received for him by Miss Eula Barrow, of Rabun county, the first holder of the Lewis H. Beck scholarships.

Another tree of a more intimate nature spreads its branches in the Lucy Lester Willet Community house Christmas morning for the 20 or 25 mountain children who have no home but the school and are therefore in residence 365 days in the year. By the kindness of friends in many quarters this tree will also blossom with attractive gifts and old Santa Claus will stop each day to leave remembrances for these little people who have no families of their own to think about them at Christmas time. Miss Ann C. Davis will visit her home in Lynchburg, Va., during Christmas week and Miss Eliza Shirley will be in charge of school in her absence.

Christmas Program By Montezuma Club.

A Christmas program and an important business session featured the December meeting of the Montezuma Women's club held at the clubhouse. The club indorsed Mrs. J. E. Hays for director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Hays is familiar with the plans of club work, having served for years as president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs and later as recording secretary of the Georgia federation, and she is considered in line for the office. The election will take place during the spring convention.

Features of the program were a piano solo by Miss Estelle Walker, a reading by Mrs. Howard Collier, a vocal duet by Misses Carolyn Collier and Clara Martin Guerry and a reading by Miss Annie Laurie Kiecklighter.

Georgia Sorosis Met With Mrs. Carter Arnold.

Georgia Sorosis, of Elberton, held its December meeting at the home of Mrs. Carter Arnold, on Heard street. A Christmas tree laden with gifts greeted the guests with a "Merry Christmas."

A splendid collection of books has recently been given to the Harris Allen library. A scrapbook was presented to the club by the president and was placed in charge of Mrs. A. S. Simmons, chairman of board.

The president, Mrs. C. J. Almond, welcomed the out-of-town guests.

A program was rendered, after which refreshments were served to the following members and guests: Mesdames Charles Allen, Jr., Tom Stark, A. S. Simmons, C. J. Almond, Raymond Stapleton, J. M. Webster, J. Y. Swift, Vesta Turner, Perry Smith, A. S. Oliver, E. H. Cason, Harry Hays, C. P. Harris, H. Wiggs, Z. R. Rogers, W. F. Arnold, J. H. Snowden, J. H. Champion, Z. C. Hayes, Carter Arnold, Zach Copeland, Dudley Sheppard, W. E. Johnson, W. P. Green, J. C. Hill, L. T. Hill, J.

Mrs. Brenner Issues Xmas Greetings To Clubwomen

Mrs. A. H. Brenner, of Augusta, in her Christmas greetings to the officers and members of the Georgia Federation says:

My dear Friends: As the children have practiced the old carols for our service on Christmas afternoon, I have thanked God for the club women of Georgia who have pledged themselves to protect our children from those who would rob them of the Bible, and of faith in the angel's Christmas message.

Inspired by this feeling of gratitude I wish to thank each officer and member, for the great privilege of working with you, and for you. In federation work I have enjoyed the blessings of an ever widening circle of friendship, a broader vision of life's purposes, and a growing opportunity for service. I trust that in return I have been able to merit in some measure the same loving approval that you have bestowed on these splendid women, who have preceded me in the office I now hold. Being human, we often fall short of our own standards and aspirations. The Levitical law provided a sacrifice for those who sinned through ignorance, now we see our atonement in the Heavenly Child of Bethlehem, and can say:

Come we now to Thee, lowly how the knee, we Thy grace implore, Lord we too with childlike heart of Thee adore.

May the few months that remain to us, of this present administration be fruitful ones; abundant in good works and characterized by a continuation of the Christ's love we are celebrating at this season.

For again I hear the children sing:

"In Bethlehem lowly, is born a sweet Child, All pure and all holy, all gracious and mild."

Wishing you a joyful Christmas, I remain, very truly yours, ELEAZOR L. BRENNER,
Vice President-at-Large.

Mrs. Hess Issues 5th District Greetings.

Mrs. Kate Green Hess, president of the fifth district of Georgia federation, extends greeting to club women and all who love the name of Christ. She wishes for each "the joy and happiness that only comes to us in thinking of others for 'as much as you have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, you have done it unto me,' saith our Lord and Master."

It was fitting that the angels sang in heaven while the shepherds watched the star in the east, which was to lead them unto the Savior of mankind. The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament sheweth His handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech and night unto night sheweth knowledge. If all nature is thus expressing the power and glory of the Creator, should not we, who have been quickened together with Christ, give Him praise and glorify Him in our daily lives?

"The works of God is to believe on Him whom He hath sent." The fruit of these works—love, patience, long suffering and so on is manifested in our deeds.

"If we do our works believing that God will bless them according to His will, then we increase our talents and will be allowed to 'Enter into the joy of our Lord.'"

"May all that we do in our several offices of club work during the coming year be done in the name of Christ and for the glory of Him, who 'So loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life.'"

C. Ellis, Earl Ferguson, Sam Shiver and J. H. Neffler and Misses Mamie Hill, Gertrude Fortson, Jessie Hill and Mildred Cochran.

Georgia Federation President Extends Christmas Greetings

Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, president of the Georgia Federation, who extends a merry Christmas and happy New Year to state clubwomen.

Report of Winder Woman's Club Wins Ninth District Banner

Mrs. Arthur De La Perriere, of Hoschton, chairman of the department of American citizenship for the ninth district, gave a citizenship banner to the district convention to the club having the best report. Winder Woman's club won the award, and the report was an excellent judges suggested its publication on the official club page in The Constitution. Mrs. J. H. Hedges, of Winder, as chairman of American citizenship for the club, prepared the following report:

"Every clubwoman should know that, according to the constitution, 'all persons born or naturalized in the United States and subjects thereof are citizens of the United States and the state in which they reside.' But why can't the clubwomen in the ninth district be outstanding citizens by voting intelligently, conducting citizenship classes and programs, and instructing the young and old alike to reverence their country, their flag, their nation's history and its institutions."

The Winder Woman's club the division of citizenship training issued a large number of leaflets entitled "A Perpetual Calendar for Good Citizenship." This outline was published in the Winder News and on the federated page of The Constitution. Parliamentary drills have been conducted at club meetings. The flag code, flag salute, and creed have been given all country schools, and a number of patriotic booklets placed at their disposal. Textbooks and magazines have been given several schools. The county school superintendent has consented to have county schools give one period a week to the study of patriotic education. Two club members are serving their fourth term as members of the board of education, and are in close contact with city schools, a class in citizenship training and public speaking has been conducted in the Mill school.

Civics Stressed.

"In this division it can be truly said that 'woman's work is never done.' The outstanding work in this division has been that of the cemetery committee. Sufficient funds have been raised for the employment of a keeper part of this year. We urged city officials to put on the 'Paint-up, Clean-up' campaign. The three small parks have been made more attractive with the addition of shrubbery. Several plants, too, have been given for the courthouse grounds. In the Mill village a number of trees and flowers have been planted. The chairman of this department gave 500 fruit trees to be planted there. The negroes have been encouraged in keeping attractive premises. In observance of Garden week a number of attractive bird houses were made by school children. They also made a number of tree posters and booklets. In several schools the children ordered the 'penny package seed,' and were requested to do their own planting."

Motion Pictures.

"Increasing importance is being attached to the work of the motion picture in knitting the nations of the world together. Our American films show our greatest successes, not only for our gods, but for our ideals of justice, liberty and democracy. We must feel confident, that with the acquisition of new writing talent, movies will continue their development. In fact, more than 500 institutions are using motion pictures regularly. To meet a proper demand for pictures especially suitable for children 52 programs of pictures have been selected and offered for theater use under the name of the Saturday Evening Post. While our club has had a censor for local theater, we have found little work to do, due to the efficient management of the place. We are ever ready to assist in putting on patriotic pictures as well as those that are educational and inspirational."

Good Roads.

"The county of Barrow is a small one with 420 miles of surfaced roads, approximately 350 miles of graded roads, 32 miles state highway with four miles to be graded. We have about 60 steel bridges including line bridges, and hope to finish grading all the public roads this year. Now have under consideration the paving of Bankhead highway through the county; surveys and contracts to be made 1927. Winder, the county seat, is indeed fortunate in being situated on two highways—Bankhead and Stone Mountain. These are both marked with very attractive state markers, and some time ago government markers were placed through this section. We will continue planting trees, dogwood and crepe myrtle, until we reach the county line. We have urged the removal of signs from trees. It is in this way that we expect to train the child to value the trees and help beautify the highway. Three club members were appointed by Mrs. Brantley as delegates to the United States Good Roads association, which convened in Savannah, June 6-11.

Junior Club.

"To train a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it." Having this Biblical injunction in mind, the woman's club has attempted to interest the 'Juniors' in all activities of the federation. Most of the Winder juniors are members of the Choral club, too, and have participated in several public programs. An Easter egg hunt and prizes were given the Mill school children. When the Parent-Teacher association arranged a thrift exhibit in the Mill school, the Winder club gave a small prize to each child having received a blue ribbon from the P. T. A. May day baskets were carried to the sick. Many visits to hospital have been made and flowers carried there; especially while one of the juniors was a patient. A box for Tallulah school was conservatively estimated at $60. Twenty-five dollars of this amount was in lovely feathers contributed by J. T. Strange company. A substantial sum was realized from a motion picture, most of the proceeds being given to Tallulah Falls school. Among the social features enjoyed were two outings, and the Christmas party, at which time the senior club was entertained."

World War Veterans.

"Since the auxiliary in Winder is one of the most active in Georgia, the proper respect has been paid heroes of all wars; especially those of the world war. We have stood ready at all times to assist the auxiliary in any undertaking. A number who are members of both organizations helped decorate the graves of world war veterans. Confederate veterans and Spanish-American veterans on Memorial day. The auxiliary sponsored a program Armistice day, at which time club members assisted with the program. Gold star mothers were remembered with cards on Mother's day. Club members are always eager to contribute towards boxes sent to hospitals. We are hopeful that the screen, on which the universal language is written, will some day bring the nations into harmony so that war will be outlawed and peace and happiness allowed to reign."

Waycross Kiwanis Indorse Mrs. Brantley.

Waycross, Ga., December 24.—The Waycross Kiwanis club has indorsed unanimously the nomination of Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, for national director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. This makes the fifth Waycross organization to take such action, the others being the Georgia Kiwanis, the Kiwanis council, the Health league and the Drama league. Mrs. Brantley is now winding up four and a half years as state president of the Federation of Women's Clubs.

E. A. MORGAN SEAMLESS WEDDING RINGS ARE BEST E. A. MORGAN 119 Hunter St., S. W. "There's Economy in a Few Rings Around the Corner."

Tenth District President Issues Season's Greetings

Mrs. J. W. Hooks, of Gordon street, president of the tenth district, issues the following Christmas greetings:

"To the Tenth District clubwomen: Christmas falls on Sunday this year, an occurrence which happens only four times in every twenty-eight years. The Christmas bells are peeling today, the world over, their centuries old message, 'Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men.' The story of Christmas is a beautiful one. It has been told in poetry and song. It is not a heritage of race and language, but belongs to the whole wide world."

"May the meaning of this valedictory fruit in every heart and prepare us to fulfill the good resolutions made ready for the new year, on the threshold of which we now stand. Make every day a 'Christmas Day' and not only ourselves, but everyone with whom we come in contact will be benefited by that kindness."

"Realizing my inability to enjoy the personal contact which I should greatly appreciate, could I personally meet and wish each club member in the Tenth district the greetings of the season, I send my message of Christmas cheer through the columns of the club page—a special message of tender regard, with the hope that one and all may have a 'Merry Christmas,' and 'My Wish for All.'"

"Where'er you abide, be that home ever blest. And never with poverty be you oppressed; May health's rosy tint on your cheeks long appear. And happiness be yours for many a year. Till life, like a full sheaf, doth gloriously end. Is the wish from the heart of your president and friend."

Third District Board Indorses Mrs. Hays

Mrs. Robert E. Lee, president of the third district of the Georgia federation, states that in response to personal letters from her members of the executive board of the third district indorses Mrs. J. E. Hays for director for Georgia in the general federation.

Mrs. Brantley's Name Placed on Board.

Mrs. A. P. Brantley, of Blackshear, has been placed upon the advisory board of the special work for aged and disabled people of which Hon. S. G. McLeudon, secretary of state, is chairman of the board of trustees and Hon. George M. Napier, attorney general for Georgia, is counselor. Advisory board of directors for 1928 includes Hon. L. N. Ragdale, mayor of Atlanta; Hon. Luther H. Still, president Atlanta Typographical union and member Georgia general assembly 1928; E. Lee Worsham, state entomologist; James A. Holloman, associate editor Atlanta Constitution; James B. Nevin, editor Atlanta Georgian; John Paschall, managing editor Atlanta Journal; C. A. Cobb, editor Southern Ruralist; Henry C. Heine, international president of Kiwanians; Mrs. L. G. Hardman, wife of Governor Hardman; Frank M. Berry, cashier of Fourth National bank and national officer National union; Mrs. Clifford Walker, wife of ex-Governor Walker; A. W. Frye, supreme commander of the Macabees; P. H. Rice, captain, Augusta, Ga.; Mrs. A. P. Brantley, Blackshear, Ga., president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Arthur Wrigley, president Dixie Seal company; Hon. Miss Bessie Kenyon, member Georgia general assembly 1927; Dr. W. P. Glover, retired; C. R. Porter, banker and apple grower, Rossville, Ga.; N. Baxter Maddox, banker, vice president Jaycees; Mrs. Bessie Shaw Stafford, woman's department Atlanta Constitution and state news editor, Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; John Habersham, Atlanta Journal; Frank C. Gilchrist, president and general manager Gilchrist Press syndicate; R. A. Magill, president Associated Barbers; J. E. Bodenbauer, past grand master and present grand treasurer Odd Fellows, state of Georgia; W. A. Harris, district passenger agent N. C. & St. L.; R. P. Kuntz, supreme lieutenant commander of the Macabees; Warren Fogg, district passenger agent

Literary Digest Recognizes Intellect of Ga. Clubwomen

Two Georgia clubwomen, Mrs. Ira Farmer, of Atlanta, and Mrs. R. T. Crapps, of Fort Gaines, replied with such a marked degree of intelligence to the symposium being conducted by the Literary Digest on the subject, "Do Women Lose Brain Power Since 'Than Men'?" as to be included in the issue of December 3 and their statements were broadcast to the American public.

Mrs. Farmer had the following to say: "From the days of Aspinia to the present time, women have thought more than most men. And I have just seen a nice young man lose his 20-year-old fiancée because she was afraid to face years of boredom with one who has opinions only instead of information, while she keeps abreast of the times; a reversal of usual conditions a short time ago."

What has caused this reversal? The war, largely, believes Mrs. Crapps, who reminds us that: "There came the time in 1917 when our leading thinking men were called to the service of their country. They were carried away from their homes and even their country, to foreign shores. At home the morale had to be upheld; the household interests had to be maintained; help was needed to fill the vacant places and to carry on the necessary business affairs here. Georgia women came forward, filled the offices, occupied important places and rendered a noble service. Since the war the women have held their positions and have developed into progressive powers of the world."

Mrs. Farmer is chairman of home economics and Mrs. Crapps is literary chairman of the state federation.

Fourth District President Extends Her First Greetings

Mrs. W. R. Jones, fourth district president, who has but recently been elected to this high office among Georgia clubwomen, extends the following greetings to her district. She says: "On assuming the duties as president of the district I have been impressed with the splendid personnel of the officers and members of the clubs composing the district organization."

"The progress made, the continued interest displayed in the public and general welfare work is indeed complimentary and gratifying."

"I wish for each and every member a merry Christmas; that the pleasant reunions of families and friends may be happy ones, and that each may feel joyful in having done something for the uplift of humanity. May the God that rules over the destiny of us all direct us to higher and nobler things of life, and may each of us forth in the new year find renewed energy, to reap full joy from duties well performed."

Mrs. Rambo Receives Card From Veteran.

Mrs. Robert K. Rambo, past president of the Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs, received a Christmas card from W. W. McGleney, world war veteran, once a patient at Hospital No. 48, and cared for by the clubwomen, with Mrs. W. M. Nichols, as chairman for the federation. His card read: "Just to remind the Atlanta federation that I have not and will not forget the nice things and the cheerful things done for me while a patient at 48. I am in bed here at Hospital No. 63, in Lake City, Fla. and am lonely for Atlanta and such good friends as I know are among the women's clubs."

Marshallville Club Indorses Mrs. Hays.

Marshallville Woman's club unanimously indorses Mrs. J. E. Hays, of Montezuma, for director from Georgia in the general federation assembly. (Signed) Mrs. F. J. Frederick, president; Mrs. R. Clay Taylor, secretary.

Our Compliments and Appreciation

May your Christmas be as happy as you have made ours.

Cantilever Shoe Store

126 Arcade

A Very Merry Christmas

and a happy and prosperous New Year to our friends and customers, are the sincere wishes of

The Mirror

"Reflects Greater Values"

46-48 Whitehall

Merry Christmas

and a happy and prosperous 1928 to all our friends and patrons are the sincere wishes of this store. We fully appreciate your past business and trust that we may have the good pleasure of serving you in the future.

Satterwhite Furniture Company

306 Peachtree

WORKERS BUSY FITTING OAK FLOORS AT CONSTITUTION HOME

Haynes Manor Home To Have Bath in Colors

Visitors to Second Model Dwelling See Lowry Company Install Bathtubs of Spring Green and Autumn Brown; Bathroom Walls of Scagliola Another Feature.

BY ERNEST RUBIN.

As you approach the home this week the rhythmic strains of an orchestra flow out of open doors and windows to your ears. The mythical music recalls the dream home pictures that your mind created when, not many weeks ago, you gazed upon the architect's drawings and floor plans of The Constitution's second model home that were printed on this page.

Now you see before you the realization of that dream in brick and mortar and other building materials, the standard materials which The Constitution in cooperation with the Home Owners Institute has made the basis of this economic home building program. You wonder if the music too is real, but by this time you have come close enough to see that the orchestration is composed of regular beating of hammers and sawing of strips of sturdy oak wood, mingled with whistling and casual conversation of the workers, whose principal occupation this week is in laying of the floors.

All Floors of Oak.

The foreman, who has recognized you as one of the regular visitors to the home construction demonstration, where the Atlanta Realty and Construction company, well-known builders, are erecting the second model house on a beautiful Haynes Manor lot, tells you that oak flooring will be laid throughout the house. At first you think this extravagant for this small compact dwelling, but then you remember that it is in keeping with the other fine standard materials being used and that the purpose of the better building campaign is to show the ultimate low cost and saving by building from nationally known materials.

You have hardly entered the cozy colonial dwelling than you are on your way upstairs. There you know a surprise is awaiting you, for last week you were visiting the first model where the bathtubs arrived from the Lowry company, and you were told you would see an innovation in these. Then they were shown the new colored bathtubs, the first of their kind to be brought into any home in Atlanta and the latest word in bathroom fixtures. They are in pairs, the new Kohler plumbing fixtures in color. You are fortunate that a representative of the Lowry company, the exclusive agents for this equipment at the home supervising installation of the tubs, just when you happened to make your weekly call.

Colored Bath Fixtures. He will tell you that too, for the first time, kitchens and bathrooms can be built to suit individual personalities and tastes. He will show you that the orders put up for this new type of bathroom fixtures, attesting to their popularity and assuring their establishment not as a fad but as an important improvement in home building, reveal that architects and decorators, as well as housewives and owners, are quick to sense the increased possibilities colors offer for creation of beautiful effects.

In this case, he remarks, spring green bathroom fixtures have been chosen for one room and autumn brown fixtures for the other bath. Both are delicate shades of unifying attractiveness. The autumn brown tub is of the full recess type and is being fitted into an alcove so that only one side will be exposed. In the other bathroom they have already installed the spring green tub. It is of the corner type exposing one side and one end. With the exception of color and style of tubs, the two sets of bathroom fixtures will be identical, including the lavatory on pedestal and china toilet in colors to match.

Scagliola Walls. The lavatory and toilet will be installed later, after the tile floor has been laid. In the meantime samples of the two colors being used in the bathroom fixtures have been furnished by Lowry company to the Scagliola and Stucco company, which will construct the special bathroom Scagliola walls in colors to harmonize, another outstanding feature for The Constitution's second model home.

You glance at your watch and see that the time has flown by unnoticed while you inspect the model home. You want to watch the progress of the floors and have another look at the beautiful colored bathtubs, the first to be installed in any Atlanta home, and you want to hear more of the Scagliola bathroom walls and the Scagliola hearth that is to decorate the exquisite colonial living room, but this would make you late for dinner, so you hurry off knowing you will return to the scene next week, and planning to follow reports of construction progress outlined on this page.

Regardless of skill, painters can always do a more satisfactory job if the paint is of the Tripod standard of quality.

Also, he works faster when the paint flows evenly with each stroke of the brush.

TRIPOD PAINT CO.
33 N. Pryor St.

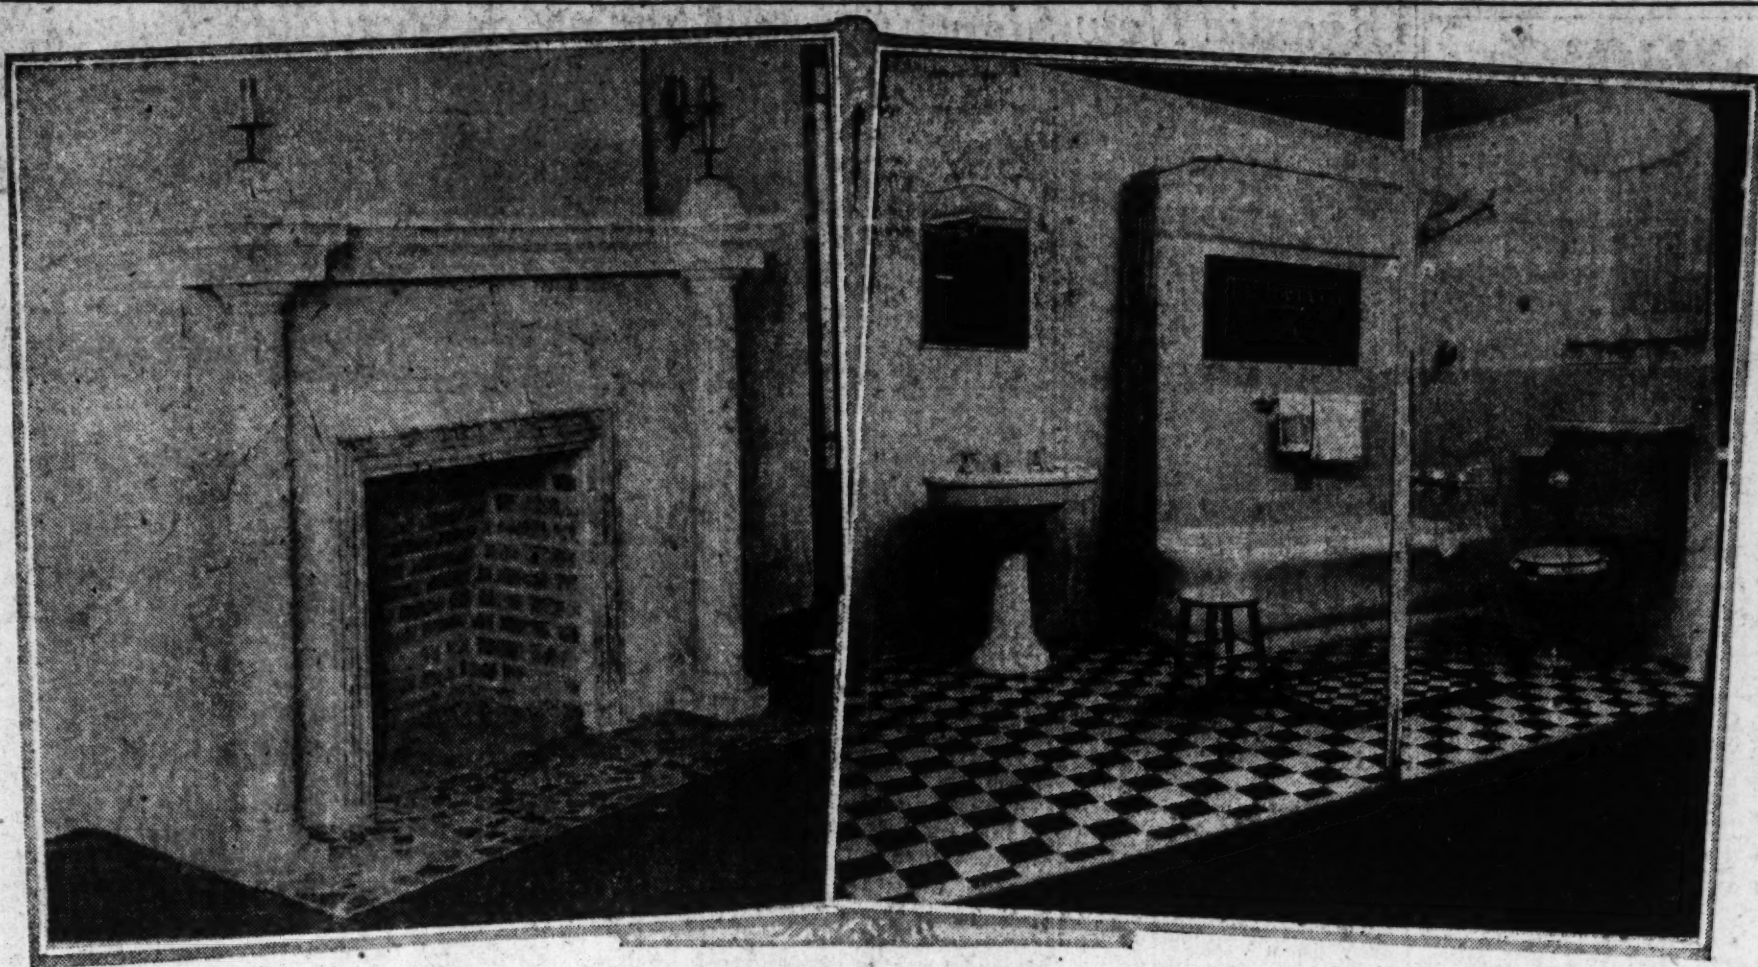

BUY A LOT IN HAYNES MANOR
ATLANTA'S BEAUTIFUL RESIDENTIAL SUBDIVISION
A section in which you will be proud to live. The prices are right and terms attractive. An inquiry will be cordially received.
Office on the Property. Phone HElock 4731.

Totally Different WALL PAPER

WE HAVE been Wall Paper Experts for a good many years, and have satisfactorily papered hundreds of homes. The expert service we have given others in your neighborhood. A postal or phone call will bring our representative. Our Wall Papers are "different." Let us make estimate on your next job, both painting and wall papering.

J. H. GRAY-DYER CO.
346 Peachtree St. IV, 0736

Beautifying Innovations for Model Home Interior

Features that will distinguish The Constitution's second model home being built in Haynes Manor. At the left is seen an artistic hearth place made of scagliola by the Scagliola and Stucco company, similar to the one that will be installed in the model home. On the right is shown the Lowry company window display of Kohler bathroom fixtures in colors. These sample fixtures of the latest thing in home decoration were the first to be displayed. They illustrate the spring green and autumn brown bathroom fixtures being installed in The Constitution home, the first to be equipped in Atlanta.

CHANGES ARE URGED IN SAVANNAH PLANS

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Modification of the development project for the Savannah below Augusta, Ga., is recommended by army engineers in a report transmitted to congress by Secretary Davis of the war department. As revised the project would call for a channel of six-foot depth to the head of navigation at Augusta through construction of one lock and movable dam and general river improvement at a total estimated cost of $1,305,000. The improvements would be subject to acquisition of the necessary land for the lock and dam by local interests, federal work to be held until this is assured. The secretary of war would also require assurances that there would be available within three years adequate terminals for handling a minimum of 125,000 tons of commerce annually exclusive of sand and logging operations.

MRS. EVA HICKMAN POSTPONES PLANS TO VISIT HER SON

Kansas City, December 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Eva Hickman temporarily has postponed plans to visit her 19-year-old son, Edward, confessed kidnaper of Marian Parker.

This was announced today by Colonel Charles Edwards, former chief of police here, to whom Edward was paroled after he was convicted of forgery while employed at the Los Angeles bank of which Marian's father is an official.

Colonel Edwards said that when Mrs. Hickman expressed a desire to see her son and to follow his arrest in Oregon, he assured her he would arrange transportation. Scores of offers of financial assistance were received, including numerous letters containing checks.

After a conference with the mother, Colonel Edwards said she declined to accept the offers of financial aid and agreed that as she might not be permitted to see Edward pending his arraignment, she had decided to await developments.

Colonel Edwards said the checks would be returned and that he had declined telephoned offers that kept him busy for several hours yesterday.

HELP OF PUBLIC WILL BE SOUGHT IN DRY CAMPAIGN

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—During next year's prohibition enforcement operations a particular effort will be made to obtain the cooperation of the public.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of prohibition enforcement, believes that with the whole-hearted support of public opinion, the officials have a chance of effectually enforcing the law, but without such support their task is almost hopeless.

"The main idea for the next year is to talk little and prevent normally without spurs or drives," he said. "The usual Yuletide operations will be centered on night clubs in New York and other cities. Agents will watch the night clubs of New York for hip pocket revellers. The drive against Florida smuggling, Secretary Lowman said, has been aided by the storms off the coast which have reduced the operations of rum ships to a minimum but have encouraged the operations of moonshiners.

MONEY IS SOUGHT FOR TAMPA HARBOR

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Concurrence of the chief of army engineers in recommendations for additional improvements in Tampa Harbor, Fla., at an estimated cost of $48,000, was reported to congress.

The revised Tampa Harbor project is based on a study showing a "healthy increase" in the movement of the large commerce handled through this port and calls for a channel 28 feet deep at Edmont bar and for a width of 300 feet in Hillsboro Bay and Spaulding Bay channels. A preliminary survey was ordered by the last session of congress.

121 TAMPA PRISONERS ARE GIVEN FREEDOM

Tampa, Fla., December 24.—(AP)—Mayor Perry G. Wall, today unlocked the cells of 121 prisoners in the city's Coliseum Christmas gift to the transgressors. He also presented each with a crisp one-dollar bill.

SAMUEL M. EVANS PASSES SUDDENLY

Samuel Marshall Evans, 70, of 324 Josephine street, N. E., an employee of The Constitution for more than 40 years, died suddenly at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon at his home.

Mr. Evans had apparently been in sound health, although he had suffered a severe cold for the past few weeks. He told his family when he left home for his office Saturday morning that he felt fine, but when he returned home in the early afternoon he complained of feeling ill. He was stricken while sitting in a chair, and died before medical assistance could be summoned.

As one of the veteran employees of The Constitution, Mr. Evans was well known in Atlanta newspaper circles, and had many friends in the city and state. At the time of his death he was manager of the list room of the Tri-weekly, Daily and Sunday Constitution.

Mr. Evans is survived by his widow, a son, C. C. Evans, of Chimney Rock, N. C.; a step-daughter, Mrs. Grace Wilkerson, of Atlanta, and six grandchildren, Marshall, Clyde, Elliott and Jimmie Evans, of Chimney Rock, and Juanita and Sammie Wilkerson, of Atlanta. He was a member of the Woodmen of the World and attended Patillo Memorial church.

Awtry & Lowndes have charge of the funeral arrangements.

HAPEVILLE CLUB GETS XMAS GIFTS

The Hapeville Woman's club, thriving civic organization of this suburban Atlanta city, is the recipient of two unopened gifts, both being donated during the past month as Christmas tokens.

Mrs. Eugene King, wife of the present mayor of Hapeville and a daughter of Dr. Samuel G. Hape, founder of the city which bears his name, Friday presented the gifts to the club. Mrs. King, who is president of the club, has been aided by the storms off the coast which have reduced the operations of rum ships to a minimum but have encouraged the operations of moonshiners.

The drive against Florida smuggling, Secretary Lowman said, has been aided by the storms off the coast which have reduced the operations of rum ships to a minimum but have encouraged the operations of moonshiners.

$600 Is Reward Raised in Dacula For Ax Slayers

Dacula, Ga., December 24.—(Special)—Dacula is making a Christmas offering of $600 to justice.

This is the sum raised by citizens of this little city for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers of Jim Beddingfield and his 9-year-old son, John.

The slaying was done with an ax and the farmer, who lived about a mile from Dacula, was robbed of about $500. Gory finger prints left by the murderer were found too illegible for use by experts. Nothing else that would furnish a workable clue was discovered.

Vaughan Sales Manager Of Atlanta Milling Co.

Officials of the Atlanta Milling company, makers for thirty years of the famous Capitola flour, announced Saturday that on January 1 one of the foremost flour sales executives in the southeast becomes affiliated with

Mr. Vaughan, who has been actively identified with the sale of flour in the southeast, has noted the remarkable strides made by our company, and as a result has naturally felt that an affiliation with us would give him an opportunity to expand his activities. It may be of interest to people in this section to know," continued Mr. Bachman, "that the Atlanta Milling company leads to Atlanta the distinction of having the largest soft wheat mill in the entire south and one of the largest in the entire United States. Our company, which has been in operation for over thirty years, has paid in salaries to its employees during that period a sum which, in my estimation would supply the needs of the Atlanta Community Chest for a number of years. The plant represents an investment of practically a million dollars and our products, thanks to their uniformly high quality, are sold by over 2,000 retailers in the metropolitan Atlanta district."

Mr. Vaughan, who has been a resident in the Druid Hills section for the past eight years, states that from every angle the coming year will be one of greatly increased activity in this section.

"The connection with this old-established, well-known company," said Mr. Vaughan, "is one that I feel presents a great opportunity. The mill itself represents the last word in mechanical efficiency, labor-saving equipment and thousands of dollars of additional equipment are installed to insure the even milling and the utmost satisfaction in the converting of wheat into the snowy-white Capitola flour, which are so dear to the hearts of southern cooks."

A great opportunity exists in the south, according to this company, for increased activity in growing wheat. Many thousands of dollars would pour into the treasury of southern farmers annually if they would give a portion of their land to the raising of this crop.

The Atlanta Milling company has practically at all times maintained an active market for all the wheat and corn of standard quality that could be produced in this section.

Christmas Carols Delight Many Thousands in Atlanta

Grady Hospital and Hotels Hear "My Maryland" Singers

BY PAUL STEVENSON.
Related Christmas shoppers who thronged Atlanta streets Christmas Eve night, lonely traveling men in hotel lobbies and many other people were cheered Saturday night by some real Christmas carol singing when the big chorus of the "My Maryland" company mounted on five large motor trucks, sang their way through the heart of the downtown business section under the auspices of The Constitution.

For days the girls of the chorus of the "My Maryland" company had been rehearsing for the unique carol singing show they staged Saturday night and on every hand they were greeted with enthusiastic applause. Leaving the Erlanger theater at 7:30 o'clock, the carol singers rode downtown on the motor trucks furnished by the courtesy of the Skidmore-Lambert Motor company. On the trucks were pianos furnished by the Phillips & Crew company. As jolly a bunch of Christmas carols as ever this old town heard were furnished by the "My Maryland" singers to the people of Atlanta.

One of the features of the carol singing was the concert given by the singers at Grady hospital. This was offered at the suggestion of Mrs. Frank Carter Poque, a past president of the Grady hospital auxiliary, who wired The Constitution from Birmingham, Ala., suggesting that the patients at Grady hospital be serenaded by the singers.

The carol girls and boys first went to the Biltmore hotel, where they staged a short concert in the beautiful garden of that hotel. Then downtown to the Henry Grady hotel, thence to the Wincoff, thence to the Andley and Piedmont and then to Grady hospital moved the procession of trucks, and several stops were made at busy downtown street corners.

Everywhere they appeared the pretty girls of the chorus were given cordial and enthusiastic receptions and they responded by providing the crowds with some real "ho-ho-ho" Christmas harmony.

rectly to the energy and the enthusiasm with which they worked to make a plan a success.

Throughout the holiday season the lawns will remain lighted and a drive through the residential section any time of the day will reveal a beautiful display of lighted trees and a host of multi-colored electric lights.

This plan spread from being merely a city affair to a state-wide adoption, with elaboration into community living Christmas trees following. Many beautiful and historic old Georgia homes in the state are framed in pictures of verdant green trees and shrubbery lighted with cheery little electric bulbs.

The Camp Fire Girls are to be commended and their "Light Your Living Trees" slogan is one that should stand every Christmas season in every home.

J. C. HARRISON SEEN IN TREASURER RACE

J. C. Harrison, dean of Atlanta grocery salesmen, a former president of the City Salesmen's association and a leader in Travelers' Protective association circles of Atlanta, probably will enter the race for Fulton county treasurer in the primary next spring to succeed Miss Margaret Culbertson, who will not offer again, it was announced Saturday.

The announcement followed a caucus of close personal friends of Mr. Harrison, and although the veteran vendor of groceries in large lots in Atlanta for the past 25 years declined to state definitely that he will be a candidate, he has taken the matter under advisement. Those close to him declare he will accept the nomination "at the right time."

Mr. Harrison was born at Oxford, Ala., August 28, 1873. He gained his early education and was graduated from Oxford college there. He then came to Atlanta and joined the sales force of the A. M. D. Wilson company, where he remained for three years. He next became affiliated with the sales force of the Walker Brothers company, and held a position with that firm for 17 years. Five years ago he became associated with W. E. Edwards company.

He is superintendent of the Sunday school and chairman of the board of deacons of the Central Baptist church, and at the present time chaplain of the City Salesmen's association. He also is a Scottish Rite Mason and a Shriner. From 1908 to 1911 he served the city as councilman from the third ward.

Built-In Cabinet Attractive. Built-in medicine chests give to the walls of the bath room a pleasing and uniform appearance. Finished in nickel silver with many attractive designs on the mirror, these chests have an appeal to many differing tastes, and suit all color schemes.

WARSAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

Warsaw, December 24.—(AP)—Eighteen persons have been arrested here by the Warsaw police who declare that they have uncovered an organization said to be directly connected with Moscow for providing communists with money for propaganda to be used in the forthcoming Polish elections.

FORMER INDIANA STATE TREASURER CALLED EMBEZZLER

Kokomo, Ind., December 24.—(AP)—One J. Davies, former state treasurer, and other persons connected with the defunct American Trust company and associated enterprises, today were indicted by the Howard county grand jury on charges of embezzlement, perjury, grand larceny, conspiracy to make false financial statements and borrowing money without consent of the board of directors. The trust company was closed several months ago by the state banking department.

IMPROVEMENT URGED IN CAROLINA CREEK

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Improvement of Khaba creek, North Carolina, for navigation purposes at a cost of $75,000 has been recommended to congress after a survey by army engineers. The plan calls for a ten-foot channel in Fungotank river to the Norfolk-Southern railroad bridge and a turning basin, local interests to provide necessary land to carry out the work.

WASH. DEC. 24.—(AP)—

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—The pope today was receiving Christmas greetings from all over the world, the most numerous being from the United States.

Especially warm greetings were received from Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston; Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia; Cardinal Hayes, of New York; and Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago. A message also came from Monsignor Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate at Washington.

The pontiff received the sacred college in the hall of the Vatican today, twenty-five cardinals being present. Dwan Vincenzo Vannutelli, who despite his 92 years is still vigorous and alert, delivered a short speech in the important work done by the holy see throughout the world under the direction of Pius XI. He conveyed to the pontiff the warmest greetings of all the members of the sacred college and expressed the hope that the Almighty might preserve the pontiff for many years to come at the service of the Catholic church for the complete triumph of religion even in countries where it has been persecuted.

The pope made a short speech in reply thanking the cardinal for the good wishes conveyed to him and returning fraternal greetings to the cardinals expressing the hope that he would see them all for many years to come.

Local Couple Wedded Fifty Years Today

Mr. and Mrs. William C. (Cap) White, of 855 Stewart avenue, S. W., pioneer residents of Fulton county, will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today at their home at an informal reception for their relatives and friends.

Both Mr. and Mrs. White were born in Fulton county on the south side and have spent practically all of their lives in the city. They are widely known in railroad circles.

They have been married just one-half of a century—not so long for young folks, to hear them tell it and of their hopes to live just that much longer together. They were married December 25, 1877, on a cold, dreary day at the home of the bride on Terry street. She was before her marriage Miss Mary Jane Gravit.

Mr. White started to work for the Southern railroad as a car repairman. He held that position for ten years and then was given an opportunity to handle a big derrick used when wrecks occur. He held the position of foreman of the derrick force for 28 years. It was during those years that he became popularly known as "Cap" White by all railroad men. Seven years ago he was given the position in the shops of the Southern railroad as foreman of a yard crew of repairmen.

Not only has he for many years been connected with the road, but his four sons, Guy, Edward, Frank and Charles White, have all served at least 20 years each in the service of the company. Guy, his oldest son, is general foreman of the Southern railroad shops.

Mr. White and his sons together have given an aggregate total of more than 150 years in the service of the Southern.

WARSZAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

Warsaw, December 24.—(AP)—Eighteen persons have been arrested here by the Warsaw police who declare that they have uncovered an organization said to be directly connected with Moscow for providing communists with money for propaganda to be used in the forthcoming Polish elections.

Built-In Cabinet Attractive. Built-in medicine chests give to the walls of the bath room a pleasing and uniform appearance. Finished in nickel silver with many attractive designs on the mirror, these chests have an appeal to many differing tastes, and suit all color schemes.

WARSAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

Warsaw, December 24.—(AP)—Eighteen persons have been arrested here by the Warsaw police who declare that they have uncovered an organization said to be directly connected with Moscow for providing communists with money for propaganda to be used in the forthcoming Polish elections.

Built-In Cabinet Attractive. Built-in medicine chests give to the walls of the bath room a pleasing and uniform appearance. Finished in nickel silver with many attractive designs on the mirror, these chests have an appeal to many differing tastes, and suit all color schemes.

WARSAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

Warsaw, December 24.—(AP)—Eighteen persons have been arrested here by the Warsaw police who declare that they have uncovered an organization said to be directly connected with Moscow for providing communists with money for propaganda to be used in the forthcoming Polish elections.

Built-In Cabinet Attractive. Built-in medicine chests give to the walls of the bath room a pleasing and uniform appearance. Finished in nickel silver with many attractive designs on the mirror, these chests have an appeal to many differing tastes, and suit all color schemes.

WARSAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

Warsaw, December 24.—(AP)—Eighteen persons have been arrested here by the Warsaw police who declare that they have uncovered an organization said to be directly connected with Moscow for providing communists with money for propaganda to be used in the forthcoming Polish elections.

Built-In Cabinet Attractive. Built-in medicine chests give to the walls of the bath room a pleasing and uniform appearance. Finished in nickel silver with many attractive designs on the mirror, these chests have an appeal to many differing tastes, and suit all color schemes.

WARSAW POLICE MAKE 18 ARRESTS IN SOVIET PLOT

WARM GREETINGS SENT POPE PIUS

Rome, December 24.—(AP)—Pope Pius today was receiving Christmas greetings from all over the world, the most numerous being from the United States.

Especially warm greetings were received from Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston; Cardinal Dougherty, of Philadelphia; Cardinal Hayes, of New York; and Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago. A message also came from Monsignor Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate at Washington.

The pontiff received the sacred college in the hall of the Vatican today, twenty-five cardinals being present. Dwan Vincenzo Vannutelli, who despite his 92 years is still vigorous and alert, delivered a short speech in the important work done by the holy see throughout the world under the direction of Pius XI. He conveyed to the pontiff the warmest greetings of all the members of the sacred college and expressed the hope that the Almighty might preserve the pontiff for many years to come at the service of the Catholic church for the complete triumph of religion even in countries where it has been persecuted.

The pope made a short speech in reply thanking the cardinal for the good wishes conveyed to him and returning fraternal greetings to the cardinals expressing the hope that he would see them all for many years to come.

AMATEUR HELPS BRING MESSAGE TO WHITE HOUSE

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—A Christmas greeting to President and Mrs. Coolidge reached the white house today from the wester of North Labrador through the assistance of an amateur radio operator in Hudson, Massachusetts.

The message came from Donald MacMillan, on behalf of members of the Field museum scientific expedition stationed in north Labrador and sent greetings and wish you and Mrs. Coolidge a very happy Christmas and a most enjoyable New Year.

Messere did not mention his own part in the transmission of the message but President Coolidge was so much interested in seeing the Labrador date line on it that he had inquiries made of the telephone company. He then promptly dispatched a letter to MacMillan in care of the Field museum at Chicago and another to Messere, thanking him for his courtesy in relaying the message.

FLORIDA BANDITS ROB COLLECTOR FOR CHAIN STORES

Jacksonville, Fla., December 24.—(AP)—Two or more bandits in a closed automobile held up J. C. Cherry, collector for a chain store system here today as he was making his rounds and robbed him of several thousand dollars.

Hal Blitch, owner of the stores, declined to estimate the amount of loss obtained, but police disclosed it would be at least $3,000.

The bandits took place after Cherry had made collections of receipts from ten of the stores and included in the loot were envelopes containing Christmas bonuses for employees.

The bandits were believed by police to have stolen their machine.

Columbia Building & Loan Association

127 Carnegie Way

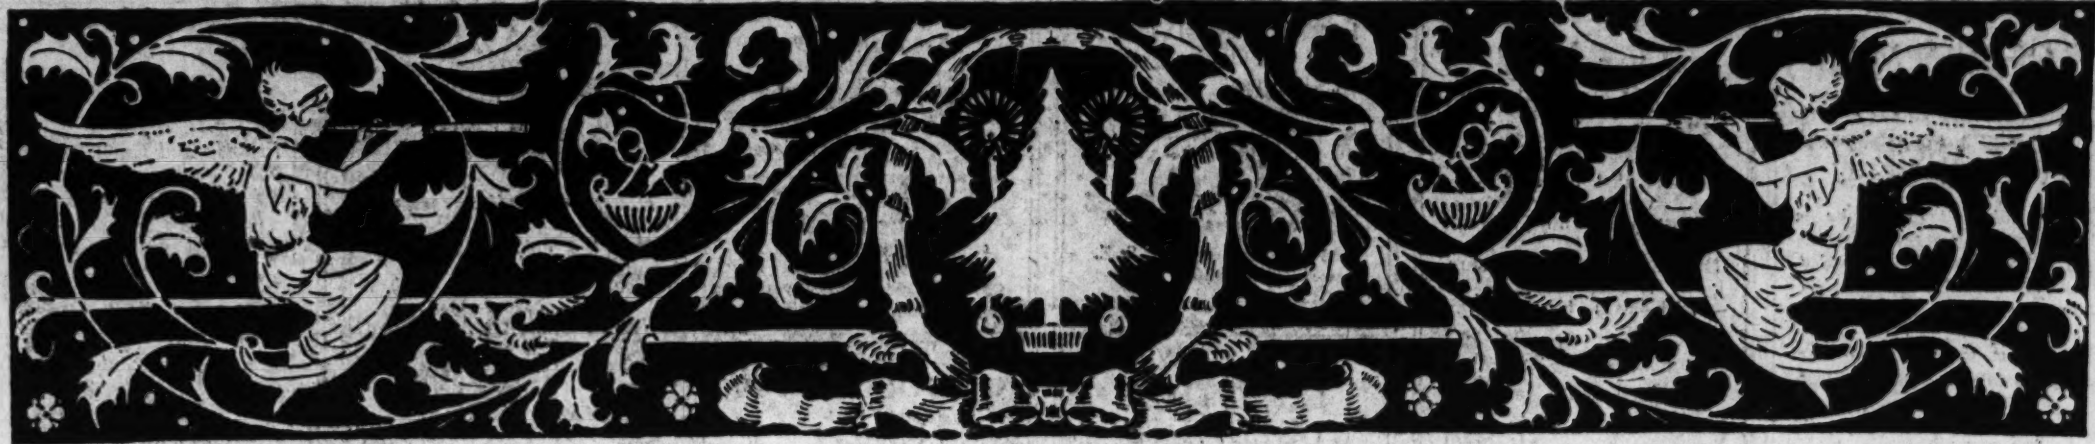

Wish to extend to their many friends and shareholders, a Merry Xmas and Happy New Year

Season's Greetings

Best wishes for a day of cheer—a season of joy—a New Year filled with the choicest Blessing, is our wish to all our friends and patrons.

Chas. N. Walker ROOFING COMPANY

141 Houston St., N. E.
Phone WA. 5747

A Merry Christmas to All

CHRISTMAS, the season for the renewal of old friendships, for the forgetting of differences, for the expression of good will and kindness, is here.

¶ May your Christmas be filled with joy and happiness, unmarred by sorrow, and may you carry with you through the coming year the spirit of the Yuletide.

¶ Our wish is that this may be for you a Christmas day long to be remembered for its happiness and cheer and that we may serve you better through the coming year 1928.

ANGIER AVENUE SHOE SHOP
ISAAC ALAHADOFF, Prop.
303 Angier Avenue, N. E. IVy 0911

ATLANTA BATTERY SERVICE STATION
W. M. PERRYMAN, Prop.
48 Houston street WALnut 8209

ATLANTA MANUFACTURING CO.
Tents, Awnings and Tarp.
508 Stewart Ave. MAin 4782

ATLANTA STOCK YARDS, INC.
Howell Mill Road HEmlock 6179

ATLANTA TILE & MARBLE CO.
McGlaw-Bowen Bldg. WALnut 6650

ATLANTA TRUCK BODY WORKS
709 Marietta St., N. W. IVy 4987

THE AURORA PUMP CO.
LAWRENCE MANNING, District Mgr.
1225 Atlanta Trust Co. Bldg. WALnut 1348

AUSTIN BROS. BRIDGE CO.
1195 Mickleberry St. WEst 2200

AUTOMOTIVE SERVICE CO.
62 Ivy street, N. E. IVy 6912
We do parking and auto repairing

AVONDALE TIRE & BATTERY CO.
C. E. LOWE, Mgr.
Avondale Estates, Ga. DEarborn 9150

AYCOCK BROS.
COAL AND COKE
1187 Allene Ave., S. W. WEst 1643

BAILEY BROS. SHOE REPAIR SHOP
110 Atlanta Avenue DEarborn 0172

BERNATH'S MARKET
Groceries—Fresh Meats
39-B Georgia Ave., S. E. MAin 0947

MRS. L. N. BERRY, STENOGRAPHER
Atlanta National Bank Bldg. IVy 1081
Specializing in Audit Report Work.

BOYER FIRE APPARATUS CO.
LAWRENCE MANNING, District Mgr.
1225 Atlanta Trust Co. Bldg. WALnut 1348

I. H. BROOKS TRANSFER CO.
840 Bankhead Ave., N. W. HEmlock 2341

CALDWELL HARDWOOD FLOOR CO.
Bona Allen Bldg. WALnut 2017

CAMPBELL HARDWARE CO.
College Park FAirfax 1901

CAMPBELL HARDWARE CO.
281 Peters St., S. W. MAin 1834

CAMPBELL & HAMBY
GROCERIES
1480 Marietta Road Franklin 9136

CARNEGIE WAY LUNCH ROOM
158 Carnegie Way, N. E. IVy 6933

R. P. CHAMBERS TIRE & BATTERY SERVICE
254 Boulevard, N. E. IVy 5378

DODSON PRODUCE CO.
177 Central Ave., S. W. WALnut 3249

W. H. DOSTER DRUG CO.
550 North McDonough DEarborn 0203
Decatur, Ga.

ELGIN CORPORATION
LAWRENCE MANNING, District Mgr.
1225 Atlanta Trust Co. Bldg. WALnut 1348

FULTON ICE CO.
T. A. Knight, Pres. MAin 2400

GREEN'S SERVICE STATION
94 Central Avenue FAirfax 9182

GREEN & WHITE BAKERY
832 Gordon, S. W. WEst 0400

GRANT SIGN CO.
155 Alabama, S. W. IVy 2616

GULF REFINING CO.
HAPEVILLE DRY CLEANING CO.
L. V. HALL, Prop. FAirfax 9150

HAPEVILLE DRUG CO.
Hapeville, Ga. FAirfax 1120

HOLLAND FURNACE CO.
620 Means, N. W. HEmlock 2736

B. MIFFLIN HOOD BRICK CO.
686 Greenwood Ave., N. E. HEmlock 2252

HOWARD CLEANERS, INC.
IVEY'S DRUG STORE
On Emory Campus DEarborn 9118

JEFFARES-LONG DRUG CO.
Edgewood at Pryor WALnut 0461
North Decatur & Oxford Road DEarborn 1395

KISTNER MARKET

29 Broad, S. W. Phone WA. 2076

LLOYD'S BEAUTY PARLOR
624 Lee, S. W. WEst 2828

LYNCH, THE TAILOR
HENRY C. TAYLOR, President

MID-TOWN HOTEL
73 Pryor St., N. E. IVy 1806

ORANGE CRUSH BOTTLING CO.
153 Ellis, N. E. IVy 1091

PARHAM DRY CLEANING CO.
667 N. Highland Ave., N. E. HEmlock 6780

H. M. PATTERSON & SON
110 Forsyth St. WALnut 0217

PENN. DIXIE CEMENT CORP.

SUNSHINE DRY CLEANING CO.
681 Boulevard, N. E. IVy 3712

TEMPLE GARDEN TEA CO.
Teas, Coffee, Spices, Extracts

352 Nelson St. MAin 1029

THE TEXAS CO.

KNOX T. THOMAS
Civil Engineer WALnut 3722

ROBERT THOMPSON CO.
Realtors WALnut 8372

TIFFANY SHAHL PRODUCTION, Inc.
154 Walton St., Atlanta.

227 North Grand, Charlotte, N. C.

WM. G. MINDER, Southern Division Mgr.

UNION BUS LINE
17-B North Forsyth WALnut 3351

VAUGHAN'S RESTAURANT
AND CAFETERIA WALnut 5100

WALTON'S HOME-COOKED MEALS
193 Whitehall, S. W. WALnut 9351

WINECOFF HOTEL
176 Peachtree St., N. W. IVy 1200

WOOLFORD REALTY CO.
98 1/2 Luckie St., N. W. WALnut 5457

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

The Radiance of Bethlehem's Star!

ON Christmas Day may the beautiful Star of Bethlehem cast across your way rich, golden tints of happiness and may you live in its genial radiance through the whole of the New Year.

J. Austin Dillon Company

502 Pryor St., S. W.
Phone MAin 4680

A Friendly Christmas Wish!

TO FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

We wish you all Christmas joy and that each day of the New Year may bring its share of happiness, and that we may serve you better through 1928.

Falks Waffle Shop
138 Peachtree St.
WAlnut 7518
MR. AND MRS. M. FALK

YULETIDE HAPPINESS!

Dear Friends and Customers;

WE are much pleased to have this opportunity of extending to you our sincere thanks for all favors of the past and to invite your continued patronage in the future.

We hope this Holiday Season may be one to be remembered by you for the good pleasures it has bestowed.

Robt. F. Brownlee Furniture
457 Edgewood Ave.
At Boulevard

"A good furniture store out of the high rent district"

Our Wish For Christmas and The New Year!

We wish you all the happiness That Christmas ever brought
May happy thoughts enrich your day
With pleasant memories wrought,
And then to make our wish complete
We'll add for your good measure
The happiest of all New Year's
That your good heart can treasure.

JOY'S
626 Peachtree Street
Phone HEm. 4214

CHRISTMAS IN FULL MEASURE!

May this Christmas be a splendid Happy Day,
And long after it has ended,
May it stay
In your mind a precious treasure,
Giving measure after measure,
Of the highest kind of pleasure,
Every day.

DERRINGTON'S BEAUTY PARLOR
307 Wynne-Claughton Bldg.
Phone WAlnut 3387

A THREEFOLD HAPPY CHRISTMAS!

Friendly folk, a bounteous board,
Contentment deep and true,
May this Christmas Day afford
These blessings three for you.

And May I Be Able to Serve You Better Through the Year 1928

T. D. GIBBS, Grocer
426 Newport St.
Phone IVy 3205

A JOYFUL HOLIDAY SEASON!

OUR FRIENDS:
We welcome this opportunity to thank all for your business done with us and to wish for you a joyful Holiday Season and twelve months of uninterrupted peace, happiness and prosperity.

Pershing Point Beauty Parlor
1428 Peachtree, N. E.
HEm. 1651

Hearty Greetings!

FRIENDS:
We wish you the best of all good things that a glad Christmas-time can afford and all good luck Fair Fortune brings for the days of the coming New Year.

ROSE BEAUTY PARLOR
764 Forsyth, N. W.
IVy 6876

Our Best!

To Our Friends:

I'm sure that there is not a verse
More filled with Christmas cheer,
Than this of ours which surely does
Wish hard for you this year.

"A Merry Christmas"
And Hope We Can Serve You Better in 1928.

Georgia Dairy Products Co.
352 Forsyth Street, S. W.
Phone WAlnut 6809

A MERRY CHRISTMAS!

May your Christmas start early
And end very late,
And be without question
The best one to date.

BAGBY DRY CLEANING CO.
725 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E.
IVy 8881

The Season's Greetings!

DEAR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS:

Please accept this Christmas Day the best of thoughts and wishes that a friend can send a friend.

We thank you most heartily for all patronage of the past and trust we may be able to serve you better in the future.

Airheart Pharmacy
1556 Piedmont Ave.
HEm. 1105

LASTING CHRISTMAS JOYS!

May Christmas cheer bring you, dear friends, enough of joy, peace and content to last you throughout the year of 1928.

KATHLEEN BEAUTY PARLOR
Hurt Bldg.
IVy 1528

Happy Christmas and Successful New Year!

May your Christmas be bright in every way,
The happiest kind of a happy day.
May the New Year also bring to you
Success and peace in all you do.

ARTHUR'S CAFE
55 West Mitchell
IVy 9554

LASTING CHRISTMAS JOYS!

May Christmas cheer bring you, dear friends, enough of joy, peace and content to last you throughout the year of 1928.

GATE CITY MATTRESS COMPANY
425-7 Edgewood Ave., S. E.
IVy 3681

HEARTY CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:
Christmas Day is here again,
For peace on earth, good will to men,
May peace and joy and blessings too
This Christmas Day abide with you.

May New Year bring its gifts for you
Of kind remembrances and true,
Of best success and needed health,
Of loving ties and added wealth.

McDaniel Street Mattress Co.
Mr. Weir, Prop.
512 McDaniel St., S. W.
IVy 8365

The Season's Delight

We feel that Christmas is a most fitting time to extend our thanks to our friends for our appreciation of the business with which they have favored us and to show our good will in a word of the season's greetings.

May Christmas sparkle with gladness and delight and the New Year be filled with many golden hours of opportunity and success attained.

Weinberger's
667 Peachtree St.

MOST EARNEST GREETINGS!

To Our Customers:

We thank you heartily for your past trade and will thank you heartily for your continued trade; not having the opportunity and pleasure of greeting you all face to face today, through the medium of the press we extend our most earnest greetings of the season.

J. FARMER CO. COAL
1659 DeKalb Ave., N. E.
Phone DEarborn 1478
Yard: East Point.
FAirfax 1076

CHRISTMAS GOOD CHEER!

FRIENDS:
We hope that your Christmas may be merry and full of good cheer, and that the New Year of 1928 may be one of much happiness and prosperity.

Thanks for all past favors in our business dealings and be assured that your further patronage will be much appreciated.

J. W. ALLEN SALON
57 1-2 Whitehall, S. W.
WAlnut 5894

COUNTLESS HAPPY THOUGHTS AND WISHES!

As the Christmas lights are glowing
And the candles softly glow,
We shall find ourselves a dreaming
Of the days of long ago.
But amongst our dreams no splendid
There shall come, no promise you,
Countless happy thoughts and wishes
For your joy the whole year through.

GEORGE DOWMAN SHEET METAL AND ROLLED STEEL PRODUCTS
419 Rhoads Bldg.
WAl 8887

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU!

The same old wish,
Yet ever new,
The time-worn wish,
Yet ever true,
"MERRY CHRISTMAS!"

George's Delicatessen
389 Boulevard, N. E.
Phone IVy 8017
A Clean, Sanitary Place
Fresh Western Meats

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success.

In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

HUIET'S PHARMACY

353 Boulevard, N. E.
Corner Forrest Ave.
WA. 1317

Visit your new Huiet's Pharmacy—new building—new fixtures—Everything new and up-to-date.

CORDIAL GREETINGS!

May your joys of Christmas grow sweeter with the sunshine of life and the New Year bring to you a rich harvest of all that is good and best.

ATKINS PARK DAIRY

800 North Highland
HEm. 2774

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP! CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success.

In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

Aldine Pressing Club

47 North Avenue, N. E.
HEmlock 9218

WORTHWHILE CHRISTMAS HAPPINESS!

ON Christmas Day, dear friends,
Within your heart may gladness stay,
May life's truest, deepest blessings
And contentment cross your way;
May its brightness and its sunshine
Good cheer, love and friendship too
Make the day hold only worthwhile
Lasting happiness for you.

ACREE ROOFING COMPANY

594 FLETCHER, S. W.
WESt 2712

FOR YOUR PLEASURE AT THIS TIME!

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:
In keeping with the spirit of the day, we are pleased to send our thanks for your past trade and our good wishes for an unusually satisfactory Christmas, followed by a whole year of good fortune.

C. G. AYCOCK REALTY CO.
Insurance-Broker-Loan
Federal Building
WAlnut 8887

JUST A TINY GREETING MESSAGE!

Never a friendly greeting
Never a message sincere
Could carry kinder wishes
Than the one we're sending here,
"Merry Christmas."

W. M. GARVIN TIN SHOP
137 Edgewood Ave., S. E.
IVy 4040

A FRIENDLY CHRISTMAS WISH!

FRIENDS: We wish you all Christmas joy and that each day of the New Year may bring its share of happiness.

PARKS SHOE REPAIRING & PRESSING
903 Hunter, N. W.
WESt 0218

MOST EARNEST GREETINGS!

To Both Our Customers and Friends:

We thank you heartily for your past trade and will thank you for your continued trade through 1928. Not having the opportunity and pleasure of greeting you all face to face today, through the medium of the press we extend our most earnest greetings of the season.

Caldwell Marble & Tile Co.
Norris Bldg.
WAl. 5264

MUCH HAPPINESS FOR CHRISTMAS AND THE NEW YEAR!

We welcome this good season of open hearts as just one more occasion to wish all our good customers and old friends much happiness during Christmas and all of 1928.

LEE STREET SHOE SHOP
847 LEE, S. W., WESt 9289

Hallowed Christmas Memories!

MAY you realize your most cherished anticipations for Christmas and when the day is past may you look back upon it with hallowed memories which you will treasure in your heart as a precious gem.

Gallagher Beauty Shoppe

160 Peachtree St.
IVy 9271

A Glad Day for You!

When this glad day is ended
May its memories shed o'er your pathway a glow as bright and twinkling as the Christmas candles.

Jones Ave. Pharmacy
434 Jones Ave., N. W.
IVy 0236

THE SEASON'S BEST!

FOLKS:
Since we can not see you all in person, we wish to have these few lines express to you our hearty good wishes of the season.

A. & A. DRY CLEANERS
Hemphill & Tenth Sts.
HEm. 3410

FORTUNE'S SMILES

Friends and Customers:
May this card find you happy
And filled with Christmas cheer,
Topped off with Fortune smiling
Through every day next year.

EMILY GILL BEAUTY SHOPPE
Basement Candler Bldg.
WA. 4191

Our Wish for Christmas and the New Year

We wish you all the happiness That Christmas ever brought,
May happy thoughts enrich your day
With pleasant memories wrought;
And then to make our wish complete
We'll add for your good measure
The happiest of all New Year's
That your good heart can treasure.

Geo. C. Kalb
Sheet Metal Worker
50 Hilliard St., S. E.
IVy 7872

OUR HEART-FELT WISHES!

MAY you all enjoy a happiness this Christmastide that surpasses all your fondest dreams and may the New Year usher into your life a period of health, wealth and joys untold.

Russell C. House

Transfer & Storage
135-37 Auburn Ave.
Phone IVy 2167-2168

AN OLD YET NEW WISH!

To Both Customers and Friends—

"A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR"

The wish is old, yet new,
May every joy and happiness
Remain the whole year through.
And that we may have the opportunity to serve you better in 1928.

Fairfax Potato Chip Co.
O. W. BIRN and J. W. O. FINKLEY
East Point
Phone FAirfax 2368

HEARTY GREETINGS TO OUR FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS!

We wish you
"A Very Merry Christmas"
and
"A Very Happy New Year"

Thanks for your part in our success. We trust we have merited your support. We hope to be able to serve you even more efficiently during the coming year.

Acree-Kornegay Furniture Co.

142 Whitehall St.
WAlnut 8932

Good Will for Christmas and the New Year

Christmas is the time of the year to keep hearts warm and memories green. We wish to take advantage of this fact and thank our customers for their past business with us; to renew our friendships with them. We shall make an effort to please you in our service.

We hope that our good-will may add a touch of pleasure to your Christmas joys and may bring you a New Year of undreamed-of success and happiness.

Art Plumbing Co.
808 Lee St., S. W.
Phone WESt 0777

Festal Cheer To All!

Each one cherishes at heart an ideal of Christmas; to all it is a day of poetry amid drab days of prose.

Let's lay aside all strife, anger, tumult, and the hurry of our business grind and let us spread abroad the spirit of fraternal righteousness and prophetic good will.

Our wish is that you all may realize at this time your most cherished desires and when the day is ended may its spirit linger in your heart always.

Dr. Jno. I. Handley Dog & Cat Hospital
67 Cain St., N. W.
Phone WAlnut 7490

The Season's Delight!

To Our Customers and Friends

We feel that Christmas is a most fitting time to extend our thanks to our friends for our appreciation of the business with which they have favored us and to show our good will in a word of the season's greetings.

May Christmas sparkle with gladness and delight and the New Year be filled with many golden hours of opportunity and success attained.

KAY ICE CO.

708 Hemphill Ave., N. W. Phone HEm. 2845
COAL DEPARTMENT
540 Marietta, N. W. Phone IVy 1193

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

A FRIENDLY CHRISTMAS WISH!

FRIENDS:
We wish you all Christmas joy and that each day of the New Year may bring its share of happiness.

Gateway Tea Room
North Decatur Road
DEarborn 1740

HEARTY GREETINGS! FRIENDS:

We wish you the best of all good things that a glad Christmas-time can afford and all good luck Fair Fortune brings for the days of the coming New Year.

PERFECTION CLEANERS AND DYERS
420 Boulevard, N. E.
IVy 8020

A SEASON OF ALL THAT'S BEST FOLKS:

If we could but help Santa On his eventful trip We'd help him fill your stockings Brimful from tip to tip.

BUT
Since Santa does not allow us this privilege, we are sending this message of best wishes through the public press.

Atlanta Butter Co.
491 Edgewood Ave., S. E.
Phone IVy 3872

CHRISTMAS BLESSINGS!

By means of this card, we wish to extend to one and all, our sincere greetings of the season.

May the Christmas Spirit bring to your fireside joy and peace and the riches of true friendship.

ALBERT'S PURE ICE CREAM CO.
903 Peachtree Street
HEmlock 9314

CORDIAL HOLIDAY GREETINGS

TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

We know of nothing more appropriate nor more expressive than just to wish all our friends a good old-fashioned Christmas Holiday in a good, old-fashioned way.

MERRY XMAS—HAPPY NEW YEAR
Electrik Maid Bake Shop
778 N. Highland Ave., N. E.
HEm. 3939

JUST A WORD TO GREET YOU!

Dear Friends and Customers:

At Christmas-time and all the time, we wish for you an abundance of happiness, health and success.

T. Poole Anderson Service Station
The Only Six-Day Station in Decatur
Corner Church and Sycamore Streets
Phone DEarborn 0628

FOR CHRISTMAS DAY!

TO OUR MANY CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

This message brings a hand-clasp
And kindest wishes, too,
And wants to say our Christmas thoughts
Will hold a place for you.

Abbott Furniture Company
241 Marietta St., N. W.
IVy 4903

Best Wishes for Christmas and the New Year!

We consider this a happy chance to say "Best wishes for a joyful Christmas Day."

"Though Christmas hours soon depart,
May their gladness linger in your heart,
To guide and cheer you on your way,
Through the coming year all bright and gay."

Agnew's Garage & Battery Service
335 East Hunter
IVy 8314

Wishing You a Wealth of Good Things!

Because it's Christmas our thoughts go out to you and wishes for your happiness.

We hope the day may bring you the joys that are your due and the wealth of good things you deserve to cheer and gladden you on your journey through 1928.

New York Life Ins. Co.
Jas. Ashley Jones
Haas-Howell Bldg.
WAlnut 5701

JUST A TINY GREETING MESSAGE!

To Our Customers and Friends
Never a friendly greeting,
Never a message sincere,
Could carry kinder wishes
Than the one we're sending here.
"Merry Christmas."

ANDERSON-MCGRIFF HDW. CO.
767 Marietta, N. W.
IVy 3928
L. M. McGriff

A FRIENDLY CHRISTMAS WISH! FRIENDS:

We wish you all Christmas joy and that each day of the New Year may bring its share of happiness.

A. & F. STOVE & FURNACE CO.
99 Pryor Street, S. W.
WAlnut 2474

Joy, Peace, Prosperity!

TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS

Here's to wish you all in very generous measure a Christmas of joy and peace and a New Year full of happiness and prosperity.

Ponce de Leon Shoe Repairing and Dry Cleaning Co.
A. AMATO, Prop.
192 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E.
WAl. 9449

FORTUNE'S SMILES THIS CHRISTMAS TIDE

DEAR FRIENDS:

Of Christmas joys we're wishing you a very generous measure and also a New Year filled with Fortune's smiles, but in the midst of all these don't forget your old friends who are always eager to serve you and please you.

A. & G. Home Furnishing Co.
451 Edgewood, S. E.
IVy 2087

BECAUSE WE ARE FRIENDS!

Because we're friends, we wish you from our hearts real Christmas gladness which will linger to cheer you throughout the entire New Year.

Powell's Pharmacy
1996 Blvd. Drive, N. E.
DEarborn 3636

HAPPY CHRISTMAS. PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

Dear Friends:

"May a blessed and peaceful Christmas be yours, followed by a New Year of happiness and prosperity."

M. M. Alston, Jr. Undertaker
East Point FAirfax 2013

An Old Yet New Wish!

"A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS."

The wish is old, yet new,
May every joy and happiness
Remain the whole year through.

D. H. Thomas Coal Co.
184 Pratt, N. E.
Phone WAlnut 9279

A YULETIDE MESSAGE!

Please "listen in" for we are using this means of broadcasting our Yuletide message of joy and contentment to our many customers and good friends.

Stewart-Warner Products Service Station
431 Peachtree, N. E.
Phone WAlnut 6192

For Your Pleasure at This Time

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:
In keeping with the spirit of the day, we are pleased to send our thanks for your past trade and our good wishes for an unusually satisfactory Christmas, followed by a whole year of good fortune.

Gouldy Multigraphing Co.
Hurt Bldg. WA. 8388

WISHING YOU HEALTH, WEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Here's wishing all beneath your roof the happiest Christmas you ever had, and the best of health and much wealth for the entire New Year.

L. C. GENTLE—BILLIARDS
30 Forsyth St., N. W.
Phone IVy 3843

Countless Happy Thoughts and Wishes

Our Customers—Friends:
As the Christmas lights are gleaming
And the candles softly glow,
We shall find ourselves a-dreaming
Of the days of long ago.
But amongst our dreams so splendid
There shall come, we promise you,
Countless happy thoughts and wishes
For your joy the whole year through.

EAST ATLANTA BANK
520 Flat Shoals Ave., S. E.
Phone IVy 0495

Peace of Bethlehem!

As at the Christmas Season we pay our homage

To the manger-cradled Saviour, of Bethlehem,
May His deep peace enfold You, and in your heart's depths stay
To cheer you and to bless you Throughout the Christmas Day.

Dixie Mattress Co.
600 Edgewood Ave., N. E.
Phone IVy 0695

MOST EARNEST GREETINGS! TO OUR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

We thank you heartily for your past trade and will thank you for your continued trade; not having the opportunity and pleasure of greeting you all face to face today, through the medium of the press we extend our most earnest greetings of the season.

Superior Mattress Company
835 Bankhead Ave., N. W.
Phone HEm. 9274

HEARTY GREETINGS!

FRIENDS, CUSTOMERS:

We wish you the best of all good things that a glad Christmas-time can afford and all good luck Fair Fortune brings for the days of the coming New Year.

Atkins Park Pharmacy
772 N. Highland Ave., N. E.

THE SEASON'S REMEMBRANCES!

We extend to all who read a Christmas Message of good will and kind remembrances.
May countless joys gladden the paths of your travel through each day of the coming year.

All American Cafe
925 Lee Street, S. W.
Phone WEm. 9270

A Word of Cheer!

To Our Esteemed Customers: Straight from our hearts we send a message of good cheer. We hope you will be as pleased to receive it as we are to send it.

A. M. COLE OPTICAL COMPANY
Arcade Bldg. IVy 5387

CHRISTMAS JOYS!

DEAR FRIENDS:

We hope that all the joys of Christmas may culminate in bliss for you and your loved ones and that the coming year will be one of success and happiness in your every endeavor.

Atlanta Audit Company
Marion R. Miles, F. C. A.
512-13 Atlanta Trust Co. Bldg.
WAlnut 5683

CORDIAL GREETINGS!

It would be impossible to send individual messages of the season to all whom we would call friends, so we are using this means of extending to you every one our

"Cordial Greetings for Christmas and the New Year"

Bond & Greene
520 Church St.
Decatur, Ga.

Greetings To Our Friends!

May you find real cause for being glad
Again this Christmas Day
In the folks you know and the fun you've had
Along the traversed way.

J. N. Burnett
"The Window Shade Man"
Shades Made to Order, Also Cleaned.
545 Piedmont, N. E.
WAlnut 8229

Radiance of the Christmas Star!

Far reaching in its glorious light
Shines the Christmas star with its message bright.
May its gleams of hope gladden your way
And shine upon you this Christmas day.

Bach's Dry Cleaning Co.
700 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E.
HEmlock 8804

Greetings To Our Friends and Customers!

May you find real cause for being glad

Again this Christmas Day
In the folks you know and the fun you've had
Along the traversed way.

Atlanta Container Corporation
455 Stephens St., S. W.
ATLANTA, GA.
MAIn 1818

Joyful Christmas Prosperous New Year! ONE AND ALL:

We wish you a Christmas fairly brimming o'er with joy and cheer and a New Year filled with many happy hours and much prosperity.

Acme Stove & Furnace Co.
245 Brotherton St., S. W.
WAl. 6670

Much Happiness for Christmas and the New Year!

We welcome the good season of open hearts as just one more occasion to wish all our good customers and old friends much happiness during Christmas and all of 1928.

W. L. GRIER FURNITURE REPAIR SHOP
674 SPRING ST.
PHONE HEEmlock 7880

WORTHWHILE CHRISTMAS HAPPINESS!

On Christmas Day, dear friends,
Within your heart may gladness stay,
May life's truest, deepest blessings
And contentment cross your way;
May its brightness and its sunshine,
Good cheer, love and friendship, too,
Make the day hold only worth-while.
Lasting happiness for you.

R. B. GUERIN Meats
Oak Hill Pure Pork Sausage
234 Williams, N. W.
WAlnut 9676

FORTUNE'S SMILES FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS:
May this card find you happy
And filled with Christmas cheer,
Topped off with Fortune smiling
Through every day next year.
AMERICAN MATTRESS COMPANY
540 Edgewood Avenue, S. E.
Phone IVy 3654

LASTING CHRISTMAS JOY!

To Customers and Friends:
With a hope for the future,
A thought for the past,
May joy come at Christmas
And long may it last.

GENERAL BATTERY SERVICE CO.
34 IVy Street, S. E.
Phone WAlnut 9784

Our Wish for Christmas and the New Year!

We wish you all the happiness
That Christmas ever brought,
May happy thoughts enrich your day
With pleasant memories wrought.
And then to make our wish complete
We'll add for your good measure
The happiest of all New Years
That your good heart can treasure.

Independent Truck Corporation of Georgia
456 Spring St., N. W.
Phone IVy 1570

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO YOU!

The same old wish,
Yet ever new,
The time-worn wish,
Yet ever true,

"MERRY CHRISTMAS!"
DUNBAR & SEWELL
Mfg. Agents
141 Mangum, S. W. MAIn 4681

To Our Friends Both Old and New!

We send this little message
To our friends both old and new
Just to greet you on this Christmas
And to give our love to you.

W. J. MILAM & COMPANY
81 Currier, N. E.
WAl. 6318

GOOD FORTUNE!

May your Christmas be one of Pure Joy and cheer,
Good Fortune never flicker
Throughout the New Year.

SIMON VASSAR Pressing
586 Marietta, N. W. IVy 8864

A CHRISTMAS WISH!

We wish you joys without end this Christmas tide and the best of success for the entire New Year of 1928.

F. H. CAMP COAL CO.
621 Whitehall St., S. W.
MAIn 1299

For Your Pleasure At This Time!

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:

In keeping with the spirit of the day, we are pleased to send our thanks for your past trade and our good wishes for an unusually satisfactory Christmas, followed by a whole year of good fortune.

Beuchler's Dairy Farm
J. D. Crenshaw & Sons, Prop.
1467 BOULEVARD, N. E.
HEm. 6228

Holiday Good Wishes!

If we had the gift of a silvery tongue, space would forbid our saying all the good things we wish for you today, but in a straightforward business way we want to acknowledge our pleasure in your manifested confidence in us and to pass on to you our hearty good wishes for an ideal Christmas Holiday!

George Moore Ice Cream Co., Inc.
54 Alabama St., S. W.
Phone WAlnut 4988

THE SEASON'S BEST! FOLKS:

Since we can not see you all in person, we wish to have these few lines express to you our hearty good wishes of the season.

SOUTH ATLANTA DRY CLEANING CO.
408 Forrest Ave., N. E.
Phone WA. 9956

Our Most Earnest Wishes!

Even through the mad whirl that Christmas always brings, we pause to offer our thanks to all our customers and friends for their cooperation with us in our business during the past year and to extend to them our very earnest good wishes for their happiness during Christmas and the New Year.

M. P. SCOTT DAIRY
East Lake DE. 0044-W.

To Our Customers and Friends We Wish a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

Because it's Christmas our thoughts go out to you and wishes for your happiness. We hope the day may bring you the joys that are your due and the wealth of good things you deserve to cheer and gladden you on your journey through 1928.

Duffell Motor Company
784 Gordon St., S. W.
Phone WESt 2000

CHRISTMAS BLESSINGS!

By means of this card, we wish to extend to one and all, our sincere greetings of the season.
May the Christmas Spirit bring to your fireside joy and peace and the riches of true friendship.

ADAMS SAUSAGE CO.
PURE PORK SAUSAGE
H. W. Callaway, Mgr.
1264 Gordon St., S. W.
Phone WESt 1066

CORDIAL GREETINGS!

May your joys of Christmas grow sweeter with the sunshine of life and the New Year bring to you a rich harvest of all that is good and best.

NORTON'S PHARMACY
289 Georgia Ave., S. E. Cor. Grant St.
Phone MAIn 4811-4812, IVy 8784

A Joyful Holiday Season!

OUR FRIENDS: We welcome this opportunity to thank all for your business done with us and to wish for you a joyful Holiday Season and twelve months of uninterrupted peace, happiness and prosperity.

Chas. H. Landrum Heating Co.
414 Harley Bldg.
WAlnut 7082

CHRISTMAS CHEER ABUNDANT!

TO ONE AND ALL:
A wish for joy,
A wish for cheer,
Is sent upon
This greeting here.
When this card is gone
Like a shadow fleet
May the smiling one
Be as smiling sweet.

Union Soda & Cigar Co.
10 Trinity Ave. IVy 8808
S. E. OWEN G. H. OWEN

WHOLESOME CHRISTMAS CHEER!

Christmas-time with candles bright,
Hearts aglow with Yule logs light,
Table spread with wholesome cheer,
Joy complete, we wish you here!

KLEIN'S RAPID SHOE REPAIR CO., Inc.
D. H. LEVEY, Mgr.
41 Peachtree St., N. E.
Phone WA. 4322

Yuletide Happiness

Dear Friends and Customers:

We are much pleased to have this opportunity of extending to you our sincere thanks for all favors of the past and to invite your continued patronage in the future.

We hope this Holiday Season may be one to be remembered by you for the good pleasures it has bestowed.

Georgia Auto Parts Co.
714 Marietta St., N. W.
Phone IVy 8802

HOLIDAY GAUITY!

Here's our Christmas greeting,
The best the season knows,
And may Santa come to see you
With a pack that overflows.

WILLIAMS AUTO RENT SERVICE
184 Forsyth, N. W. WA. 9881

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

Christmas Cheer And New Year's Blessings!

To All Our Friends:

Each year as Christmas time draws near there is a tie that binds us closer to our fellowman, so we consider it an opportune time to thank one and all for their patronage and friendship and to show our appreciation by wishing for them

"Abundant Christmas Cheer and Countless Blessings for the New Year."

College Park Filling Station
130 North Main St.
College Park
Phone FAirfax 9130

THE BEST THE DAY CAN BRING!

Never a bushy Christmas tree is big enough, though big it be, No matter how high and tall it grew,
To hold all the wishes we wish for you.

WATSON'S PHARMACY
2208 Peachtree Road, N. W.
HEmlock 1247

JOY ABUNDANT— ALWAYS!

It is not just through Christmas Days that we wish you joy—but Always!

H. A. WHITMIRE GARAGE
201 Hayden, N. W. IVy 4758

Holiday Gaiety! Customers:

Here's my Christmas greeting. The best the season knows, And may Santa come to see you With a pack that overflows.

Smith Service Station
Roswell Road. HEm. 9372

CORDIAL HOLIDAY GREETINGS!

We know of nothing more appropriate nor more expressive than just to wish all our friends a good old-fashioned Christmas Holiday in a good old-fashioned way.

White Sewing Machine
Agency
167 Whitehall St., S. W. WA. 0610

Christmas in Full Measure!

May this Christmas be a splendid Happy Day,
And long after it has ended May it stay
In your mind a precious treasure.

Giving measure after measure.
Of the highest kind of pleasure. Every day

Davis Construction Company
Walton Bldg. WA1. 3365

FOR CHRISTMAS DAY!

This message brings a handclasp
And kindest wishes too,
And waits to say our Christmas thoughts
Will hold a place for you.

R. L. WARREN
Wholesale Produce
185 Edgewood Ave., N. E. IVy 1308

Health, Happiness and Christmas Cheer!

Friends: This is a small card, but it brings a world of Christmas cheer and best wishes for your happiness and good health during 1928.

E. C. JOHNSON TIRE SERVICE
524 Marietta St. IVy 3024

A THREE-FOLD HAPPY CHRISTMAS!

Friendly folk, a bounteous board,
Contentment deep and true,
May this Christmas Day afford
These blessings three for you.

WALTON SHOE REPAIRING COMPANY
Victor Bennett, Mgr.
18 Walnut, N. W. IVy 4807

A SEASON OF ALL THAT'S BEST!

Folk: If we could but help Santa
On his eventful trip,
We'd help him fill your stockings
Brimful from tip to tip.
But since Santa does not allow us this privilege, we're sending this message of best wishes through the jubilant press.

WEST END MOTOR CO.
608 Stewart Ave., S. W. WA1. 1243

TO OUR NEIGHBORS!

At this Christmas season when hearts are glad we want to wish you happiness and abundant cheer and that the New Year may be for you 365 days of sunshine and countless blessings, and that we may be able to serve you even better.

Your Friend

HAROLD RUNGE
Plumbing and Heating
302 Peachtree, N. E.
IVy 2995

Our Wish For CHRISTMAS And The NEW YEAR!

We wish you all the happiness
That Christmas ever brought

May happy thoughts enrich your day
With pleasant memories wrought,

And then to make our wish complete
We'll add for your good measure
The happiest of all New Years
That your good heart can treasure.

THE REX PALACE

129 N. Pryor St.

YORK'S Recreational Parlor

117 N. Pryor St.

ROBT L. YORK, Proprietor

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS!

Friends— Customers

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the greetings of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good, and 1928 may find us more able to serve you to your entire satisfaction.

Hemphill Avenue Service Station
E. MCLURE, Mgr.
717 Hemphill Ave., N. W.
Phone HEmlock 9141

The Season's Greetings!

Dear Friends and Customers: Please accept this Christmas Day the best of thoughts and wishes that a friend can send a friend.

We thank you most heartily for all patronage of the past and trust we may be able to serve you even better in the future.

R. A. Eubanks
Auto Parking, Washing and Lubricating.

HACK EIBEL

BILLIARDS

161 Walton IVy 8897

Hallowed Christmas Memories!

May you realize your most cherished anticipations for Christmas and when the day is past may you look back upon it with hallowed memories which you will treasure in your heart as a precious gem.

Jenkins Phonograph and Radio Shop
320 Peters St., S. W. WA1. 9006

Greetings To Our Friends!

May you find real cause for being glad
Again this Christmas Day
In the folks you know and the fun you've had
Along the traveled way.

R. D. SMITH, Plumbers
Successors to Wyan Plumbing & Heating Co.
723 East Ave., N. E. WA1. 2142

Merry Xmas and Happy New Year

Walter Ballard Optical Co.

TWO STORES
105 Peachtree Street
(Clock Sign)

Medical Arts Building
(360 Peachtree Street)
ATLANTA, GA.

Because We Are Friends!

Because we are friends we wish you from our hearts real Christmas gladness which will linger to cheer you throughout the entire New Year.

Young's Pharmacy
1000 Virginia Ave., N. E.
HEm. 6414

Joyful Christmas, Prosperous New Year!

One and All: We wish you a Christmas fairly brimming o'er with joy and cheer and a New Year filled with many happy hours and much prosperity.

Wylie Loose-Leaf Co.
180 Trinity Ave., S. W. WA. 7000

A CHRISTMAS WISH!

We wish you joys without end this Christmastide and the best of success for the entire New Year of 1928.

VERA BEAUTY SHOP
Masonic Temple Bldg.
Decatur, Ga. DE. 1124

MOST EARNEST GREETINGS!

To Our Customers: We thank you heartily for your past trade, and will thank you heartily for your continued trade, not having the opportunity and pleasure of greeting you all face to face today. Through the medium of the press we extend our most earnest greetings of the season.

SUNSHINE PEANUT BUTTER CO.
185 Peter St., N. W. MA. 4847.

TO GREET YOU!

Customers-Friends

With all kind thoughts and best wishes for Christmas and the New Year.

Yours for Service,
James & Barrett
"Cheerful Druggists"
465 Highland Ave., N. E.
Phone WA1. 2824

CHRISTMAS BLESSINGS!

By means of this card, we wish to extend to one and all, our warmest greetings of the season. May the Christmas spirit bring to your friends joy and peace and the riches of true friendship.

COLEMAN DRY CLEAN-ING COMPANY, Inc.
Atlanta's Best
J. Q. Hall, Pres. and Mgr.
309 Glen Iris Drive
Walnut 7180-7181
With Seven Trucks Our Service Is De Luxe

GREETINGS

Among our assets we like to count the only one that money cannot buy—your good will. And so, at this Holiday Season, we extend to you—not as a customer alone, but as a friend, the Best of Wishes for the coming year.

H. A. SHOOP, Mgr.
Lady Blondelle Beauty Shoppe
HEmlock 3134
No. 1013 Peachtree St.

OUR HEARTFELT WISHES!

May you all enjoy a happiness this Christmastide that surpasses all your fondest dreams and may the New Year usher into your life a period of health, wealth and joys untold.

G. S. BUNCH FILLING STATIONS

Cordial Greetings!

May your joys of Christmas grow sweeter with the sunshine of life and the New Year bring to you a rich harvest of all that is good and best.

Piedmont-Guthman and Knight's Decatur Laundries

C. D. KNIGHT T. A. MARTIN
E. D. KNIGHT V. F. TODD

CHRISTMAS CHEER and New Year's Blessings!

Each year as Christmas time draws near there is a tie that binds us closer to our fellowman, so we consider it an opportune time to thank one and all for their patronage and friendship and to show our appreciation by wishing for them—

"Abundant Christmas Cheer and Countless blessings for the New Year."

White Provision Co.
Howell Mill Road

Much Happiness For Christmas And The New Year!

We welcome this good season of open hearts as just one more occasion to wish all our good customers and old friends much happiness during Christmas and all of 1928.

Bradshaw Fish Market
1019 Peachtree St., N. E.
Phones HE. 7411-7412-7161
843 Gordon St., S. W.
Phone WESt 3258

Hearty Greetings To Our Friends And Customers!

We wish you
"A very Merry Christmas
and
A Very Happy New Year"

Thanks for your part in our success. We trust we have merited your support. We hope to be able to serve you even more efficiently during the coming year, 1928.

L. H. Hall—Grocer
43 Hunter St., S. E.
Phone IVy 6773

A Word of Cheer!

To Our Esteemed Customers: Straight from our hearts we send a message of good cheer. We hope you will be as pleased to receive it as we are to send it. And that we may be able to serve you better during 1928.

Atlanta Sausage Company
T. H. ARNOLD, Mgr.
26 Howell Mill Road
Phone HEmlock 6355

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the greetings of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

C. L. SMITH CLEANING CO.
1158 West Peachtree, N. W.
HEmlock 2393

OUR BEST!

I'm sure that there is not a verse
More filled with Christmas cheer
Than this of ours which surely does
Wish hard for you this year,
"A MERRY CHRISTMAS"

Crockett Plumbing and Heating Co.
New and Repair Work
1029 Boulevard, N. E.
HEmlock 1386

MERRY CHRISTMAS

We know of nothing more appropriate than to wish you all
"A Merry Christmas
and
A Happy New Year"

WAGNER ELECTRIC CORP.
Electric Supplies
475 West Peachtree, N. E.
IVy 3564

OUR HEART- FELT WISHES!

TO FRIENDS AND CUSTOMERS

May you all enjoy a happiness this Christmastide that surpasses all your fondest dreams and may the New Year usher into your life a period of health, wealth and joys untold.

May we serve you better through 1928

Chas. Ivy Garage
Rear Candler Hotel
Decatur, Ga.
Phone DEarborn 3436

A GLAD CHRISTMAS!

Now that the Christmas season is here again, we consider it a most opportune time to thank our customers, one and all, for the business with which we have been favored during the past year and to extend to them our most hearty greetings, and best wishes for their happiness and cheer during this Christmas of 1927 and their continuation during the entire New Year of 1928.

The Macmillan Co.
Publishers
Spring St. at Baltimore Place
Visit in our New Home

The Radiance Of Bethlehem's Star!

On Christmas Day may the beautiful Star of Bethlehem cast across your way rich golden tints of happiness and may you live in its genial radiance through the whole of the New Year.

Pierce's Certified Dairy
Peachtree Road HEm. 5141

Greetings for Christmas And the New Year!

TO OUR FRIENDS:
We are most grateful to you for the business with which you have favored us and want to express to you our most hearty greetings for Christmas and the New Year.

A. O. SPINKS DAIRY
Glennwood Ave. DE. 1895-W

On Christmas Day To You!

Since we can not carry our greeting to you all in person, we are using this means of spreading our good wishes to you at this time.

We hope you can read between the lines all that we would like to express in addition to kindest thoughts and best wishes.

Southern Baking Co.

Bright Christmas, Sunny New Year!

May Christmas with all its hours
Be unto you a friend,
Love bless you; none but softest showers
E'er with your sunshine blend.

And when this year is gone,
Like a shadow fleet,
May the entering one
Be as sunshine sweet.

Peoples National University

J. D. BRADLEY, D. D., Pres.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

The Season's Greetings!
ATLANTA MOTOR CLUB

WISHING our many friends and patrons a Merry Christmas and Prosperous New Year, we remain at your service.

Layfield's Garage
141-3 Marietta St. IVy 1448-1449

MOLER COLLEGE

EXTEND to their many hundreds of friends and patrons best wishes for a prosperous New Year.

MOLER
SYSTEM OF COLLEGES
23 N. FORSYTH ST. IVY 8644

GREETINGS

Wishing You a Very Merry
Christmas

B. M. GRANT CO.

Grant Bldg. REAL 1600

Merry And
Warm ChristmasTo Our Customers and Friends
Our slogan for the New Year will be"More heat per shovel full."SATTERWHITE COAL CO
Corner Hunter and Fraser Streets
IVy 5496CHRISTMAS
GREETINGSDr. John I. Handley
67 Cain St., VeterinarianThe Season's Greetings to all our Friends and Patrons
PURA WATER CO.Season's
GreetingsG. G. Garrett
Specializing in Rentals
228 Candler Bldg. WAL 2061HOLIDAY
GREETINGSC. A. STENFELT
SHOE SHOP
132 1-2 Whitehall

MERRY CHRISTMAS

AND HAPPY NEW YEAR
ROYAL EMPLOYMENT AGENCY
349-353 Peachtree Arcade
WAL 1693-4

GREETINGS!

OF THE season to our friends and customers.EDICO PIANO CO.
241 Peachtree St.
WA. 6746FRIENDS
AND PATRONSWe wish you
A Merry Christmas
and a
Most Prosperous New YearTHE ATLANTA SHOE REPAIR CO.
145 Alabama St., S. W.

THE SEASON'S

GREETINGS

To Our Friends and
PatronsIT IS OUR SINCERE WISH THAT EVERYONE MAY ENJOYA MERRY CHRISTMAS
And Have a Happy New YearSouthern Security Company, Inc.
204 Atlanta National Bank Bldg.We extend to everyone our sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a New Year of Health, Happiness and Prosperity.

A. ROY BAKER

Real Estate, Loans & Insurance.
700 American Savings Bank Bldg.

A MERRY XMAS

Is Our Sincere Wish for Our Friends and CustomersWilliams-Flynt Lumber Co.
250 Elliott, N. W. IVy 1093Wishing You A
MERRY CHRISTMAS
And A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR
ADAMS-CATES COMPANY
RealtorsA Merry
Xmas

To Our Friends and Customers

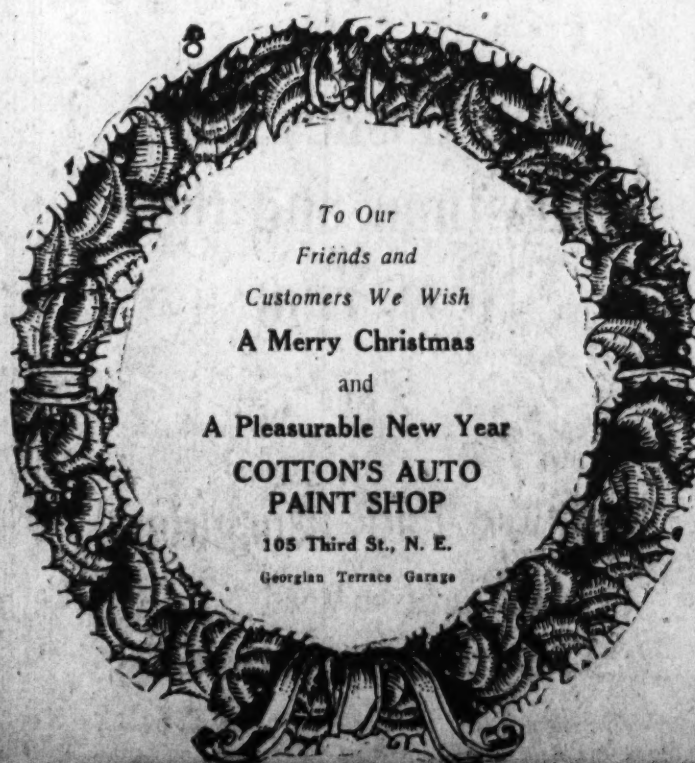

LIEBMAN, Inc.

Forsyth Street, N. W.
Walnut 2233

Season's Greetings

TO OUR many customers and friends we desire to extend our sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We are here to deliver even better service in 1928:

McBride Service Station

3-5-9 HOWELL MILL ROAD
HE. 6808To Our Friends and
Customers We Wish
A Merry Christmas
and
A Pleasurable New YearCOTTON'S AUTO
PAINT SHOP
105 Third St., N. E.
Georgian Terrace GarageJUST
WISHING YOU
A MERRY CHRISTMAS
and
A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR
GEORGIA GUN & KRY CO.
8 South Pryor IVy 1855Christmas Greetings!
Hearty Good Wishes to Our Many Friends and Patrons
R. B. STUART & CO.
Produce RowChristmas Greetings
to all our friends.
Allen's Garage
344 Gs. Ave., S. W. Main 4470THE SEASON'S GREETINGS
THAT your Christmas may be a most joyous one is the sincere wish of this establishment to our best of friends and patrons.
EMPIRE DRY CLEANING CO.
C. F. Bonner, Prop.
225 Techwood Drive, N. W.
IVy 8092The Season's Greetings
George A. Morris
529 Throver Bldg.Holiday
Good Wishes!If we had the gift of a silvery tongue, space would forbid our saying all the good things we wish for you today, but in a straightforward business way we want to acknowledge our pleasure in your manifested confidence in us and to pass on to you our hearty good wishes for an ideal Christmas
Holiday!Henard
Mayonnaise Co.
535 Whitehall, S. W.
Phone WA. 8469Best Wishes for Christmas and the New Year!
TO OUR CUSTOMERS:
We consider this a happy chance to say "Best wishes for a joyful Christmas Day.""Though Christmas hours soon depart,
May their gladness linger in your heart,
To guide and cheer you on your way
Through the coming year
all bright and gay."
C. W. Sullivan
House Mover
310 Murray Hill
Avenue, N. E.
DEarborn 1634Wishing You a
Wealth of Good Things!Because it's Christmas our thoughts go out to you and wishes for your happiness.We hope the day may bring you the joys that are your due and the wealth of good things you deserve to cheer
and gladden you on your journey through 1928.N. R. Glenn & Co., Agents

Insurance

Perfect Protection,
Health and Accident PoliciesN. R. GLENN, Mgr.
2nd Floor McGlawn-
Bowen Bldg
Phone WALnut 3030A MERRY CHRISTMAS
TO YOU
CHARLES L. GREENE
REAL ESTATE

140 Peachtree WALnut 4309

Thanking our many friends for their good will and patronage during the past year
—wishing aMerry Christmas
and
Happy New Year
To Everyone
The Master Loan
Service, Inc.
Healy Bldg.A
Merry
ChristmasAnd A Happy
New Year.

Sales Realty Co., Inc.

WAL 5778 210 Candler

Merry Christmas

And a Happy and Prosperous
New Year to AllThe Atlanta Small Loan Co., Inc.
C. G. MATHIS, Pres.

300 Forsyth Bldg. WALnut 8832

WISHING OUR FRIENDS
A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR—
and also wish to thank you for your past patronage and future orders.

HUNTER COAL CO.

Successors to Carroll & Hunter
Reliable Since 1899

Main 3668 208 Georgia Ave., S. E.

We Extend to You the Season's Greetings
Merry Christmas, and May the New Year Be Your Happiest

C. C. DOWNS

Safe and Locksmiths

23 WEST ALABAMA ST. WALNUT 5237

Christmas bells are ringing—
Let's be happy and be gay
On this joyous Christmas Day.
CLEANING AND PRESSING
SHOE REPAIRING, FIRST-CLASS WORK GUARANTEED
John T. Hill Shoe Shop
343 Mitchell St., S. W. Main 4908

A Merry Christmas!

TO OUR many friends whom it has been our pleasure to make during the year just past we desire to convey our sincerest wishes for a very merry Christmas and Happy New Year. Also to thank each and all for their esteemed patronage.

W. H. DODSON

SUCCESSOR TO DANIELL-DODSON

24 S. BROAD ST. JEWELER WAL. 9256

Wishing all our friends a very Merry
Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

THE SELIG CO.

336 Marietta St., N. W. Atlanta, Ga.
Manufacturers Disinfectants—Sanitary Products

May This Yuletide Season

Bring every Joy to you and may the New Year be one of Happiness and Prosperity.609 Candler Building
Phone WALnut 1498To All of Our Friends in Atlanta:WE wish to advise that we have discontinued the sale of tires in Atlanta, and we take this means of thanking you for your cooperation during our fifteen years in the tire business. Effective January 1st the Capital City Tire and Supply Co. will discontinue business and in the future we will be known as the Southern Wheel and Rim Company, handling genuine automobile wheels and rims only, in the Southeast.Again we thank you and wish you a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

Capital City Tire & Supply Co.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

CORDIAL GREETINGS!

CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS
May your joys of Christmas grow sweeter with the sunshine of life and the New Year bring to you a rich harvest of all that is good and best.

MOUNTAIN VIEW DAIRY

Bedford Road
R. L. CROWE, Mgr.

A TINY BUT SINCERE WISH!

Just to wish you an abundance of happiness for Christmas and the New Year!

SOUTHERN AUTO & EQUIPMENT CO.

149 Forsyth St. W. A. 6510

May You Be Happy and Make Others Happy

This Christmas Season and every day of the New Year.

LaFontaine School of Dancing

"Specializing in Children"
1037 Euclid Ave., N. E.

To Our Patrons

May Much Happiness Be Yours on Christmas Day
Cherokee Dry Cleaning Co.
147 8274

Merry Xmas To All Our Friends and Patrons

Atlanta Auto Wrecking Co.
125 Decatur St.

Merry Xmas To All

LONGINO'S BAKERY
500 Ponce de Leon Ave.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

May Success Be Yours in 1928

National Business Brokerage Corp.
1403 Candler Building

THE SEASON'S DELIGHT!

We feel that Christmas is a most fitting time to extend our thanks to our friends for our appreciation of the business with which they have favored us and to show our good will in a word of the season's greetings.

May Christmas sparkle with gladness and delight and the New Year be filled with many golden hours of opportunity and success attained.

SIMON HUBIG COMPANY

G. E. BAKER, Mgr.
541 Peachtree, N. E.
Phone WA. 6453

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the greetings of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good, and hope we may please you better through 1928.

MADISON AVENUE TRANSFER CO.

196 Walton St., N. W.
Phone IVy 4717

FOR OLD TIMES SAKE!

Dear Folks:

We extend to our customers and friends Christmas Greetings and all good wishes for your happiness in the New Year.

Buehler Bros.
Meat Market
135 Alabama, S. W.
Phone Walnut 2483

Fortune's Smiles This Christmastide.

DEAR FRIENDS:

Of Christmas Joys I'm wishing you a very generous measure and also a New Year filled with Fortune's smiles, but in the midst of all these don't forget your old friend who is always eager to serve you and please you.

W. F. Wilcox, Sales Eng.
1205 Fourth Nat. Bank Bldg.
Phone WA. 1950

Best Wishes for CHRISTMAS and the NEW YEAR!

I consider this a happy chance to say "Best wishes for a joyful Christmas Day." "Though Christmas hours soon depart, May their gladness linger in your heart, To guide and cheer you on your way, Through the coming year all bright and gay."

M. F. COURSEY
Manufacturer and Jobber
High Grade Brooms and Mops
1021 Lee St., S. W.
Phone WEST 1118

Wishing You Health, Wealth and Happiness!

Here's wishing all beneath your roof the happiest Christmas you ever had and the best of health and much wealth for the entire New Year.

Washington Sanitarium

Under the Direction of
Dr. W. Z. Gettner
553 Washington St. Atlanta, Ga. Main 9441

LEE STREET GARAGE

841 Lee St., N. W.

INMAN A. WATSON, Prop.

MERRY CHRISTMAS

and a
HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS
NEW YEAR

W. L. & JOHN O. DUPREE

Season's Greetings

With best wishes for a
Merry Christmas.

J. S. PATE, Mgr.

J. P. Bush
C. Rich
G. E. Fowler

H. F. Quakenbush
E. R. Segars
Geo. Lunsford

GOLDSMITH-BECKER CO.

Used Car Dept.

Best Christmas Wishes!

Dear Customers and Friends:

It's a day to be glad so we are sending you the best Christmas wishes you ever knew.

We thank you for your kind support of us in our business efforts and hope that we may be of mutual benefit during the coming year, 1928.

Nichols Contracting Co., Incorporated

General Contracting and Railroad Construction, Street Grading, Paving, Concrete Masonry, etc.

128 LaFrance St., N. E.
DEarborn 1522

YULETIDE HAPPINESS!

Dear Friends:

We are much pleased to have this opportunity of extending to you our sincere thanks for all favors of the past and to invite your continued patronage in the future.

We hope this Holiday Season may be one to be remembered by you for the good pleasures it has bestowed.

VENABLE RESTAURANT

73 Forsyth St., N. W.
Phone Walnut 1218

Radiance of the Christmas Star!

Far reaching in its glorious light

Shines the Christmas star with its message bright. May its gleams of hope gladden your way And shine upon you this Christmas day.

COMPLIMENTS OF
The Driveway Company

Specialists in DRIVEWAYS AND INDUSTRIAL PAVING
34 North Ave., N. E.
Phone Hemlock 1668
ATLANTA, GA.

Christmas Joys!

Dear Friends and Customers:

We hope that all the joys of Christmas may culminate in bliss for you and your loved ones and that the coming year will be one of success and happiness in your every endeavor and that we may serve you better through the year 1928.

Excelsior Laundry Co.

141 Piedmont Ave., N. E.

Phone WA. 2454

A MERRY CHRISTMAS

And a Happy New Year to All is Our Wish

Rankin-Whitten Realty Co.

N. Forsyth St.

Walnut 0636

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

Heartly Good Wishes to Our Many Friends and Patrons

J. H. EWING & SONS

N. Forsyth St.

Walnut 1511

WISHING OUR MANY FRIENDS AND CLIENTS

A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR

JOHNSON REALTY AUCTION CO.

Wynne-Claughton Bldg.

Walnut 7007

THE O. E. McCONNELL AGENCY

Extends to You Best Wishes for a Pleasant Christmas and a Successful New Year
Homes and Farms For Sale
Our locations and prices will suit you.
Apartments and Homes For Rent
These range in size from 2 to 7 rooms, in price from $15 to $50.
Real Estate—Renting—Insurance—Building—Loans
110-A N. Main St., West Point, Ga. FAirfax 1817

SEASON GREETINGS

We Wish Our Friends a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

BRASWELL'S GARAGE

109 Piedmont Ave.

Walnut 6184

BUCKHEAD GARAGE

30 Roswell Road

J. A. LANGFORD, Mgr.

HEmlock 4779

Best Wishes For Christmas and the New Year

Ashford Park Nurseries

Peachtree Road

Atlanta's Pioneer Nurserymen

Christmas Cheer and New Year's Blessings!

Each year as Christmas time draws near there is a tie that binds us closer to our fellowman, so we consider it an opportune time to thank one and all for their patronage and friendship and to show our appreciation by wishing for them

"Abundant Christmas Cheer and Countless blessings for the New Year."

CLEVELAND BROWNING ELECTRIC & ELEVATOR CO.

557 Marietta St., N. W.

Phone IVy 4872

To Our Customers and Friends

We wish a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

We hope that your Christmas may be merry and full of good cheer, and that the New Year of 1928 may be one of much happiness and prosperity.

Thanks for all past favors in our business dealings and be assured that your further patronage will be much appreciated.

Capital City Carpenter Shop

34-36 Houston St.
Phone Walnut 8189
W. J. Williams, Prop.

Hallowed Christmas Memories

To My Friends:

May you realize your most cherished anticipations for Christmas and when the day is past may you look back upon it with hallowed memories which you will treasure in your heart as a precious gem, and may the New Year bring to you a rich harvest of all that is good and best.

JAMES W. MADDOX

The Spirit of the Season prompts us to extend to you Heartiest Greetings

Appreciative of the part your friendship and good will have played in our progress

We thank you and extend our Cordial Wishes for your Happiness and Prosperity

HOMER F. ANDERSON
J. MARVIN ANDERSON
S. W. BACON, JR.
J. CLAYTON BURKE
W. H. BOSWELL
JNO. D. BROWN
GRACE GORMLEY
MARY FRANCES DAVIS
HENRY GRANGER
ERNEST D. SORRELS
IRA EVERETT
GEO. J. MORRIS

FRED R. CHANDLER
TOM N. CLYATT
L. R. HUDSON
WM. P. OLIVER
GOLDEN PICKETT
KELLER F. MELTON
CHAS. BABB
JIM H. ATWELL
BARNEY NICHOLS
E. C. NIXON
ALBERTA CORLEY
O. MORRIS

F. P. & MORRIS

76-78 Pryor St., N. E.

WA. 6438

CORDIAL GREETINGS!

It would be impossible to send individual messages of the season to all whom we would call friends, so we are using this means of extending to you every one our

"Cordial Greetings for Christmas and the New Year"

MANUFACTURERS

ATLANTA RADIATOR CO.

318-320 EDGEWOOD AVENUE

Repairers of

Radiators, Fenders, Lamps and Bodies

PHONE WALNUT 4737

W. T. SPEER, Proprietor.

REPAIRMEN

ATLANTA, GA.

Lasting Christmas Joy!

With a hope for the future.

A thought for the past, May joy come at Christmas

And long may it last.

Arcade Marinello Shop

Mrs. Clyde Jackson

PEACHTREE ARCADE

Walnut 3081

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

REJOICE this Christmas Day when all the world bespeaks its glorious happiness. The wheels of industry cease turning. The brains of business put aside their toils, and the cares of everyone are overlooked in the glad celebration of this day of days--Christmas.

With trust that every living soul may recognize its significance, and that love, faith, hope, charity and sacrifice may abound in our hearts--we the undersigned extend our wishes for a merry Christmas to all.

L. G. HARDMAN
Governor of Georgia

S. GUYT McLENDON
Secretary of State

EUGENE TALMADGE
Commissioner of Agriculture

JOHN HOLDER
Chairman, State Highway Commission

ALEX W. STEPHENS
Judge, Court of Appeals

PAUL S. ETHERIDGE
Commissioner, Fulton County

GEORGE MATHIESON
Chief, County Police

WALTER B. STEWART
Commissioner, Fulton County

JAMES I. LOWERY
Sheriff, Fulton County

T. C. MILLER
Clerk, Superior Court

CARLTON W. BINNS
Solicitor, Criminal Court

J. A. WELLS
Supt. County Schools

W. S. RICHARDSON
Tax Collector, Fulton County

I. N. RAGSDALE
Mayor, City of Atlanta

W. GUY DOBBS
Mayor Pro Tem.

R. F. PENNINGTON
Alderman

DR. P. L. MOON
Alderman

OSCAR H. WILLIAMSON
Alderman

C. M. FORD
Alderman

W. A. HANSELL
Chief of Construction

W. P. PRICE
Purchasing Agent

T. M. SMITH
Councilman

JAMES L. BEAVERS
Chief of Police

F. B. FLORENCE
Tax Collector

MISS EVELYN DEWBERRY
Private Secretary Mayor's Office

L. L. WALLIS
Supt. of Parks

R. C. TURNER
City Electrician

T. O. HATHCOCK
Judge, Municipal Court

EMORY UNIVERSITY

OGLETHORPE UNIVERSITY

AGNES SCOTT COLLEGE

WASHINGTON SEMINARY

GA. SCHOOL OF TECHNOLOGY

DR. WM. L. GILBERT

JULIAN V. BOEHM
"It's a Beautiful World"

G. LLOYD PREACHER & CO., INC.
Architects and Engineers

SCOTT, FORESMAN & CO.
Publishers School and College Textbooks

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Auto Travel Opportunities
 EAR going to Florida Monday. One or two passengers. Address: A-440, Constitution, 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

Though this card be of limited size, we assure you that there is no limit to the good things we wish for you at this time. Accept our gratefulness for your support of our business and please believe that we will do our best to merit your continued trade.

Avondale Dairies

GEO. P. WRIGHT, Prop.
 236 Wilton Drive
 DE. 1953

Christmas Cheer Abundant!

TO ONE AND ALL:

A wish for joy,
 A wish for cheer
 Is sent upon
 This greeting here.
 When this year is gone
 Like a shadow fleet
 May the entering one
 Be as sunshine sweet.
 We trust that we may better serve you through 1938.

Lakewood Heights Pharmacy

411 Jonesboro Road
 Phone IV 9396.

MERRY XMAS

Painting—Interior Decorating and Finishing—Wall Papering
 390 Spring St.
 Phone WA 8108

MAY THE NEW YEAR BRING YOU EVERY JOY

GREETINGS TO ALL OUR FRIENDS

Clyde Langford Motor Co.

135-7 S. Pryor St. WAlnut 7512

USED CAR DEPT.
 160 EDGEWOOD AVE.

Authorized Ford Dealer

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Beauty Aids
 A BEAUTY SHOP—A specialty in hair styling, manicuring, pedicuring, etc. Located at 1000 Peachtree St. N. E., Atlanta, Ga. Leaving Tuesday, 10:00 a. m.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Greeting Cards

TO OUR OLD FRIENDS!

Old friends grow dearer,
 Old greetings more true,
 With each merry Christmas,
 Good wishes to—YOU!

E. RUSH

Body and Tender with a Specialty
 No Job Too Small—None Too Large
 35-41 Ivy St., S. E. W. 1037.

Christmas Greetings Everybody!

Once again we pause in the mad rush of business affairs to extend to our friends, one and all, the warm wishes of the season. We wish for you this Christmas Day the things that will be for your greatest happiness and good.

Abby Street Market
 911 Simpson St., N. W.
 Phone WE 845

CHRISTMAS FRIENDSHIP!

We publicly announce to our friends our earnest thanks for their friendship and their part in our business success. In appreciation we are sending a blanket message of holiday good cheer which will increase with each day of the New Year.

TENTH STREET DAIRY

415 Tenth St. HEm. 1415

Unlimited Happiness!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL

Countless Happy Thoughts and Wishes!

*As the Christmas lights are gleaming
And the candles softly glow,
We shall find ourselves a-dreaming
Of the days of long ago.*

*But amongst our dreams so splendid
There shall come, we promise you,
Countless happy thoughts and wishes
For your joy the whole year through.*

The Hanley Company

J. H. HANLEY, Pres. and Mgr.

270 Edgewood Ave., N. E.
Phone IVy 9007A Glad
Christmas!

NOW that the Christmas season is here again, we consider it a most opportune time to thank our customers, one and all, for the business with which we have been favored during the past year and to extend to them our most hearty greetings, and best wishes for their happiness and cheer during this Christmas of 1927 and their continuation during the entire New Year of 1928.

James Hotel

241 Auburn Ave., N. E.
IVy 8472One of Atlanta's Leading Colored Hotels51 Rooms — Hot and Cold Water in each room. Elevator service.WORTH-WHILE CHRISTMAS
HAPPINESS!

On Christmas day, dear friends,
Within your heart may gladness stay,
May life's truest, deepest blessings
And contentment cross your way;
May its brightness and its sunshine
Good cheer, love, and friendship too
Make the day hold only worth-while,
Lasting happiness for you.

True Tone System of Colleges

BEAUTY COLLEGES

Madam J. M. Jones, Prop.
729 1-2 West Fair
219 1-2 Auburn Ave.
and 176 Harvard St.
College Park

GOOD FORTUNE!

May your Christmas be one of pure joy and cheer
Good fortune ne'er flicker
Throughout the New Year.

NEW MOON BAKERY

231 Auburn Ave., N. E.
IVy 8978The Most Happy of Christmastides!

No Christmas again can ever be so great, none ever so replete with beneficence and wonder as the first Christmas of all, the Christmas that dawned with a celestial glory over Bethlehem, long, long ago. Such a great gift to mankind, of course, can not be duplicated, it can only be reaffirmed; but it is the reaffirmation of this message of love that we wish to emphasize; and in keeping with its meaning offer to you our greetings of the season.

Mrs. Tiger Flowers and DaughterGood Will For CHRISTMAS
And the
NEW YEAR

Christmas is the time of the year to keep hearts warm and memories green. We wish to take advantage of this fact and thank our customers for their past business with us; to renew our friendships with them. We shall make an effort to please you in our service.

We hope that our good will may add a touch of pleasure to your Christmas joys and may bring you a New Year of undreamed-of success and happiness.

WILLIAMS
BUSINESS
COLLEGE250 Auburn Ave., N. E.
IVy 2651

MERRY CHRISTMAS

We know of nothing more appropriate than to wish you all
"A Merry Christmas
and
A Happy New Year"

COX BROS.

Main Office, 388 Auburn Ave., N. E.
Walnut 1808
West Point
Fairfax 9171
Dorchester 6218
Res. Phone—MAle 3971A TINY BUT SINCERE WISH!

Just to wish you an abundance of happiness for Christmas and the
New Year.

ATLANTA UNIVERSITY

W. M. Adams, Pres.

For Your Pleasure at This Time!

To Our Customers:

In keeping with the spirit of the Day, we are pleased to send our thanks for your past trade and our good wishes for an unusually satisfactory Christmas, followed by a whole year of good fortune.

Bryant Hotel

157 Houston, N. E.
Phone IVy 6787
Hot and Cold Baths
Rates $1.00 per Day
Special Rates
By Week or Month
ROBERT BRYANT, Prop.
MRS. R. BRYANT, Mgr.Merry
Christmas
To Our Patrons
and Friends!

Once more in the swift passing of life we have reached that memorable marker of time—CHRISTMAS. And since it is a time when our hearts are rekindled with the touch of love, we consider it an opportune time to express to you our good will and to extend to you our heartiest Yuletide greetings.

We wish for all that this may be your supreme CHRISTMAS, and that its intrinsic meaning may be revealed to you as never before and remain throughout the coming year, to disclose the true inwardness of life, and to bring to you, therefore, a real contentment and happiness.

Morris Brown University

169 Blvd., N. E.

WORTH-WHILE CHRISTMAS
HAPPINESS!

On Christmas day, dear friends,
Within your heart may gladness stay,
May life's truest, deepest blessings
And contentment cross your way;
May its brightness and its sunshine
Good cheer, love, and friendship, too,
Make the day hold only worth-while,
Lasting happiness for you.

Ivey Brothers

UNDERTAKERS

491 Larkin St., S. W. Phones—MAin 2567, IVy 8875

Countless Happy Thoughts and Wishes!

TO OUR FRIENDS:

As the Christmas lights are gleaming
And the candles softly glow,
We shall find ourselves a-dreaming
Of the days of long ago.
But amongst our dreams so splendid,
There shall come, we promise you,
Countless happy thoughts and wishes
For your joy the whole year through.

CUMMINGS & CUMMINGS
UNDERTAKERS

160 AUBURN AVE., N. E. PHONE WAL. 1903

Wishing All Our Customers and Friends a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Herndon's
Barber Shops
35 Marietta and 66 Peachtree

Christmas Cheer
and
New Year's Blessings!

Each year as Christmas time draws near there is a tie that binds us closer to our fellowman, so we consider it an opportune time to thank one and all for their patronage and friendship and to show our appreciation by wishing for them

"Abundant Christmas Cheer and Countless Blessings for the New Year."

Atlanta Independent

250 Auburn Ave. WA. 1497
BENJAMIN JEFFERSON DAVIS, Editor

Best Christmas Wishes!

DEAR CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS:

It's a day to be glad, so we are sending you the best Christmas wishes you ever knew.

We thank you for your kind support of us in our business efforts and hope that we may be of mutual benefit during the coming year.

Success Construction Co., Inc.

AUTHORIZED CAPITAL STOCK $100,000

171 Auburn Avenue, N. E. Phone WA. 0516

—BUILDING—

Agents for Bankers Fire Insurance Co., of Durham, N. C., with more than $200,000 cash capital paid in.

SALES—RENTS—LOANS

WILLIAM BURCH, President.

Your Business Solicited

Wishing You a Wealth of Good Things!

Because it's Christmas our thoughts go out to you and wishes for your happiness.

We hope the day may bring you the joys that are your due and the wealth of good things you deserve to cheer
and gladden you on your journey through 1928.

Clark University

M. S. Davage, Pres.
Atlanta, GeorgiaChristmas Cheer and New Year's Blessings!To Our Customers and Friends

Each year as Christmas time draws near there is a tie that binds us closer to our fellowman, so we consider it an opportune time to thank one and all for their patronage and friendship and to show our appreciation by wishing for them
"Abundant Christmas Cheer
and Countless blessings for the
New Year."

National Benefit
Life Insurance
Company250 Auburn Avenue
Phone WALnut 7668Bright
Christmas
Sunny
New Year!

May Christmas with all its hours
Be unto you a friend,
Love bless you; none but softest showers
E'er with your sunshine blend.

And when this year is gone,
Like a shadow fleet,
May the entering one
Be as sunshine sweet.

David T.
Howard & Co.71 Piedmont Ave.
Phone WALnut 0421Festal Cheer
To All!

Each one cherishes at heart an ideal of Christmas; to all it is a day of poetry amid drab days of prose.

Let's lay aside all strife, anger, tumult, and the hurry of our business grind and let us spread abroad the spirit of fraternal righteousness and prophetic good will.

Our wish is that you all may realize at this time your most cherished desires, and when the day is ended may its spirit linger in your heart always.

Hotel McKay

214 Auburn Ave., N. E.
IVy 8965The Oldest Colored Hotel in Atlanta

44 Rooms—Private Baths

Countless Happy Thoughts
and Wishes!

As the Christmas lights are gleaming
And the candles softly glow,
We shall find ourselves
a-dreaming
Of the days of long ago.

But amongst our dreams
so splendid
There shall come, we promise you,
Countless happy thoughts and wishes
For your joy the whole year through.

Citizens Trust
Company212 Auburn Ave., N. E.
WALnut 7708

Doubling in Love

BLUE RIBBON FICTION

by SONYA LEVIEN

*A Story of the Movies, of Cherry Lane. Who Covered Up a Sad
Heart with a Wise
Crack, and of William
Hubbard, Who Only
Woke Up in the Seventh Reel*

She held up the salt cellar. "Try this on her tail, little boy."

BEHIND the camera, in the broad shadows of the Kleig lights, Cherry Lane was clowning before a group of extras, grips, and electricians. The haute monde of the extras called her man crazy. And her swaggering retort would be:

"Men? I eat 'em alive! I kid 'em, bleed 'em, and leave 'em! That's me, girls!"

The beauty of her was dark and vibrant—a live spark that had sprung from a coal mine town. Her blue black hair had the shaggy appearance of having been bobbed with a pen-knife, and her tanned body had the slim, tight look of a Hawaiian coin diver. Dainty feet and ankles twinkled constantly when the rest of her stood still. Only her eyes did not belong to her—big, blue eyes that had come from a German mother—blue pools of wistfulness that in certain moods called for things desired with the pathetic urge of a lost dog. Her face was too mobile, too restless, too be sure-fire before the camera. And since she had no relative of importance in the business, Cherry belonged to the great multitude of pretty girls in Hollywood who live by their wits and grit.

Her work was mostly doubling for stars in dangerous action, and her foolhardy courage, her gift of mimicry, kept her in jobs when more beautiful girls were turned away from casting offices.

At present she was doubling for Violet Ventura in "Shackles of Love." The story required the heroine, who was convent bred and genteel, to mount a horse like a bareback circus rider, to swim like a fish, to dance like Pavlova, to scale perpendicular walls, and to hang by the toes from an airplane. In actual life horseback riding gave Violet the hiccoughs and the mere sight of the ocean made her seasick.

The bored sidelines were considering Cherry great fun, and since the director was busy shooting close-ups of the principals, the girl was encouraged in her buffoonery.

On she went impersonating notables of the film world with gestures quick and adroit, when suddenly they all became aware that something had gone wrong before the camera. There was instant silence. All turned to see Violet Ventura break from the embrace of her leading man, with the camera still grinding, and walk off the set sobbing dramatically, while a distracted director tried to waylay her.

In a studio gossip spreads like fire and the place was throbbing with it in no time. The leading man had insulted the star. He was a spoiled genius, an adored actor borrowed from the legitimate stage; a man of great charm and bad manners. Early that morning he had called her "La Belle Imperia," and an hour later he had hissed between pearly teeth that it would be easier to make love to Grant's tomb than to Violet Ventura!

Al Gross, the man who footed the bills for "Shackles of Love," had crippled his other productions in order to bring together, in this picture, the two most popular lovers of stage and screen. And here they were backing away like rearing horses when told to embrace, and kissing each other as if their lips were poison.

With a couple of hundred extras cooling their heels every minute's delay spelled ruin for Al, and he would have passed out with rage except for that supporting belief of his that he was another Napoleon.

King Hunt, director of "Shackles of Love," returned from the feet of the star a defeated man. Violet positively refused to go on with the picture. As is customary, the producer blamed the director. "Why don't you shoot the love scenes first before them louses get acquainted? I always told you to work that way with them egomaniacs."

"Say, Al, go burn up that Violet ray. May dogs eat her before the worms get her! Don't open up on me. I'm miserable enough!"

The man seemed all in, ready to throw up the sponge, but Al had that brave persistence of his race which never acknowledged defeat. "Don't worry, and don't let her get you, man! Leave her to me. I'll drag her back or my name ain't Al! In the meantime, you make the long shots without her. We must wash up those extras by tomorrow or I'll go bust."

In the portable dressing room not far from the set, Al Gross found Violet. She was telephoning to William Hubbard, her fiance, and instructing him to bring around that good old reliable marriage license—she was through with pictures!

"Don't pull that old gag," cried Al, "you've been engaged to that bird too long to marry him."

She disdained replying and continued to speak into the tube. Al listened to her very definite orders and became cramped with fear. She sounded in earnest.

Al changed his tactics. He grabbed the phone, put it down, and took both her hands.

"My God, Violet, you can't do that to me! I've sunk three hundred thousand already in that picture!"

"William Hubbard will make good my part of the loss."

"He might, but you're too good a business woman to let him."

He continued to scold, to cajole, to plead. "Every minute you stay here is like blood running from my heart. I've nearly murdered myself to get to the top—from shoemaker to producer—you ain't gonna send me back to the bench? For God's sake, girl, have a heart! Come back to the set—Violet—my life!"

"After what he said I wouldn't kiss him if he were the Prince of Wales!"

"He told me he didn't mean it," lied Al. "He's just got a temperamental tongue."

"I'm entitled to my temperament, too. I'm just as big a star as he is."

Al was now at the breaking point. "On six thousand a week you can't afford to have a temperament!" he croaked.

"Here's William now and he will tell you whether I can or not."

A heavy set man in English frock coat and French mustache hurried across the stage.

"Violet, beautiful, do you really mean it this time?" he asked wistfully.

"I'm going to show you that I'm a woman of my word!"

On King Hunt's set tense arguments were going on as to whether the marriage would actually be pulled off this time, and betting ran high.

Cherry, usually the ringleader of everything debatable, now sat apart from the others. She was strangely quiet, a depressed and wilted figure of misery. She had identified herself with Violet Ventura to the point of falling in love with the fiance. Perhaps it was because William's manner was so different from the others. He did not fall for her line, never quite got the quality of her at her cleverest, paid her no compliments and detested her kidding. But he liked to talk to her by the hour, solemnly and seriously, about everything under the sun.

Doubling in Love

Continued From First Page

Their solemn companionship dated back to the time when she was desperately ill with pneumonia as the result of over-exposure in a sea picture she was making. Everyone else forgot her but William—all those friends who, when depressed, had fed on her high spirits, closed their eyes and took no notice of her desperate plight. He alone came to see her at the hospital and staked her through the long convalescence—and for no other reason than that he was a kind and Christian man. Since then she more than loved him. Her gratitude was so profound that she regarded him as might a slave. He could walk on her and she would be glad. He might become a hunchback and a beggar but to her adoring eyes he would still be a man with a halo of godliness.

Cherry was sitting on the canvas chair labeled with the star's name and could have been hung for her thoughts concerning that star.

A handsome youth with an abortive mustache, anxious to be known as an intimate of stars, gave his views. "One moment she wants to love you and the next moment she wants to put a dagger through your heart."

At this instant Cherry spied William Hubbard standing on the outer circle of the group. She hoped with all her heart that he had heard, but the stone-like frigidity of his face gave no inkling. She yearned to take him away, to convince him that he was far too good for Violet, but her own love for the man tied her tongue. So, as always when at bay, she snapped back into her line, and called a warning to the others:

"Cheese it! Here comes the hog for punishment."

They turned and saw him, and stood embarrassed, like children in mischief caught by their school teacher.

Diabolically urged on by that little devil in her that he hated, Cherry began to sing an old negro tune, keeping time with steps from the Charleston,

"My honey, how long have I got to wait,
Or can I kiss you now, or must I hesitate?"

Some of the men sniggered and William showed sudden anger. Then he steadied himself, turned his back on her and invited the others to come to a night club that evening to celebrate after the wedding ceremony.

At the other end of the stage King Hunt was rapidly becoming desperate. Violet's quarrel had demoralized completely the esprit de corps of the company and he could not make the actors hold a tense attitude in an important scene. When films were in their nickelodeon infancy, this man was an animal trainer in a circus. In his present extremity he resolved to try out a bit of psychology which invariably worked with animals and children.

In his opinion extras had the intelligence of about ten. He had sent out his assistants to buy several dozen boxes of cheese crackers and now placed the men, their arms filled with paper cartons, in full view of the actors. They took up their megaphone. A whistle blew shrilly; all stood attention, and King Hunt began to trumpet his instructions:

"You extras, listen! You are all dancing slowly—suddenly you hear a pistol shot. You are startled and stop. You look up at the balcony, pretend that you see the leading man keeling over in the arms of Violet. You take it big! And you hold it for suspense. Remember now—hold it! HOLD IT! HOLD IT! Without moving a hair's breadth. And this time, if you don't move, every one of you will get a cheese cracker."

He pointed to the cartons, and eyes grew hungry and mouths began to water. He gave the signal. The Kleig lights, banked on the ballroom wall, like formidable artillery, burst forth into blinding, fiery splendor. The orchestra emoted with all its might, and the director called "Camera!"

The grinding commenced—first the dance, then the pistol shot—then the imploring, agonized voice of the director begging them to hold it! Followed by a triumphant "Cut!"

The scene was done. The promise of cheese and crackers worked like a charm. The nearly two hundred extras went through that scene perfectly, once, twice, three times. And reaped the reward.

Just then Violet, followed by a maid carrying a suitcase, came out of the dressing room and started to cross the set on her way to the limousine where William was waiting for her. For a moment she was stopped by the strange sight of a crowded ballroom of elegant people eating crackers. With her chin in the air she strutted past them, particularly trying to cut King Hunt, but he stopped her. He had a box of crackers in one hand and was chewing away with appetite.

"Just a minute, Violet, do you think your dresses will fit . . . ?" and he mentioned her best friend and a rival in pictures.

Violet thought they would. He gave her a cracker and took one himself, then asked some more advice and gave her another biscuit. Now, through a wall on the set came Al Gross, stumbling upon the two as if by accident. He greeted Violet like a long lost daughter. Then he, too, was given a cracker. The three of them talked a while and ate some more crackers. Then Al initiated a humble line of persuasion while King Hunt fed Violet with crackers until finally they succeeded in melting the heart of her. She kissed Al and wept and promised to finish the picture; and Al kissed Violet and wept and promised to be a loyal friend to her always.

William was called for and his darling solemnly agreed that she would stick to her word and marry him that evening, but that they would have to postpone the honeymoon until the picture was completed.

Two hours later the stage was deserted and looked like a storage warehouse—dismal, chilly, and lifeless, with no trace of the human emotions that had flooded the place all day. Cherry came looking for her coat and hat. She remembered that she had sat last in the star's chair, and there she found, not her belongings, but a legal document. Upon examining it, indifferently, she discovered it to be a marriage license, made out with the names of Hubbard and Ventura. It had been issued in Florida some three years before. Its exact legal status in Hollywood meant nothing to her. All she was able to comprehend, in her excited state, was that there could be no wedding as long as she had the piece of paper. And she would hold on to it forever!

But common sense soon trickled to the fore. This wouldn't bring her William's love.

Precipitously perched on the side of a khaki colored mountain that was now velvety black with night stood William's house, brightly illuminated, and looking like a giant pumpkin face with tiers of teeth. Cherry found many doors open, but no one about. After interminable minutes she heard a noise she recognized at the end of a long corridor—some one cracking ice and jingling it in glasses.

"Who's there?" she called.

A door swung open, and King Hunt came out with drinks for two.

"Hello, Cherry. Are you alones?" She nodded.

"Then come along with me."

She was thankful for sane and human contact and her blood ran warm again. Alert now with curiosity, she followed. They entered a man's room in soft leather and mahogany. On a large, comfortable couch sat William, in a heap. The definite quality of him was gone. He was lost in misery and intoxication—a bulky mass of unhappy humanity.

After a long pause—"I guess she didn't come through. Stalled again?" She was palpitating for an answer.

"You've guessed right, sister."

"Have you sent word to the bunch?" she asked, after a while.

Hunt shook his head. "He's still hoping she will turn up."

Cherry placed a cushion behind William's head, settled down beside him, and occupied herself with chasing a persistent fly from his face.

Through the shifting barriers of a befuddled mind, William made out the image of Cherry, and said, "Hello," politely.

"Hello, Billy, dear," she answered tenderly.

He looked around to see who the "Billy dear" was. No one called him that ever. Then, "What you doing now, Cherry?" he inquired seriously.

"Doubling for Violet Ventura—!" Hot diggety dog! She was a sap to mention that name just then.

At that instant King Hunt, master of sudden inspirations, almost hit the ceiling with a new one. He caught hold of Cherry. "Look here, kid, you've doubled in more dangerous shots than this. A big grub stake for you. Why not, girl? I'll stand by you—and so will William when he sobers up." He waved aside her objections. "He likes you and I know how you feel about him."

So he had guessed. She wondered how many others knew. And she thought the secret was buried in her own heart!

"Do it," he urged.

She hesitated a long while. "I'm a lady," she said out loud.

"Then forget it!" he snapped fiercely.

"I—I can't. I may be man-crazy, but I ain't no buzzard."

"I'm thinking of what's good for him, sister."

She handed him the marriage license she had found and had come to give to William. King Hunt tossed the paper aside. "He's got dozens of them. Bring me some Worcestershire sauce from the kitchen. Leave everything to me. Hurry! For—sake, don't stand there gaping! Where is the telephone in this joints?"

By the time Cherry returned from the kitchen followed by a butler carrying bottles and varieties of sauces, William didn't seem to need it. He put his arm around Cherry's waist, "You marry me, Cherry . . . we'll show her . . . show her . . .!"

And so it came about that King Hunt performed a second miracle that day.

At the crest of suspense at the night club, and that was some time before midnight, there entered an apparently sober bridegroom with his newly wedded wife on one arm and his best man on the other. Every one in the place was geared in high. When King Hunt introduced Cherry Lane as the bride, there was a long and deathlike silence. The news stunned them and shook them up like an earthquake. Then a delightfully spontaneous madness seemed to seize the entire assembly.

* * * *

The four-poster bed in which Cherry awoke next morning was an impressive bit of architecture—heavily carved and draped in gold thread damask, more spacious than the room she had occupied before her marriage.

Breakfast would help that gnawing of nerves, but how to go about getting it? Inadvertently her eyes caught sight of the figure hunched under the silk covers at the other end of the bed. It was breathing heavily and groaning. She turned quickly away. Any moment he might wake and spoil the perfection of the scene. What if he told her to get out? Silly phrases raced through her mind—"from rags to riches and riches to rags!" She closed her eyes and tried to recall the good advice given her by King Hunt. "Everything is possible to a girl of brains," he said, for one thing.

A cup of coffee would help, though.

Thank heaven she had such a good memory. She would begin with French, then Spanish and Italian. If she started taking piano lessons immediately, in a few years' time she could beat Violet Ventura at it and still be younger than she.

The mound beside her heaved and groaned. She dug her head into the pillow to be out of sight. Two eyes were opening upon her and she was afraid to meet them. She heard the groan of a hick head and after a while the ecstatic whisper of the name "Violet!"

Soon their eyes would meet and he would know his mistake. Cherry felt like the first time she leaped from an airplane wondering whether the parachute would work. "It's the waiting that kills," flashed through her mind, and she turned her head and faced him.

He started up hastily and fell back with a groan. The sharpness of pain in his head made him shiver. She sat up and tried to help him rise. He pulled the covers about him modestly and scrutinized the girl with a strange and unfamiliar smile—and suddenly remembered!

"Was it real, Cherry?"

Cherry had determined to stand up for her rights, had promised King Hunt to do so, but the sight of this helpless, dejected creature took the fight out of her. And it hurt like blazes to see him take it so hard. She began to hate him as much as she loved him.

"If we could have some coffee the world wouldn't seem so black, Billy," she begged sweetly.

He rang.

"Such a nice morning—swell view. It's like being on top of the world." She said whatever came to her mind. "The top of the morning on the top of the world, eh?" she laughed. "Not so good, I see. The wrong bride, I guess. I always used to dream how it would be on my wedding morning. Girls are such sentimental saps, you know. But honest, honey, I never got within a mile of this opera." All the while she was powdering her nose and getting into one of his dressing gowns, and thinking nervously, "Will the coffee never come!"

Soon the butler brought it and on the silver tray was the morning paper.

She poured the coffee, ordered more breakfast, trying with light talk—

Continued on Page 10.

What Was Justice in This Case?

HISPERS in the congregation which gather on Sundays before the Rev. Charles Bailey, of Enid, Okla., carry on the widening ripples from a trial which was to the entire southwest as great a sensation as the Hall-Mills case was to the east. The trial was that of Miss Mary Atkinson, 26-year-old nurse, who was charged with poisoning the clergyman's wife and children so that she might have no rivals in his love.

Mrs. Bailey, a semi-invalid, died late in August after a brief acute illness in which she was attended by the nurse. Mary Jane Bailey, 18-year-old daughter, died two weeks after the mother. The cause of death at the time was diagnosed as ptomaine poisoning. Others of the minister's six children were strangely ill.

And out of these strange illnesses and two deaths grew the sensational charges against Mary Atkinson, with the accompanying story of the young woman's love for the minister.

It started just a little over a year ago, when the Rev. Charles Bailey met Miss Atkinson at a sanitarium in Gainesville, Tex., where she was superintendent. He was 49 years old, the respected rector of an Episcopal church in Gainesville, the husband of a semi-invalid. The trim nurse was young and pretty and full of health. She was attracted to him—and he to her.

Other meetings followed. The minister called frequently at the sanitarium in connection with his duties as a pastor. Often she went on motor rides with him after his visits. Though born a Catholic, the young woman presently joined the Rev. Mr. Bailey's church.

A Natural Step.

From the church to the home was a natural enough step; in fact, the nurse became quite a friend of the wife and six children. The wife considered it fortunate to have some one like Miss Atkinson about, some one who knew how to take care of people who were ill.

Then in June of this year Mr. Bailey was transferred to St. Matthew's Episcopal church in Enid, Okla.

And soon Mary Atkinson, too, was in Enid.

During the early part of the summer Mrs. Bailey journeyed to Denver, Col., to visit a brother, as she did each year. Subsequently, her husband, having some business in Trinidad, Col., took the children with him to Trinidad. That was early in August.

The family had invited Miss Atkinson to accompany them to Trinidad, but she was ill at the time. Later, however, she wrote to one of the daughters, Helen, and suggested she might join them, as she was now fully recovered. The response was urgent invitations, including one from Mrs. Bailey, and she accepted.

"I went to a separate hotel there," the nurse related some time later, "and when Helen and Mary Jane (they were twins) would go out with their young fellows, their father would come for me and we would go riding. We never went any place where we would be seen. We just took long drives. It was at this time we first did wrong."

Death and Sickness Stalked Family of Minister After Nurse Entered the Home—Freed of Murder Charge

But on this phase of the romance Mr. Bailey differed. His version was that, in their close friendship, he was trying only to be fatherly with Mary. When he discovered that she had become infatuated with him, he tried to put a stop to the affair, according to his statement.

At any rate, Mrs. Bailey and the rest of the family late in August returned to Enid, with the nurse still a member of the household. And in a few days Mrs. Bailey died. To the physician in charge it seemed as though the woman had died, rather unexpectedly, of paralysis.

A Pall of Gloom.

The tragedy cast a pall of gloom over the household and perhaps it was natural enough that Miss Atkinson, not being a member of the family, could not feel the same deep sorrow that the children felt for the loss of their mother. It was later stated that the nurse proposed marriage to the rector four days after Mrs. Bailey's death.

It was her secret hope, she confessed, that "Domini," her pet name for Mr. Bailey, would carry out the promise she said he had made to her—the promise of marriage.

But if she made a proposal, or recalled to the man any promise he had made to her, the rector must have frightened him somewhat, for he suggested instead that she move from the home. He explained that it did not look proper for her to be there since he was a widower. The two older daughters, Mary and Helen, joined him in rather pointed suggestions that Miss Atkinson take herself off.

The concerted movement to oust her from the home cast the nurse into despair. Soon after she left the house she attempted suicide by taking poison, according to the records of the case, and this fact later helped to arouse the suspicion that there had been a love affair between her and the pastor.

Then again the Rev. Bailey went to Colorado, to take one of his younger children to the home of relatives in Trinidad, and he had hardly left his home when the nurse was back, caring for the youngsters and meeting a cold reception from the two older daughters.

One day, while the minister was still in Colorado.

Miss Atkinson suggested to the children that she get some canned fruit for dessert at luncheon. She obtained two cans of blackberries and at luncheon all the children, except Mary Jane, who had gone to her room, sat down together with Miss Atkinson and ate the blackberries.

Within a few moments all were violently ill.

The Prescription.

The nurse called a physician who prescribed strychnine in one-sixtieth grain tablets.

Swiftly now came the denouement.

Miss Atkinson related that after she recovered from her nausea she went to find Mary Jane, only to learn that the girl had gone into the dining room and eaten all the blackberries that had been left on the table. Mary Jane, too, became very ill, more so in fact than the others, for apparently she had taken a larger quantity.

The one-sixtieth grain tablets of strychnine did not satisfy the nurse, so on the 7th of September Miss Atkinson ordered a tube of twenty one-thirtieth grain strychnine tablets. She explained later that she believed from her own medical knowledge that the one-sixtieth grain tablets were too weak to do much good.

She divided one of these between two of the children, she said, and took one herself. Some time later she took another tablet, gave half a tablet to Helen Bailey and threw the other half away. The remainder of the tablets, she said, she left on the dining room table.

And like the blackberries the tablets, too, presently disappeared.

Miss Atkinson suggested to the police that it was possible that Mary Jane, who had talked of suicide following her mother's death, had swallowed the rest of the tablets.

On the 8th of September, Mary Jane Bailey died.

The immediate diagnosis of the cause of death was ptomaine poisoning, the result of eating the blackberries, but various circumstances of the case led physicians to revise this diagnosis to physio-stigma, a paralysis of the respiratory system frequently induced by poison.

Circumstantial evidence, all of it. Yet it was enough to rouse the suspicions of the authorities. Police visited the Bailey home and the room occupied in the home by Miss Atkinson. There they found certain letters Mr. Bailey had written the nurse. They found also a package bearing a poison label.

"Letters of Sympathy."

They learned of the nurse's dismissal from the home, of her despair and of her attempt at suicide. They learned that when the grief-stricken rector returned home and went to the bedside of his daughter Helen the girl had burst into tears and cried.

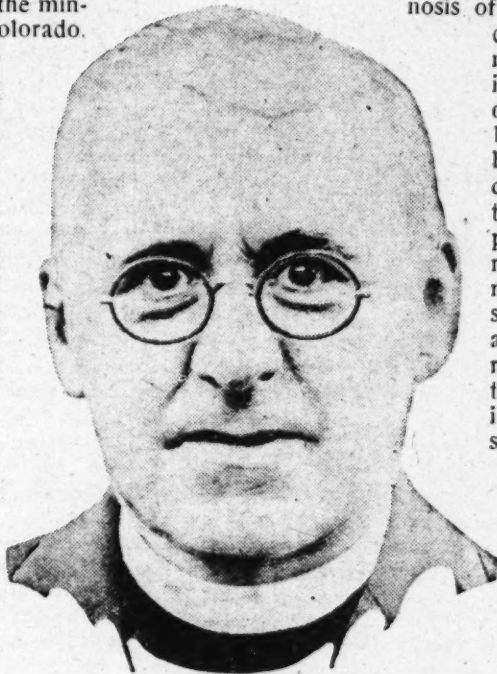

"O, Daddy, just think of Mary's doing this!"

Then they took Mary Atkinson into custody.

She said the poison found in her room had been purchased in Chicago in 1920, when she was a student nurse at a hospital there. She admitted writing letters to the pastor and finally told the whole story of the affair. But as for poisoning the man's wife and children, such a thing was absurd on the face of it, she asserted.

The police questioned Mr. Bailey.

Continued on Page 12.

Rev. Charles Bailey

Mary Atkinson

Part of the Bailey family before tragedy entered into their home. L. to r.: Helen, Rev. Charles Bailey, his wife and Mary Jane.

(By Pacific & Atlantic)

POETICAL FANCIES

HOPE AND MEMORY.

Ah, Campbell, yes; a beauteous scene
Alluring meets the 'raptured eye
Fixed on the lofty peak, serene,
"Dim outlined on the distant sky"
And such is hope's bright pleasure.

But, oh, the view is just as sweet,
The summit gained, to downward gaze
On sun-lit fields from which our feet
Climbed rugged paths to higher ways.
And this is memory's treasure.

* * * *

Anticipation forward points the view,
And guilds with happiness;
Live right; and the retrospection, too,
Will charm you none the less.

—ERNEST NEAL.

GEORGIA-LAND.

Breezes sighin' sof' an' low;
Georgy hills, dey love you so
Jes' go floatin' roun' erbout—
Got no wish fer gittin' out.

Sto'ms may staht fer Georgy-land,
Cross de water an' de san',
Hit de hills kerspank! But den
Got no strength fer gittin in.

Folks whut wear de bigges' smile
Stickin' right here all de while—
Summer's balm er Winter's dart—
Welcome shinin' frum de heart.

—C. G. JOHNSON.

THE DOGWOOD TREE.

I'd like to know which it should be,
That we should plant, and that we should be,
The rich crepe myrtle or the dogwood tree.

The myrtle speaks of security,
Of harvest time and maturity,
Of shutters closed and mahogany.

We humbly bow to its gorgeous plumes,
But over the hills in the distance, looms
A wild young growth of dogwood blooms.

As if frightened away by myrtle trees,
With all their stern proprieties
And safe and sane sobrieties.

And I think of Youth and Joy and Light,
With slender bodies, clothed in white,
But fiery spirits poised for flight.

And I think of Love and Faith and Spring,
And o'er the hills hear laughter ring,
And find the courage that these things bring.

So I think I know which it shall be,
Not the rich crepe myrtle, but the dogwood tree
That we shall plant and that we shall be.

—LOUISE CLARK STEWART.

ADORNMENT.

I pay no attention to satins and gold lace;
Beautiful thoughts are roses that bloom in my face;
Sin clad in silks and jewels isn't much to see;
The most becoming gown to wear is purity.

—JENNIE M. DeLOACH.

MASQUERADING.

We all go 'round masquerading,
Such a would-be careless throng,
So fain to hide from prying eyes
Our grief with laugh and song.
Pathetic, funny mortals, we—
Jesting with burdened heart—
We all go 'round masquerading,
Acting out a studied part.

Shakespeare affirms the world's a stage,
And that we are actors here—
Where each must act allotted roles,
Dispensers of "Good Cheer,"
But do we know, pretense, perchance,
Is but the thinnest mask;
It takes a smile true from the heart
To meet this "Good Cheer" task!

For smile we must through bereavement;
Deeper, then, than art and skill,
Is the lesson learned through sorrow—
To trust the Master's own "Good Will;"
Then instead of masquerading,
Lest the carping world would know,
Let us learn this sincere gladness,
Deeper than all pomp and show!

So, when we hear sweet voices singing,
And see happy smiling faces,
We all are cheered by joy up winging,
And shining light in darkest places,
Then, why go 'round masquerading,
Acting such a studied part,
When the Master has offered balm
For every bruised and broken heart?

—AUGUSTA WALL.

MOODS.

I dream of an isle, in the Southern Seas
And far from the ocean trails;
Where the soft wind sighs through the tropical trees,
Or a voice from the storm cloud wails.

Oh, tonight I would lie, where the soft winds sigh,
And sing, through the rustling palm!
'Neath the starry light of a South Sea night,
In a world of fabulous calm!

This island of dreams, unpeopled and fair,
Is the port of my every mood,
Most welcome to me when worry and care
Bend low, and over me brood.

Oh, today I would be, where the raging Sea
High, breaks on the shifting sand!
Where the low clouds scowl, and the wild winds howl
O'er spray, and a gleaming strand!

—CLAUDE JOHNSON.

TO THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION.

"The Constitution" is a treat,
It's loved by young and old;
The news from every clime and street,
Is in its pages told.

It has the best of everything,
Of news and features, too;
It is the best, of it I sing,
And this, also, should you.

Its comic pages please the kid—
From two to ninety-three,
The feature pages all are rid
From impropriety.

So keep it up from day to day,
And let us have the best;
Give me "The Constitution," say,
And you may have the rest.

—R. E. WHITE, Ahoskie, N. C.

TOOT-TOOT!

Editor, Constitution: Quite some time ago before I took up my residence in Atlanta, I saw some signs on the ends of the street cars here in the city, reading somewhat as follows:
"Use your head—not your horn;" apropos of which, a trip downtown in my car, inspired the following effort:

If the car ahead should stop—
Blow Your Horn.
If you see a Traffic Cop—
Blow Your Horn.
If the traffic light shows red,
And the traffic stream stops dead,
And you can not use your head—
Blow Your Horn.

If the car you drive is fast—
Blow Your Horn.
If its made in years gone past
Blow Your Horn.
Disregard all rights of way,
Never mind who has to pay,
You can make it, so you say
Blow Your Horn.

If you want to start your car,
Blow Your Horn.
If you want to stop your car,
Blow Your Horn.
If to left you want to turn,
If the dimmers they should burn,
And pedestrians you would spurn.
Blow Your Horn.

To get away with murder,
Blow Your Horn.
If you can't go any furdur,
Blow Your Horn.
If a Newsboy you would hail
Or your tire picks up a nail,
Or you stop to get your mail,
Blow Your Horn.

When the crossing gates are down,
Blow Your Horn.
If the flagman wears a frown,
Blow Your Horn.
If in the traffic there's a breach,
That you try your best to reach,
And the brakes begin to screech,
Blow Your Horn.

If the fire trucks are coming,
Blow Your Horn.
And you hear their engines thrumming—
Blow Your Horn.
Shoot in there—step on the gas;
If anyone hollers—give 'em sass;
And if you find you can't get pas',
Blow Your Horn.

Never mind what's up ahead,
Blow Your Horn.
Some day you can't—for you'll be dead,
So, Blow Your Horn.
And Old Gabriel, so they say,
Blows his Horn all night and day;
"Tis, it seems, Atlanta's way.
Blow Your Horn.

—C. R. HODGSON.

HOMESICK.

I am clad in radiant robes of white,
White lilies are in my hand—
I am crowned with Death's pale chaplet of flowers,
But I dream of an earthly land.

These shining spirits are kind to me,
In this great city of light—
But I lean from its golden portals and grieve
That I am not with you tonight.

—MAY THOMAS MILAM.

PAGES FROM MY LIFE

AMERICAN ART IDEALS

AMERICA began to interest me more and more. I visited many cities, seeing them more thoroughly than most foreigners. The more I observed the manners and customs of American life the more I realized that in the United States, much is accomplished and little said. This caused me to think rather sadly of my mother country, where exactly the reverse is true—little is accomplished, but there is much talking!

In America, too, I noticed that work is considered not only a necessity but a pleasure. The more I traveled, admiring the strength and power of this wonderful country, the more I was convinced that work, work in which there is the spirit of cooperation, can alone make people rich and—although I cannot define happiness—perhaps happy.

Among other observations I was impressed by the striving of the American people towards the beautiful. An example of this is the striking fact that nearly every large American city has its own symphony orchestra. Anyone unfamiliar with American symphonic concerts can have no idea of how wonderfully this feature of the country's life is carried on. I have listened with greatest pleasure to the symphony orchestras of Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati and New York.

Another remarkable fact—in America, symphonic music not only lives in the halls consecrated to its service but also in certain motion picture theaters.

During this season, greedily anxious to study every form of American life, I went often to the theater. The theaters, themselves impressed me by their dazzling interiors, but I nearly always felt it a matter of regret that their exteriors were smothered by towering office buildings. Indeed, were it not for the electric signs, and posters, it seemed often impossible to realize that these were theaters.

Among other engagements that season was one with the Chicago Opera company. I will not discuss it here, because such impressions require special attention and will perhaps find a place in a future book I hope to write about art, music and the drama.

While my headquarters were in Chicago, I learned that I had been booked for a concert in Milwaukee. As this city was only a few hours distant, I determined to make the trip by motor, to the great disgust of both my manager and my accompanist, who were convinced that in this wintry weather, the bad conditions of the roads threatened an accident to the car. I would be late in arriving, they gloomily informed me, if, indeed, I arrived at all. However, I reminded them that I had often taken such risks, and that up to the present time travel by motor had never caused me to miss an engagement.

So a car was engaged and I started out for Milwaukee at 2 o'clock on the day of the concert, proposing to make the return trip in the same fashion, immediately after finishing the program. The day was clear, the country buried in a glistening blanket of snow, the air crisp and invigorating. I was warmly dressed and further, weighted down with rugs, while my feet rested upon a heater provided by the motor company. I was in excellent spirits and happy at making the trip under such pleasant conditions instead of seated in a stuffy train.

We stopped at a grocery store in Racine to buy fruit and sandwiches, which with a thermos filled with hot coffee provided us with all the mak-

"The only authorized English translation of my autobiography."

Feodor Chaliapine

ings of a picnic. Although a hardy young native, my chauffeur appeared to think I had taken leave of my senses in planning this drive at such a season of the year. Still, he drove manfully ahead. The condition of the roads prevented much being accomplished in the way of speed. My good spirits lasted until the early twilight deepened into utter darkness. The cold increased. There was no sign of Milwaukee. To my repeated inquiries as to when we would arrive, the chauffeur gave evasive answer.

Six o'clock came, then seven, seven-thirty, and still no signs of the city. Finally at a quarter to eight, the lights of Milwaukee came into view and better roads permitted increased speed. The car drove up to the hotel where I was to put on my evening clothes. Fortunately, the theater was only a few blocks away. Tired and stiff from sitting so long in the intense cold, I ordered tea and that splendid American dish, apple pie! Then I dressed as quickly as possible. At this Milwaukee hotel, I encountered unusual hospitality. The management absolutely refused to accept the slightest remuneration for the luxurious suite placed at my disposal!

After the concert, to save time and make the earliest possible start, I changed into traveling clothes in my dressing room at the theater. When we started back I felt tired and pensive. It was bitterly cold as we sped along, past lakes, and wooden houses which loomed dark and forbidding on the shadows of night. From these houses winked occasional lights. I thought perhaps that their fitful flames shone upon refugees or emigrants.

This brought thoughts of Russia, its forests, its steppes and—its wolves! I began telling my companions stories of how, once, in the wilds of the steppes, my sleigh had been followed by wolves and my dogs torn to pieces!

What if we should be set upon by a pack of hungry wolves, or—held up by bandits! Only that week there had been accounts in the Chicago newspapers of hold-ups, that had taken place on this very road!

I had barely reached the climax of my story, and my companions still sat open-mouthed, when there was the sound of whirring, whirring wheels. It was a motorcycle.

"Voila!" I thought, "this is most certainly a hold-up!"

All our money, was hidden in one corner of the automobile, so that in case we were searched nothing would be found on us.

An electric torch flashed in the face of the chauffeur. He stopped at once.

After a few minutes parleying the car sped on again. Mystery!

Not 15 minutes later, the same incident was repeated.

This time, furious at the delay, I got ready for action.

"Please do nothing," someone whispered. "I beg of you, don't attempt to talk!"

A minute later the door of the car was opened and a figure, so muffled that it was impossible to guess whether the stranger was highwayman or police officer, flashed an electric torch in our faces.

"Are you the Racine Chief of Polices" the intruder asked me gruffly.

Since my fur cap and heavy winter overcoat gave me a rather military appearance, I decided to trust to luck.

"Yes," I answered in the same brusque manner.

"All right then, go ahead!" was the reply.

To this day, the identity of the two motorcyclists remains an unsolved riddle. Bandits or policemen, we never knew. Probably the two men were additions to the regular police force, specially engaged to guard the region where the recent hold-ups had occurred.

It was in Chicago that I had certain significant encounters with the press. The first instance consisted in a flamboyant and utterly false article, alleging my exaggerated attentions to a certain lady, a member of the cast of "Mefistofele." According to the newspaper report a friend of hers, a basso, also a fellow member of the Chicago Civic Opera company had succumbed to an attack of jealous rage.

The second incident was more amusing.

My manager took me to visit a certain Chicago newspaper office. The representative of the paper, who greeted us in shirt sleeves and trousers appeared very much embarrassed.

"So pleased to meet you," he stammered. "Didn't you come from Czecho-Slovakia, what do you do, and how did you happen to come here?"

My manager appeared most upset, probably because he had informed me that this celebrated paper very much wished to make my acquaintance.

"Pardon me," I answered. "I am not from Czecho-Slovakia but from Russia! And," I continued, in a soprano voice, "I sing."

"Oh," was the reply. "In which operas?"

To save the situation my manager hurriedly stated that Monsieur Chaliapine was very much interested in American newspapers whereupon the gentleman, becoming exceedingly amiable, showed us through the building and revealed several secrets of the art of printing.

The third incident was less amusing. I had been showing a certain member of the Chicago Opera company my ideas of how Shouisky should behave in his scene with Boris Godounov in the Czar's palace. Those who have seen the opera will remember that Godounov is highly overwrought in this scene and that his treatment of Shouisky is far from gentle.

Well, as ill luck would have it, someone unversed in matters operatic and not realizing that all this manhandling and cursing was mere play-acting and part of a rehearsal spread the report that I had engaged in a quarrel in the course of which a certain gentleman had broken my nose. Newspapers throughout the country carried the incident with flamboyant headlines. Armies of partisans sprang up for each side. The incident was cabled to Europe. Even my faithful secretary Isai sent me a message asking for the truth.

I replied that if the report of a certain gentleman's having broken my nose was not followed the next day by news of a funeral he might rest assured that the story was untrue.

It is all very well to say that my spine is too hard to break but with such jokes as those, one may be severely injured and I feel sure that among the printing presses lies the capacity for profounder thinking. As such things have only happened to me in Chicago, I am obliged to conclude that the newspapers of that city have a special psychology!

Among the cities that I visited that season was Cincinnati, where delightful hospitality was shown me. Nothing was left undone by friends that could possibly have contributed to my pleasure and entertainment. I had dinners, luncheons, and an amusing stag party at a club. I only wish I could remember that song we sang in which the words "Bulldog, bulldog, bulldog!" occurred so often.

It was in Cincinnati, too, that I first visited a cafeteria, where I greatly enjoyed carrying my own tray and making selections from the various eatables displayed on well-stocked counters.

CALIFORNIA.

My trip to California was something of an ordeal to face.

On this occasion, however, train life resolved itself into a pleasant enough routine. I had my morning coffee and grapefruit in my drawing-room and rose late, making first appearance in the dining car about the time other travelers were finishing their luncheon. There I sat for a long time after the car was empty, watching the scenery. The changing light, the rugged grandeur of the mountains, the adobe houses, now and then a solitary equestrian figure against the horizon—everything interested me.

Late on a warm, sunny afternoon we drew near to Los Angeles.

A day or two after my arrival I accepted one of repeated invitations from one of the larger movie establishments to visit Hollywood. When I arrived at the studio, a ballroom scene was being "shot"—as they call it—and I spent some time watching the director's operations. Later on a tour of inspection, I was fascinated by the elaborate "props." On one lot, a circus tent had been reproduced. Camels, elephants, tight-rope walkers, clowns and jugglers were hanging about, waiting to be called into action. Only a few feet farther on, a Russian street, with familiar looking houses met my gaze. Only one more wish remained to be gratified—I longed to pay a visit to that admirable artist, the immortal Charles.

I was told that this might easily be accomplished and in a few minutes, I was sending in my card. Although busy on a set, Mr. Chaplin at once threw open the door of his studio. He did more. I told him of my desire to see him on the screen, which had hitherto been foiled. In every city on the tour, Chaplin pictures had either just closed prior to my arrival, or were being announced for a date following my departure. What was my joy, when Mr. Chaplin ordered "The Pilgrim" run off in his private theater and sat beside me explaining through an interpreter the progress of the picture.

None of the disorder and confusion that necessarily reigned at the larger studio was in evidence at the Chaplin workshop. While Charlie completed a few directions on the set, Japanese servants bowed the way to his study, a delightful room, luxuriously furnished and filled with flowers, books and photographs. Later we had some snapshots taken with members of his company.

Altogether this first visit to Holly-

Continued on Page 12.

Why the Duke Sold the Fa

WHY did the Duke of Westminster "banish" the famous $400,000 Nassak diamond to America?

That is the question over which many have pondered since the duke sold the monster diamond a year ago through an unidentified agent, who secretly transported it to the United States where it has since remained under heavy guard.

Was the nobleman forced to surrender the historic eighty-carat stone for needed "cold cash"?

The contingency is hardly likely—for the duke's fabulous fortune is believed to set him far beyond the confines of necessity.

Westminster is a well-known figure in European society, where at present there is interested speculation over his reasons for selling the inimitable Nassak, which has been part of the Westminster family treasure for generations. Even the present owner of the diamond, M. Mauboussin, a Parisian jeweler with headquarters at No. 330 Park avenue, in New York, knows nothing of the hidden motives which resulted in the transaction.

The duke is a glittering figure in Parisian society and his affairs are eagerly noted and discussed in the French capital; yet no one there was aware a year ago that he was financially embarrassed, nor does anyone believe that he was forced to sell the gem in order to raise ready funds.

There are many reasons why the duke might have wished to retain the Nassak.

It is an Indian gem. The supply of Indian diamonds, which are the finest in the world, surpassing African stones in brilliance and purity, has been exhausted. Even in past centuries when the mines of India were operated freely, large stones were seldom revealed. Indeed, the celebrated diamonds of unusual size now existent barely exceed a half dozen in number. Most of them are locked away in European museums, while substitutes, cut like the originals, are shown to eager sightseers.

In addition, the Nassak is a rare family heirloom—closely interwoven with the tradition of the Duke's house. It was worn by a Westminster at a court function on the occasion of Queen Victoria's birthday. The jewel was carried on the hilt of the duke's sword, where it excited such admiration that every newspaper carried an account of the event the following day. From that moment until the present, a period of ninety years, the Nassak has been locked in the Westminster coffers, hidden from the eyes of all but a few intimate friends of the family.

And yet, it is this priceless stone which the duke has sold.

Not (Hints Society) for Gold, but to Please a Pretty Woman, Was the Famous Nassak "Banished"

Through the maze of speculation regarding the sale, there sifts an interesting theory. Gossip has taken up the problem, bandied it back and forth and clothed it in an amazing story.

From reliable sources comes the story that the Duke of Westminster sold the gem, not out of necessity, but of fear—fear of the ancient curse placed on the stone. But not his own fear!

The history of the Nassak suggests all the romantic hazard, malevolent misfortune and breathless intrigue which make the history of renowned diamonds more fascinating and catastrophic than fiction.

Long ago the Nassak lodged as a cyclopean eye in the forehead of the idol Shiva, whose temple of worship was at Nassak, on the upper Godavery, in India. Nassak has long since disappeared, but is believed to have been about one hundred miles from the present town of Bombay.

Shiva was a god of four hands, with snakes entwined in his hair, and a necklace of skulls about his neck. The Nassak remained unmolested in his head for many centuries.

Always regarded as "The Gift of the confederacy, became the conquerors of the land and seized the Nassak that it might bring them good fortune in carrying on their warfare.

Alas for the Perishwas! The diamond, even then, seemed to have accompanied misfortune. It was seized by the British as loot after a battle which defeated Bajerow, the last of the Perishwas chieftains.

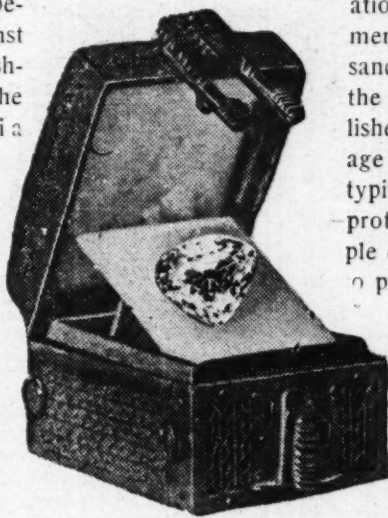

Once in the hands of the British, the diamond was destined to remain with them for over a hundred years. Presented by the Marquis of Hastings, commander of the expedition against the Perishwas, to the East India company, the Nassak was brought to London. There it aroused as much curiosity in 1818 as it has in the United States today. Until 1837, the diamond remained in the vaults of London jewelers, but it finally went to the auction block, where the then Duke of Westminster bought it.

Superstition has long attributed an unhappy fate to the ravishers of idols. Death and destruction are still believed by many to lurk behind sacrilegious molesting hands.

The explanation need not be supernatural. A mental force was set in motion thousands of years ago, say, for instance, the god Shiva. A tradition was established. Ardent worshipers paid homage at the foot of a bronze god, who typified all the attributes of fatherly protection and of vengeance, if his people did not obey his law. In an effort to placate the god and obtain his good graces, offerings were laid at his feet, richest jewels brought to his temple. A myth propounded strongly enough may take on the actuality of fact—may be fact in the minds which establish it.

Hence, there was a personality that was Shiva, worshiped by thousands for years. A thought wave was set in motion. Finally the god was robbed of his riches by alien hands, bringing into actuality the ancient curse

The Diamond as It Appears on Display, Valued By Its Owner at $400,000.

Above, Image of the Hindu God Shiva, from Whose forehead the Nassak Diamond Was Taken.

Gods," it remained the personal property of Shiva, absorbed the mystic surroundings of the temple with its penetrating shafts of light, and, in the holiness of its sanctum, escaped pillage during an epoch when all India suffered the ravages of foreign invasion.

Gradually, however, India and the Mogul Empire disintegrated. The Perishwas, powerful chiefs of the great

Is Family Fam

THE two young people whose photographs accompany this article are winning new fame for old names.

They have distinguished family connections, yet they are not content to rest on the laurels their immediate or distant forbears won. They are breaking down the old theory that a great name is a handicap, that the descendants of celebrities don't amount to much.

At the left you will see Beulah Louise Henry, a descendant of Patrick Henry, the great Revolutionary statesman and orator. She's an inventor and holds all records for her sex in that field.

At the right is Senorita Margarita Grisanti, daughter of the minister from Venezuela, who is becoming an expert in secretarial work. Prince Rudolph of Windisch-Graetz, the twenty-year-old great-grandson of the famous Emperor Franz-Josef, has become an expert automobile demonstrator and racer.

Years ago Patrick Henry rose

Beulah Louise Henry, a Descendant of Patrick Henry, who Has Won New Honors for the Famous Name She Bears and a Fortune for Herself by Her Inventions.

Famous Diamond

"Did the beauty shrink away in horror from the most gorgeous of all betrothal gifts? Did she, as she gazed into the sparkling depths of the Nassak, read the forbidding omen of Shiva's vengeance?"

in the minds of his people. That curse, in the minds of Shiva worshipers, at least, traveled to foreign countries with the stone. Is it from this curse that the Duke of Westminster seeks to be freed? Or, asks society, does someone else fear the curse?

The sale of the Nassak has been clothed in such mystery that only speculation may follow. The Duke of Westminster is certainly possessed of all that would tend toward happiness in the possession of worldly goods. Yet has he been conspicuously happy?

One needs only to consult the facts. There was the wrecking of his home by his divorce, and all the unpleasantness which followed. There is, too, his unsuccessful suit of the beautiful Gabrielle Chanel, famous Parisienne couturiere.

Is a Help or a Handicap?

Senorita Margarita Grisanti, Daughter of the Minister from Venezuela, Who Chose to Become a Skilled Helper to Her Father Rather Than a Social Butterfly in Washington.

in the Virginia House of Burgesses and startled the world by crying: "Give me liberty or give me death!" Today his descendant, Miss Beulah Henry, might be visualized as crying: "Give us better toys for children!" For many of the forty-six patents which Miss Henry holds for new inventions have to do with toys.

Senorita Grisanti, as the daughter of a member of the Washington diplomatic corps, could very easily spend her time in a round of social pleasures, but she has elected to study at the Washington school for secretaries, to fit herself as a skilled helper to her father.

Prince Rudolph is proud of his relationship to his famous grandfather, Franz-Josef. A member of the old Austrian regime would have raised his hands in horror at the thought of a prince of the royal family taking a job, yet the young man likes his work.

No longer can it be said that the sons of descendants of celebrities fail to stand in their own.

Cartoon by Hyne of the Duke of Westminster, Whose Sale of the Famous Family Heirloom Mystified Society.

Did Mlle. Chanel fear the curse of Nassak? Is that why she has withheld her hand?

When proffered the most gorgeous of all betrothal gifts, did she shrink away in horror? Did she, as she gazed into the sparkling depths of the Nassak, read the forbidding omen of Shiva's vengeance?

The question is impossible of answer by any save Mlle. Chanel, who chooses to be silent, but intimates declare that it is worthy of speculation.

Gabrielle Chanel, the Charming Paris Paris Modiste, Who Is Believed to Have Turned Down the Duke's Offer of Marriage Because She Dreaded the Curse of the Historic Stone in His Possession.

A glance at the adventures of other renowned diamonds indicates that they have ever controlled the destinies of their owners, and have frequently been associated with romance, mystery and misfortune.

There was, for instance, the Regent. Few stones have been the cause of greater treachery than that diamond, largest jewel in the now extinct crown of France.

It was found by a slave working in an Indian mine who cut a hole in his leg where he hid the gem until he could escape to the coast with his treasure.

Once there, he found an English seaman who promised him liberty and a small sum of money in return for the diamond. Aboard the English ship, the seaman seized the jewel and threw the unfortunate slave into the sea.

Ill-luck trailed the brutal white thief; for with the money he obtained from the sale of the diamond, he drank and caroused and finally hanged himself.

The new owner, a famous English merchant, sold the gem to Thomas Pitt, governor of Fort St. George, grandfather of the Earl of Chatham, and father of the prominent English statesman, William Pitt. After worrying and fretting over the safety of the gem, Pitt sold it to the Regent, Duke of Orleans, in 1717.

Transferred to France, the diamond continued its malevolence. In the following year, one of the most brazen

Continued on Page 11.

MY LADY FAR AWAY

INSTALLMENT X.

STELLA ANTARES! lovely name, and lovely wearer! Had he been blind, idiotic, to think of her as a youth; blame her because she was kind, soft, as a woman should be? How had he been so strangely misled?

Welch could have told him; Welch, who understood Stella better than Royden did, or could. Welch knew why the deceiving brave airs of Antares, a little while after the Lahara's coming, had begun to fade away; how it was that Martha had guessed, and why she kept silence. As to why he had kept silence himself, he hardly knew. Or if he did, he didn't care to dwell on it. Nor did he care to consider why the world, just now, in spite of all the glories of lake and sun, of gilded islands, and birds bright as jewels sailing and balancing in the blue, looked dark—

He went on with his tappa beating.

Martha was gone. Hugh Royden, standing very straight and tall, was lighting another cigar. For a minute there was silence, while he drew in a breath or two of soothing smoke. The lake waves slapped along the Lahara's keel; their noise was increasing; the day had begun to decline. Across the opal sky a flight of hornbills went with outstretched, monstrous heads, home to the mainland woods; they made a sound like far off aeroplanes.

"Let's have it all clear," said Hugh presently. "I think I understand, but—this Smith was my late respected uncle?"

"I believe so," agreed Welch. "Nobody knew, but—"

"Somebody seems to have guessed. Quite—He was as eccentric as ever, and didn't want the title. I gather that. He fell in love with Mrs. Lyle—"

"Quite," mocked Welch. He could not help the tiny sneer, knowing that Royden understood as well as he did himself, how the fall had been brought about.

Royden took no notice. "As to the—marriage," he said, "I shall have to ask Hopper for particulars, if I—"

He stopped, looked down at the black sand beneath his bootsoles for a moment, and then went on—"If I—care to."

But Welch somehow guessed that he had not intended to finish his sentence just so. "If I meet him" was what he meant to say at first, thought the other man. And he guessed, too, that neither soon nor late, was Royden likely to care; that for him, the incident of the marriage was closed; the door into that Bluebeard's chamber locked. What might be inside, he would never know.

Martha, meanwhile, was making her way, active and light, across the tree top road. With her went Jacky, the interpreter, "looking out good along missus." The new Lady Wilsdon was no weakling, in spite of her fragile build.

"At worst," she thought, "a title's a title—and I daresay the family will make me some allowance." But before her eyes fled ceaselessly the golden vision of what might—ought to have been. And across the vision lay, like the bar that closed forever the gates of Eden, a phrase from the end of the stupid old-fashioned prayer book that she had so seldom opened or read (why hadn't she? she asked herself now, with futile regret) "A man may not marry his father's brother's wife."

In the bungalow house, Stella Antares was sitting.

She had made no radical change in her dress; her tunic of ivory tappa cloth was as plain as ever, her limbs as innocently bare. But she herself was changed amazingly. Her hair was smoothed back from her forehead, and bound with a fillet of woven frangipanni flowers. There was a chain round her neck of those brilliant small red seeds known to antipodean children as black-eyed Susans. About her waist, fastening the short tappa frock in place, she had a native belt of black and red fibers, woven in cunning patterns. She had been used to wear her tunic loose and flowing; upper and under garments, thus arranged, had disguised the grace of her figure, and—as she was young and slight, giving her the appearance of a youth carelessly dressed. Now she had drawn in the girdle so as to emphasize the delicate contours of a shape as fair as Psyche's; she had lengthened the tunic itself by pulling down its draped folds and in so doing had utterly changed her appearance. It was a woman, no masquerading youth whom Martha saw, seated in the big skin chair by the far doorway, as, wearied, disappointed, angered with herself and the whole world, she entered in.

The flush that suddenly came, and as suddenly faded on the face of Stella Antares, told Martha all she wanted to know, and a little more.

"This is just the limit," she thought, crossing the floor with her usual elaborate grace, just a trifle exaggerated, as if the place belonged to her. She was not at all sure that it did not. In any case she meant to act on that assumption.

Stella Antares had risen as if to greet her. She did not sit down again when Martha, with a careless nod, dropped into a chair.

"I suppose," she said, looking towards the doorway, "that my father is coming behind you?" Her manner was cold, but not uncivil. Martha thought—"She's heard somehow about the marriage, and she thinks—down the little weasel!—that she's going to pick up my leavings."

Aloud she asked: "What's made you give up boy's clothes?"

Stella twisted her long slim hands together. "I—" she said, and stopped, "I—have only just done it." It seemed as if she thought some excuse was necessary, for she hurried on. "My father never made me promise that I wouldn't. I don't think he will mind."

"My father never made me promise." "This girl respects promises. This girl would keep them at any cost," thought Martha. A new idea had come into her mind; a recollection of something she had once heard overheard—no matter what—about Stella Antares and her father. But she put the thought away, and pretended to herself successfully enough, since she had had much practice in that art, that it had never crossed her mind.

"It seems," she said, watching her victim, "that you haven't heard the whole of the tale. My dear girl," she went on, smoothly, "do let me ask you to prepare yourself for bad news. What did you hear?"

Stella had been trained to rigid, almost savage truthfulness. She answered at once, "I hid in the bushes when Mr. Royden came, and I heard him telling all about your having married my father. Then they saw the boat, and I ran away home."

"Pity you didn't stop a little longer," said Martha. She was beginning to enjoy herself now. "Do prepare yourself; I hate to tell you so abruptly. It has been hard on me; I assure you I am trembling in every limb, and my head is aching as if it would split. But I said 'I can't leave it for any one else to tell her; let me go at once,' I said. 'I must find that poor child,' I told him, 'and let her know immediately.'"

"What is it that you have to let me know?" asked Stella Antares. She was still standing. Her hands had fallen to her sides. Her gold-brown eyes were anxious. Yet she did not seem very greatly perturbed. "He is all right," she was saying to herself. "I have only just left him."

"My poor dear child, your dear father is dead," said Lord Wilsdon's widow, fanning herself. "It makes me feel perfectly faint to have to tell you. I—What are you looking like that for?"

"I do not believe you," said Stella, clenching her hands and advancing her head, with a sudden, threatening movement.

"Hope she won't claw me, little wildcat that she is," thought the other—"But you must believe me. It's most dreadful for me. He fell down in the hut and died at my feet. It was horrible." She was speaking naturally now without any affectation; the fan had stopped waving, and her brows were drawn into a frown. She was living over again in thought the bitterness of the moment when she had realized that her last, most daring, most unscrupulous move, had been made all in vain.

"My father is dead?" cried Stella, in a frightened voice. Conviction was coming to her. She stepped backwards, as if about to fall. Martha's cold eyes, watching, revived her. She drew herself up, leaned one hand on the chair, and asked—"Did you kill him?"

"My good girl, do have sense," snapped Martha. "Why should I kill him?" Truth spoke again, and again. Stella felt its weight. From her lips there came a cry, a strange cry for the daughter of goddess Wilsdon—but who knew what she had read in his vast library, what knowledge had somehow found its way to her hungry, innocent mind?—"My God!" She covered her face with her hands, and ran into the bedroom.

"Let her have it out," thought Martha, a little compunctious now that the thing was done. "Some one had to tell her! Why not I? Why not I?"

But she knew "why not," in spite of pretenses.

She waited, wondering who would come in next, and what the next move in this long, tiring, astonishing game would be. She lay back on the cushions of the chair.

"I think I must have been asleep," she said to herself, sitting suddenly upright. It had grown quite dark in the bungalow room; the doorways were tall slips of glittering starlight.

The wind blew over Martha, in her thin dress, almost coldly. She sprang to her feet, felt for the match box that she always carried, and struck a match. Lighting a lamp she carried it into Stella's room and held it high above her head. The room was empty.

She searched the house, not daring to tell herself what it was she wished or did not wish—to find. But she found nothing. Stella Antares had gone.

When Hugh, Martha and Welch met together in the hall a little later, they felt somewhat as passengers from a liner are apt to feel encountering one another ashore. All travelers know the feeling. One desires no harm to the people with whom one has journeyed so long; one can even forgive them for their objectionable characteristics, if any, forget the little differences that may have arisen, and (as St. Thomas Aquinas is said to have done with the dangerous sex) "commend them in general to God." But—one does not want their company for the same reason that leads one to refuse plum pudding, even the best of plum pudding, the day after Boxing day.

These three people had been through a good deal together; they had liked, and even loved, at the outset; they had differed, made up, differed again, and now desired each other's company for various reasons, scarce at all. Hugh, as he told himself, did not care if he never saw Martha again. Welch, for reasons of his own, was not particularly attached to Hugh. Martha would have poisoned either of them, if she could. But there was no alternative; they had to come together and stay together in the bungalow house until the return journey began; and even then they would only exchange one set of cramped quarters for another. Every one, therefore, was prepared to make the best of it.

He who had been the master of the house lay out on the little island, sleeping in peace his last long sleep; for Royden earlier had seen to the burial. Martha, the new-made widow, sat under a lamp with an ancient Victorian novel, trying to distract her thoughts, which were not of the pleasantest. Hugh, who had lost his future wife, and should have been lamenting the fact in a visible despair, and metaphorical dust and ashes (according to the future wife herself) had gone to bed, utterly tired out; Welch, after a little talk, manufactured for politeness' sake, was about to follow his example. He had asked Martha on first coming in whether she knew anything about Stella, and being told that the girl had gone into her room some hours before and not come out again, had merely shaken his head. "I suppose you broke it to her quietly?" he asked. And Martha said "Yes, as well as I could. She seemed a good deal upset. I shan't disturb her tonight: there is another room."

"Probably," she told herself later when she was preparing for bed, "the girl is merely sulking somewhere or other. I don't know the whole place as she does. She may be in the huts of the native girls. At any rate, it's no business of mine."

She looked at herself long in her traveling glass that night, not, as usual for the purpose of admiring her own beauty, the white daisy fineness of her skin, the long lift of her throat, the intriguing, natural dusky shadows under her brilliant eyes. She stared at Martha Royden, instead, as if for the first time facing a not too well liked stranger. "Fool," she said, looking at the beauty that had brought so little in the market after all. "Couldn't you have held your tongue and let things run as they were running? He would never have told; he only wanted to stay here. But you wanted to be sure—and you thought, when it all happened like a lightning flash, that you'd one chance yet, did you? Why wasn't I brought up to know my way about the prayer book? It really should be taught in schools—not all that stuff about your duty to your neighbor, and who gave you your name—who's going to give you another, is a lot more important!—but all about marriages. You never know when it mayn't be useful."

Her spirits, always elastic, had begun to revive a little. "After all," she said to herself, "I am Lady Wilsdon, and London society is very much altered if that won't open a few doors. And the family must provide for me. It might be worse." One possible aspect of the "worse" presented itself to her mind, but she drove it away.

A Blue Ribbon Serial

By Beatrice Grimshaw

"I shan't sleep a wink if I let myself think about that," she said. "What a blessing it is I've never had to rely on drugs!" She jumped into bed, pulled the net about her and, in spite of heat, chousing frogs, palms that rustled loudly on the roof as the wind came up from the cooling lake, night pigeons, boobook owls, she slept soon and soundly, like a child.

Out on the lonely island a little ghost that night must have wandered, if ever ghosts come back to the scene of their earthly loves and sorrowings. Surely the girl who died giving life to Stella under the cold bright eye of the great star Antares must have returned, regretting and lamenting, to the lake where her lover had remained faithful and mourning for so long. He had not waited till the end, after all—he who had held her in his arms when she was dying and told her that he would never leave her grave; never, while life lasted, look on the face of another woman. He had looked, and loved and now that he came to her it was with his kisses of another new upon his lips.

Do they sorrow over such things in the gray realm of ghosts, or in the land where there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage, the "land that is very far off?" You and I shall know, but not yet.

* * * *

A new day came, with light upon the water and wild ducks crying. Hugh, from the great skin covered bed of the last Lord Wilsdon—he who had held his title but a day—watched it rise. "His day is past and mine is coming," thought the man, and he lay for a long time thinking and dreaming. His thoughts ran for a while on prosaic matters of county councils, building and drainage schemes, speeches, that a new lord might make in the mother of parliaments, bringing new, fresh points of view from the young country of his birth. They shifted then to Wilsdon castle, that plain, late Victorian, altogether matter of fact and comfortable country seat. They painted before him once again the picture of the big square hall, with its antlers and skin rugs; the tea table, with girls and men in muddled hunting kit clustering about it; the log fire glowing through early dusk . . . dogs, yes assuredly, scampering playfully, sleeping luxuriously, begging, catching, "dying for the king." . . . What else? Was nothing—no one—to play about the hall, go racing and scampering up and down the staircase, crowd round his chair, but dogs? There was something—some one—else.

Brightly the vision painted itself as he lay quietly in the big bed, rested, indolent, watching the light creep swiftly down the walls, and the pageant of the new day begin. In the light of "The inner eye

That is the bliss of solitude."

he could see the hall of Wilsdon made merry by children; boys and girls, a Christmas crowd back from schools, down from nurseries, clustered about himself and—whom?

That figure persisted in remaining shadowy, vague. "I suppose I'll marry some one or other," was all that he found to say. But the children were not so indefinite. One of them, a lad near manhood, had clear cut features and cropped hair of reddish gold; black eyes, a bold, almost swaggering carriage, and an air of pluck and dash that made one turn to look at him as he went by. Tall he was, almost as tall as Hugh himself, big limbed and broad shouldered; a stocky, masculine figure . . . yet he was like some one else, too; some one with slender arms and dainty build, and eyes—

"You're going too fast, my boy," said Hugh to himself, reaching out for a smoke. "Probably she's been spoiled by this wild life, and wouldn't—no, by Gad, she's a Royden too; she'd carry a coronet with the best of 'em. I'm darned if she wouldn't."

Smoke and dreams held him for a minute or two.

"She's not eighteen," was the sum of his musings. "But hang it all, I'm young at thirty—not still young, or wonderful for my age, or anything filthy like that. Young. And she's young. And I'm dashed if I haven't been more than half in love with her all along, without knowing it. She's what a man dreams of for a wife but never finds—a creature as white as snow, brought up without ever hearing a word of love or even seeing it. She's a sheet of blank paper to write on as one chooses. And for all the pretty, larkly women who know their way about, the girls who can outdrink their brothers and tell smoking room stories as well as oneself—the kind of thing they mean when they talk of comradeship—this is the sort for my money, and for ninety-nine men out of a hundred—if only they'd the pluck to say so, and if the breed hadn't, in any case, run out."

So he thought and watched the day come in. And Martha, in her room, waked, and reflected and made use of the clear morning light to paint herself with all her accustomed art, because "they" hated to see you look sallow and peaked of a morning, and "they" were still her only thought in life—as it would be till age or death ended her reign.

The Black and Red Flower.

Welch had risen, and was busy in the kitchen, where he found, this morning, no native servant at work. He lit the fire, made tea, and presently brought it round. There was no answer to his quiet knock on Stella's door. Martha said, "Put it on the mat," and Hugh cried, "Thanks, old chap; how awfully decent of you—hand it over."

The tamer took his own cup after that, and sat on the doorstep, drinking. When he had finished, he took a fresh cup, and went once more to Stella's room. He knocked again; again there was no answer.

He debated with himself as to whether he should call Martha or not. "No," was his verdict. "Stella's either asleep or—" The sentence hung unfinished. But he opened the door and walked in.

Light warmly came through the open window, curtained only by the broad leaves of the banana outside. Light filled the high brown roof, flooded the little bed, with its undisturbed covering of white tappa cloth. There was not a corner of the room that could not be seen, and not a corner that was not empty. Stella was not there; more, she had, all too plainly, not been there all night.

"One damned thing after another," quoted Welch. He was exceedingly dismayed, but it was not his way to show, or express emotion, even to himself. He went immediately to Martha's room.

She answered briefly to his knock. "You can't come in."

"I'm coming in in thirty seconds by my watch," was Welch's answer. Martha replying—"Brute," went on with her painting. In thirty seconds, Welch swung the door wide, and walked in upon her, sitting under the window, with a reddened wad of wool in her hand, and one cheek brighter than the other.

"How dare you?" demanded Martha Lady Wilsdon, rising to her feet. She had a silk kimono over her gauzy nightdress; neither was substantial enough to have wrapped up a pound of butter. She did not betray the least embarrassment, and neither did Welch.

"You've got to tell me anything you know about Stella," was his address to her.

"Why?" asked Martha, swiftly passing a cloth over her face, and reducing both sides to the same hue.

"Because she's gone, and she has not been in her room all night."

"How can I tell you anything? I've told you already. She went into her room after she heard about her father, and she never came out again."

"The room has a window."

"Well, I wasn't supposed to stand under it all night, was I? What is there to make a fuss about? She's probably gone for a walk."

"And left her bed unslept in?"

"There might," said Martha, looking at him, not directly, but out of the depths of the glass she held in her hand—"There might be more than one reason for that."

Welch turned round and marched out of the room. He could not trust himself to answer.

Martha, quite unperturbed, reached for her bottle of liquid powder. She hummed a little song as she drew the cork and sprinkled a fresh pad of wool.

"Get on your clothes quick and lively," said the tamer to Hugh, a moment later. "Stella has bolted."

Hugh out of bed, was reaching for his trousers. "What's the trouble?" he asked.

"Mean to say you don't know? Don't remember about that old lunatic in the chemise and what he made her promise?"

"I—"

"About what she was to do if ever he—"

"She wouldn't! She wouldn't!" He had flung on a coat, dragged socks and shoes over his feet, was seizing his pith helmet. His face, white and dismayed, gave the lie to his words.

"If you ask me, she would. It's not only her father. . . . Here, don't let us waste time. Come on and I'll tell you as we go."

They had left the house; were going at a fast pace down the track that led to the only way out, the tree-top road.

"It's a damn pity you didn't know; but after all, a man can't go and give a girl away even if he—Truth of it is, Stella Antares' been head over ears in love with you almost all the time since we came."

"I don't believe it. I don't—but why should she think of killing—"

"Because she thinks you care for that tiger cat in there. She was as gay as a squirrel this last day or so, after she'd heard about Mrs. Lyle leaving you in the lurch. Then you must come back, and Mrs. Lyle comes back at the same time and says she's a widow again—quick work—and, of course, Stella thinks it's all going to be on again—"

"Why, dash it all, you know—"

"Yes, but do you think Mrs. Lyle—beg your pardon, my lady—told that? Not by a jugful, if you ask me. She let the poor little beggar go off in her room half crazy about her father's death, and about you on top of it, and went to sleep—" he checked his furious pace for a moment, to utter his opinion of Martha in brief, but lurid terms.

"Do you know," he said, going on again, "Stella very nearly did it the other night—would have, I think, only that her father was still alive. I got at her, and gentled her a bit. Just as one would do with any little soft frightened thing, out of the forests. I thought she was all right—but I hadn't reckoned on the old chap's death."

They were walking furiously toward the tree-top barrier; nearly there now.

"That tore it. . . . There's more trouble to come on his account or I miss my guess. Sooner you get out of this place again, the better."

"Time enough to talk of that when we've found Antares," answer Hugh, briefly. It seemed he could not train his tongue to the new name—yet.

So she loved him! Had loved him all the time, this bright, spirited, innocent thing, this maiden who had passed for a gallant youth, until love unnerved her, and broke through the thin pretense of manhood. A hundred recollections swept through his mind as he hurried on beside Welch. Of Antares, agile as any brown youth of the villages, paddling a canoe faster than he himself could paddle; running, bare limbed, swift as light, along the garden pathways; gliding, with almost magical activity, across the floating silver of the water grasses that ceintured the island. Antares, watching him, of an evening, from some quiet corner, with a glance that rose and fell, and rose again. Antares waiting on his word, following him like a dog. Antares asking him with innocent eyes, and lips that trembled—"What is love?"

Last, Antares crouching at his feet on the floor, refusing with a cold shudder the Browning pistol; creeping away, when he told him roughly to "Come and be blooded to man's work," into the dark silence of the inner room. Of himself, pushing away Antares—Stella—with his foot.

What else could you expect when you asked a girl to go out and kill somebody? He would have put his head under her little foot, and told her to strike him with it, for penance, could that have been.

Only too well he remembered now, what Smith—he could not call him Lord Wilsdon—had said, on the day when he took up cudgels for Antares—

"Antares knows of something that will keep him safe."

And now—had she done it? She was not as other girls, brought up in civilization, holding promise lightly whenever they conflicted with desire; ready to break an agreement at any time, if only it proved inconvenient, or looked absurd. Her father, without doubt, had bred her to scorn a lie, hold a promise dear as her life—the Spartan virtues that he had cherished himself when he gave up all else.

Dear as her life. If that were all! He feared that Stella Antares might, in her Spartan way, hold a promise ever dearer—

They were over the tree-top road. Before them stretched the open beach, the blue lake, nobody on the shore, nobody—stay. There was something, surely, at the far end of the beach, coming out of the forest, with a bunch of—what could it be? It looked like flowers—in its hand.

It was Stella, and Lord Wilsdon knew instinctively that she had spent the night in the forest, gone searching, at break of day, for the flowers of death, and—found them.

Only too well, in that moment, he had understood the meaning, the value of the oath that the elder Royden had made Antares swear. Savage as the asking and giving of the promise seemed, it was justified by circumstances. During all those years, the father had never known when accident, illness, or some unheard of treachery on the part of his native friends might not leave Stella Antares unprotected and alone. He had made her swear by all that she to accept the situation as a matter of course. Then her eyes fell upon the headlines. She whistled and was pleased. Here was help.

Continued on Page 12.

Doubling in Love

Continued from Page 2

"Looka here, Billy! They're burning up with excitement over how you've refused to remain the raspberry forever, and—and—"

William Hubbard closed his eyes tightly and waved the paper aside. And while she went on reading he talked to her at cross purposes—on and on. Finally he caught her attention, "You know, Cherry, a man must love his wife. This isn't fair to you."

There was a limit to all torture and Cherry faced him squarely. "O, boy, but you know how to please a woman! Now, dearie, don't rush me off my feet with compliments. I can't stand another one."

But his was a one-track mind. "You see, I still love Vi—Violet."

He sunk back into dumbness and she took her advantage.

"Let our marriage stick for a while, anyhow—then I'll pull out quietly."

"We won't even take the servants into our confidence. Before them let's be diplomatic and gallant—as the titles on the screen would say. See?"

It would seem that luck was with Cherry for, soon after the wedding, Violet Ventura left for New York. She did not like the way her friends and press minimized her part in the jilting. They preferred to believe that in this final instance William was the aggressor. So she took her leading man off to the east to make their next picture.

So punctiliously did Cherry stick to her arrangement that William would not have known he had a wife occupying the same house were it not for the sudden influx of social invitations. He was warmly taken up by people he had once yearned to know. In fact, he could not escape them now, and he and Cherry soon found themselves belonging to that inner circle of Hollywood elite often referred to as "the million dollar group." Cherry became known as the million-dollar bride who lived in a million-dollar house.

But aside from the prestige given her by marriage to a wealthy man, Cherry was holding her own. Her youth, fire, and sparkle, her quick repartee and wicked mimicry made her as popular with society as with the back lots of studios. William forgot that he had not chosen her and began to think that her popularity reflected upon his own good judgment. On his way home from dinner parties, sitting close to the alive and vital girl who was his wife, he had a sense of deep content.

But it was not so with Cherry. Underneath her lightness and gaiety she was restless and unhappy. Before marriage friendship seemed closely akin to love, but the chasm between these two grew wider as William made no effort to bridge it. And she loved him now more than ever and grew more timid with him, and found it hard to be satisfied with the quality of his affection. But she believed that eventually he would forget his love and then her own tender devotion would reach him and change him. She was humble and willing to wait!

But she reckoned without Violet Ventura, who suddenly returned from the east—and alone. There was rumor of a break with her leading man. Now, all through her life Violet had made it a habit to want the things she could not get. Thus she was as decided to marry William now as she had been undecided heretofore. She made no bones about it. She left no stone unturned to get him back. She went round telling every one how that man-crazy gamin had blackjacked her innocent William into marriage.

There was enough truth in the accusation to shame Cherry. While the girl realized that marriage gave her the drop on her formidable rival and that a few months before she would have taken every advantage of her strategic position, now she could not do it. Suddenly she found herself confronted with the ethical confusions of a gentlewoman. She had imposed herself upon William, partaken of his generosity, and now felt that she could not take steps to hold him against his will.

But Cherry was a romantic creature. She believed in such a silly thing as putting a man to the test. Christmas was a few days off. She would give a dinner to the closest of their friends—an old-fashioned Christmas party enwrapped with yuletide spirit, throbbing with good will and kindredship—the last gesture of a Cinderella before midnight. Then she would drop the slipper and see what William would do with it.

The evening was scarcely begun and Cherry was receiving happily at William's side when Violet arrived upon the scene. From behind an artificial smile she eyed her hostess hard. She made no excuse for her uninvited presence, but merely intimated that William had spent the afternoon with her. Then, becoming pleasantly aware that every one was watching her, she patronized Cherry and kissed William, locked her arm in his, and led him away from the side of his wife. She was truly a conquering lady!

Cherry watched them stroll off with despair in her heart and felt that William was leaving her forever.

King Hunt caught sight of her frozen, unhappy face—the face of a child in pain, and sought her out. She looked ill and scared and he was filled with remorse, felt that somehow it was his fault. Cherry saw him and clutched his hand. She was trembling. "Get me out of here q-quick," she cried.

He put a protecting arm around her waist. "I'm directing this scene from now on. Remember, the girl with brains can have anything she wants. Carry on!"

He tilted her face upward and continued under his breath. "The eyes of Hollywood are upon you, my dear. Smile . . . that's better . . . and we're under the mistletoe. Look pleased! We're not chinning, but sinning." And he bent down and kissed her tear-filled eyes, and turned so that William saw him.

She made a brave attempt to carry on until the very end, and now the dinner party was over and the guests were all gone. William was sitting in the room he had moved to the morning after his marriage, and he was smoking his usual bedtime cigar.

With elaborate pretense of casualness she called to him from her room, "Can you help me unhook my dress, Billy, dear?"

A dramatic silence. Panic on William's face! Through the mirror of her dressing table she saw him close his eyes and pretend to sleep, his big limbs trembling visibly with strain.

Cherry closed the door upon hope. And then she leaned against it and gave way to the exquisite torture of unrequited love.

Some months after Cherry had returned from one of those convenient western states where triangles are squared in no time, she ran across William and Violet. It was on movie night at a famous hotel. Their table was near hers and they were quarreling. To Cherry, who knew them well, it meant that the old relationship was reestablished. Violet was arrogantly objecting to the table, and William looked crushed. Eventually she left him to join some friends who, more fortunate than William, had been able to secure a place in a more conspicuous corner of the room. William, trying to follow her, stumbled across Cherry.

He stood abashed before her, shy and awkward like a big fat schoolboy, and yet eager for her good will. His eyes told her clearly that he was excited and pleased to see her. But Cherry was in no merciful mood toward him. She told herself that she was through with him, the same as she was through with measles and chicken pox!

"Hello, Billy, still chasing each other around the block, I see." She held up the salt cellar. "Try this on her tail, little boy."

He turned sharply on his heels and lost himself among the dancers while Cherry sat back slowly, regretting her cheap wisecracks and wishing she had bit her tongue out before uttering them.

In the fast turning cycles of picture making there came a day when King Hunt was again directing Violet Ventura. He found William still on duty, but obviously without zest for the routine. The habit had soured.

He wanted Cherry to play a small part and called for her.

"What's the idea, King?" asked Cherry.

"You can get William back any time if you will only curb your tongue and put a glycerine tear in your eye at the right moment. I've sounded him out."

"As a matchmaker you are a swell director, King."

"The props are all set for the final clinch, girl, so come along and do just as I tell you."

"Honest, I can't. Lemme go—I—I thank God every night that I'm white again and free." And she left him on the run so that he wouldn't catch her crying.

The winter had changed into summer when he ran across her again. She was perched on a stool eating a sandwich at a soda fountain restaurant, and looked very seedy. She worried him and he could not put her out of his mind for days. He had seen at a glance that she needed work, good food and clothes, and most of all some one to believe in her. She had lost faith in herself and that cock fighting spirit of hers was dead. Her saying that she was "white again" showed self torment, and for the second time he felt that he had had a hand in making her suffer. Somehow he had to make amends, and he set his mind to work.

A few days later he put in a call for her, asking her to meet the company at location at Santa Monica. He purposely avoided telling her that Violet was in the picture.

The climax of the story called for a yacht burning up at sea and he had added some exciting fire and water shots for the heroine which would afford Cherry a few days' work. He took care to be present when the two girls met. Both were uncomfortably conscious of the other, but Violet considered it below her dignity to raise objections, and Cherry too proud to show that she had any feeling in the matter.

Late in the afternoon William would arrive in his car and wait at the dock for Violet, and King Hunt would manage to send Cherry ashore earlier than the others so as to give the two a chance to be alone. Then William took to coming all day and the director felt that his scheme was working, but much too slow to suit him, for the picture was nearly completed.

On the day the yacht was to be burned up he made certain that he had every shot of Violet that the picture required. The small harbor was carefully patrolled by a flotilla of launches and lifeboats, carrying cameras, extras, deck hands and life guards. King Hunt had secretly given instructions to three of the guards to follow close to the rowboat in which he was going to send the two girls ashore. He got in with them and did the rowing. Within several hundred yards of the dock he made out the figure of William standing at the edge and waiting. Then, pretending that he had to give instructions to his men, he picked up the megaphone and arose. By lurching forward clumsily he managed to capsize the boat, and he and the girls tumbled into the water.

Cherry was the first to come up and found herself near King Hunt. "I did this purposely," he told her, "and now be a good girl and make believe you are drowning."

On the dock William was dramatically calling to every one to save Cherry, and finally, out of his wits with hysteria and forgetting that she could outswim any man in the harbor, he dove into the water and made for her, spitting and calling that he was coming to her aid.

As for Cherry, she was bobbing up and down like a cork. King Hunt from his vantage point saw her and lost patience. "Dammit, Cherry drown!" he cried.

"I can't," she said, laughing for all she was worth and getting a mouthful of water.

William heard her gurgling and implored her to hold out, while the life guards treaded water and laughed into the waves.

Violet had been picked up almost immediately and was on her way to shore when she saw William trying to save Cherry. "The fool," she cried, "I hope he drowns!"

But Cherry saw to it that he didn't. He was good for a few hundred dog strokes and little by little she eased him into shore, pretending to hold on to him all the while.

Once safely on the beach William saw the humor of the rescue, but he was far too happy to mind. The sudden fear for Cherry, coupled with his hysterical outburst, had in some mysterious way unbolted him emotionally. He grew bold and articulate. He insisted that he had saved her life and that is belonged to him henceforth.

Cherry was laughing and crying at the same time, a perfect picture of indecision.

"Why, Cherry, I've been crazy with longing for you. Your eyes have haunted me ever since you left me. I seemed to see you all the time and missed you like the devil. I used to keep thinking how sweet you were and the fun we had together and try to think up ways of how I could get you back—only I was afraid you would call me a vacillating fool and laugh at me."

"How do I know you won't change your mind when you see V-i-o-l-e-t?" blubbered Cherry.

"Because," explained William, carefully, "as your wicked tongue once pointed out, I've got a one-track mind. I can be engaged to no one but Violet and married to no one but you, Cherry."

(Copyright, 1927, . . .)

Things New and Old About the Bible By W. P. KING

Pastor First Methodist Church, Athens, Ga.

Books for Preachers and Laymen.

"THE NEST OF SPEARS," by F. W. Boreham, The Abingdon Press, New York city. Price, $1.75.

Again a fine message in human interpretations comes to us from the heart and mind of Boreham. He is a dreamer of dreams, a seer of visions, and an adept analyzer of the motives, aspirations, and achievements of humankind. In this volume, worthy in every way to stand by the side of its predecessors, we have much that falls in with the proper functions of the preacher as outlined by Paul in his instruction to Timothy, who was told to "preach the Word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." In his introductory note the author recalls an old Maori tale of the absence of war between certain tribes in spite of the fact that again and again everything was in readiness for an encounter. It was the great white manumaire, the peace-bird, that was responsible, for she had stolen the spears of the warlike chiefs and built them into her nest.

Boreham the versatile and inexhaustible loses none of his fascination as an essayist. His gifts of receptivity keep constantly active his powers of expression. His eyes are open, his ears are open, and his mind is open, the whole personality of the man is open to the messages of the world, whether the objects from which he draws his lessons are marvelous or commonplace. This is true in the present volume throughout, even to the last chapter, "The Weather." No person who reads this chapter will ever have again a secret shame because he talks about the weather.

"Adventure In the Minds of Men," by Lynn Harold Hough. The Abingdon Press, New York city. Price, $1.50.

The reader is admitted to a goodly fellowship as he ranges through the chapters of this book. Here one meets poets, historians, theologians, statesmen, lawyers, scientists, novelists, essayists, preachers, editors, artists—apostles of culture who have made, or are making, their contributions to the intellectual and spiritual betterment of humanity. And it is a thing quite worthwhile to have a contact with these choice spirits through one who is in full fellowship with them and with us. Doctor Hough traverses a wide area in these chapters and from every side gathers the rich fruitage of culture that is the glory of his adventure and quest.

If the gentle reader has not become acquainted with the writings of Dr. Lynn Harold Hough, he has something to which he may look forward. His vivid pen pictures of leading ministers and public men manifest both a rare psychological insight and a power of portrayal.

The wide range of his knowledge of books is very helpful and suggestive. The author knows how to seize the most apt quotations, as for example "Never get angry. When you are right you do not need to do it. When you are wrong you cannot afford to do it."

The author's subtle description of the snobbish high ecclesiastic sticks like a fish-hook in the memory.

"The Evolution of a Churchman," by Thos. Arthur Smoot. Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tenn. Price, $1.00.

"The Evolution of a Churchman" is the story of many a youth who has gone from the atmosphere of simple piety in a godly home to a college community in which the great problem raised by science and philosophy are discussed and upon which the practical pressure of the economic order is felt. In a fascinating narrative the author leads his characters through a period of question and revolt, experiment and disappointment, to a true appreciation of the church and a useful place in its work. The book handles the questions of the day with the candor which youth demands and at the same time avoids the pitfalls of negation into which it is so easy for critical youth to fall. While the author writes under the form of fiction, he has lived through his story, and many of the incidents are taken from actual life.

The evolutionary process described is not uniform. At times instead of development there is a decided degeneracy in the Evolution of a Churchman. There is the high-water mark of excellence in the portrait painted of B. Barlow, doctor of laws, the hypocritical sneak and influential Churchman. It is a book that one can hardly resist reading at one sitting.

"The Bible, Its Origin and Growth," by Costen J. Harrell, D. D., Cokesbury Press, Nashville, Tenn. Price, $1.00.

Dr. Harrell traces the history of the growth of the Bible to its final recognition as the inspired word of God. He has written especially for students in teacher training schools, but has produced a book that will be interesting to any one interested in the origin and growth of the Bible.

Written primarily as a textbook for use in standard training courses, nevertheless, this is one of the few books that is interesting and helpful to theologian or layman alike. Dr. Harrell offers stimulus for many an hour's consecrated thought and a happy insight into the one universally read volume, the Bible.

This book is a marvel of condensation, and the author has exercised this unusual gift without any sacrifice of clearness.

Dr. Harrell covers the salient points in connection with the origin and development of the Scriptures. The questions at the end of each chapter make the book convenient and adaptable as a textbook. This volume is not only excellent as a textbook for church groups but could be well used in schools and colleges that give courses in Bible study. Its value as a textbook in no way conflicts with its value to laymen and church people in general. The volume was originally delivered in a series of prayer meeting talks at First Methodist church, Atlanta, Georgia, where the author was pastor for five years.

Dr. Harrell maintains a fine balance between a reactionary traditionalism and a radical rationalism. The entire contents bear the marks of a sane and reverent scholarship. The quotations of the author are from the recognized Biblical scholars.

Broadway Banter

—By—
FORNEY WYLY

BILLIE BURKE has returned to Broadway again and is nightly frisking about in Noel Coward's "The Marquise." As you watch Miss Burke, you suddenly realize that during her absence of some few years, no one has taken her place. Instead, you begin to inadvertently recall some of the awful actresses you've seen annihilate Billie Burke parts. For this Mrs. Ziegfeld has a certain sort of charm and witchery in her acting which no one else quite seems to have.

"The Marquise" catches Mr. Coward writing in a far more romantic mood than he has let himself in for before. And to my mind "The Marquise" is one of his most delightful and persuasive plays. Even in the midst of their romance, his characters do not forget to make their usual scoffing and cryptic Noel Coward remarks, but on the whole I think I like this new trend in his play-fashioning. The show is laid in the powdered wig and satin breeches period and find that in those days, too, parlor chatter could be just a bit off, is I think, rather satisfying.

At Miss Burke's play, I saw Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant and Mrs. Marshal Slaton, and they told me between the acts they found the play enchanting. Esmonde Brady has been here for a few days and from what I can learn he was no sooner out of a matinee than he was off to an evening performance. He probably ate in a cab. Then, of course, being Esmonde, he did manage to squeeze in at least one debut party at Pierre's. His trip would not have seemed quite —er—in order if he hadn't found himself in front of at least one fidgeting bud.

Then I caught a glimpse of Mrs. James Robinson and Jennie having tea at the Plaza on a recent Saturday afternoon. And I believe that was the same day on which I had seen Chip Roberts exiting from one of the smart restaurants around lunch time.

Quite the poorest musical comedy I have seen in some time is "Happy" apparently enjoying itself no end at the Earl Carroll theater. All of "Happy" takes place at college, and it was particularly unfortunate, I thought, that players of advancing ages were selected to portray the bubbling collegiates. It was just a little painful to see a maturing soubrette and a bay-windowed juvenile advance to the footlights and chirp, "Oh, this younger generation."

This sort of thing is happening all too often. I happen to know a flock of younger actresses and actors who would have lent that breezy atmosphere to "Happy" it was in such distressing need of. And surely they would have been competent enough to meet the slight demands so easy-going an institution as musical comedy would make. "Happy" has a mildly entertaining plot, more or less colorless music, and a cast who would never be admitted to any college unless it were a teachers' summer non-mal course or a school for backward boys and girls.

Galsworthy's latest, "Escape," is being given a magnificent interpretation at the Booth theater these evenings. Leslie Howard, that inestimably competent young actor and writer, essays the leading role, that of the escaped convict. "Escaped" has as its sole purpose the bringing before you of the question, "Is it right or wrong to help a fugitive from justice, and would you yourself aid him if you were ever in such a position?" "Escape" is made up of eight or ten episodes in which we see the harried convict meeting up with various and sundry people, most all of whom try to help him in his flight. At the end, just when a minister is about to help hide him, he gives himself up. For as he says, "The one thing you can't escape from is your better self."

This play absorbed me completely and for something entirely different, I'd suggest your seeing it by all means.

"That," said someone with Beatrice Lillie as they drove past one of London's smartest homes "is the house Tallulah Bankhead has taken for the summer."

"She must be made to put it back immediately," was Miss Lillie's prompt rejoinder.

It seems that at the present moment there are more provocative pieces of music to dance to than there've been in some time. Without further delay let me list for you the numbers which should be found on that old piano of yours, you know the one which after July 1st will be all yours—don't forget the last payment:

"My Heart Stood Still," "Thou Swell," "I Feel at Home With You," "On a Desert Island With You." (All of the foregoing are from "The Connecticut Yankee"). "Up In the Clouds," (my favorite number this year), and "Thinking of You," (both from "The Five o'Clock Girl.")

"He Loves and She Loves," and "What Am I Going to Do?" from "Funny Face."

"Dawn," from "Golden Dawn." (This is the show in which Louise Hunter is the star and about which I'll tell you next week.)

Why the Duke Sold the Famous Diamond thefts in history, the famous Garde-Meuble robbery, resulted in the loss of all the royal jewels and with them, the Regent.

Continued from Page 7.

It was recovered and has remained with the French ever since except for a brief time when it was pawned to the Dutch so that its owners might settle war debts with the money borrowed.

Which proves that stones other than the dread Nassak have been ill-fated for their owners and gives increased weight to the theory that both the Duke of Westminster and the beautiful Parisienne have been in terror of the Hindu hoodoo.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

What Was Justice in This Case? Continued from Page 3

He called the letters merely "letters of sympathy," frank expressions of his fatherly regard. He insisted that there never had been anything between him and the nurse, anything romantic, that is. Had he not dismissed her from his home after his wife's death? Had he not tried to discourage her passion for him?

The girl's response to these fervid denials was a scornful reiteration of their supposed intimacies.

"I don't see how he has the nerve to go back on me," she complained. "His behavior looks pretty yellow to me, but I'm not going back on him. I still love him, but it's a cinch if I didn't already I never would now."

"Why, the very clothes he's been wearing were paid for by me! I even bought him the vest he wears at services!"

"As many happy hours as we spent together at Trinidad on those drives, making wishes to the stars and all those wishes being for our own future happiness, and as intimate as we were then, I don't see how he can say now he wanted to get rid of me."

Mr. Bailey admitted he had allowed the nurse to buy some clothes for him. He was short of money, he said, having been in the ministry too short a time to have large and profitable churches. He said he had been in the real estate business for twenty-five years in Trinidad, and had not become a minister until 1924.

Yes, those rides together were pleasant, he admitted. But as to their wishing to the stars and all that sort of thing, he had this to say:

Denunciation.

"We were frivolous, I admit, and enjoying pleasant hours. I am inclined at all times to enjoy light persiflage, and our association together was a sort of play."

Young Helen Bailey was outspoken in her denunciation of the woman in jail.

"I think it was a deliberate plot to kill the family," she said. "We had to stop this woman from acting the way she did with father. It was disgusting. She tried to work me and make me think it was all right, the things she was doing, but I knew good and well it wasn't."

On September 14 Dan Mitchell, prosecutor of Garfield county, announced that poison had been found in the viscera of Mary Jones Bailey and that Miss Atkinson would be held on a charge of murder.

"But we have more than just the report of a pathologist," said Mitchell. "In the hospital room in which the girl died we have found a hypodermic syringe containing a narcotic drug. This was similar to three other syringes found in the nurse's possession. We will prove that Miss Atkinson administered several injections to Miss Bailey, though only one was prescribed."

The Retort Courteous.

The next day the accused woman was formally arraigned before Justice David Fogelson. She pleaded not guilty.

Her naturally dark complexion pale after a week in jail, with deep dark circles under her eyes, Miss Atkinson appeared almost sullen when she was arraigned in court. When asked if September 26 would be satisfactory for her preliminary hearing, she snapped back, "It would be just too bad if it wasn't, wouldn't it?"

After the arraignment she gave a wry smile and remarked, "It looks very bad for me."

The preliminary hearing brought the expected sensations, most of them being provided by Stewart Bailey, the rector's 16-year-old son, who described scenes of intimacy between the nurse and his father. Some of the letters read also proved interesting to the spectators at this Oklahoma drama.

The boy admitted he had often seen Miss Atkinson sitting on his father's lap and kissing him. One incident he described in detail:

"On the morning after mama died, Miss Atkinson walked into the room where dad and I were in bed and sat down on the bed beside us. She took dad's hand and held it and said, 'Well, we'll run the house together now.' I got up and left the room when I heard her say that. When I left she was still sitting on the edge of the bed."

He said he had seen the nurse kiss his father several times in the days following Mrs. Bailey's death.

The Love Letters.

When young Bailey left the stand, the letters were introduced as evidence. The letters showed an intensity of feeling on the part of the young woman toward the rector. One of the love notes closed with:

"I kissed your pillow where you will sleep tonight and truly hope that you will sleep. I was happy in the thought you wanted me here and considered me 'one of you' and now that I am alone again I am a little lonesome like, but it can't be helped, can it? You heard this little verse:

"All to myself I think of you,
Think of the things we used to do—
Think of the things we used to say—
Sometimes I smile and sometimes I sigh,
But I keep each golden while
All to myself."

Another letter, written after she had left the Bailey home, stated:

"I am not ashamed that I love you. I'm proud that I do and proud to feel I always shall. I'm sorry that things have come about as they have, but as I look it all over squarely, I feel you were as much to blame as I. You can never take from me the love that I have for you."

"I shall continue to work here as long as I am able and will go on as though you were not even in this town, but all the time I'll be loving you just the same, and in my heart and mind I'll be doing the things for you I'd love to, but which you are denying me."

A Revised Report.

"I will not try to see you or bother you in any way. You will know where I am and when you want me for anything you can reach me."

The break in the accused woman's favor came in the next and final day when Dr. W. H. Bailey, Oklahoma City chemist, submitted a revised report of his autopsy on the body of Mary Jane, which stated that in his opinion there had not been sufficient poison in the girl's stomach to cause her death.

The spectators in the courtroom listened breathlessly to the chemist's testimony. They occupied every available seat, sat on the floor, filled the aisles. When the last witness had been heard and Judge Fogelson announced that he would take the charge of murder under advisement and announce his decision on the following day, the crowd voiced its impatience.

"Turn her loose now!" came shouts from all parts of the hall.

The decision of the court brought almost for the first time during the hearing, a rare smile to the woman's face. The crowd applauded and shouted and stamped its feet in approval, ignoring the calls of the bailiffs for order. It was their way, perhaps, of making amends for the bitterness they had previously shown toward the woman.

It was a complete reversal on the part of the crowd, for they had previously been crying for the woman's death. The chain of suspicious circumstances had convinced the people of Enid that Miss Atkinson had killed wood was a delightful experience.

Pages From My Life

Continued from Page 5.

It is impossible, in so short a space, to do justice to so great and interesting a country as America. Some day, I hope to devote an entire book to the United States. But before taking leave of my readers for the present, I will relate one more experience—my visit to Sing-Sing prison on a certain Christmas day.

SING-SING.

I happened to be in New York as Christmas was approaching and remembered that once in Moscow, during the revolution, I had sung for the inmates of a Russian prison. They were chiefly political offenders, not criminals. I remembered that my songs had seemed to bring them special joy. Having heard a great deal about the famous American prison at Ossining, I wondered if I might not be permitted to celebrate the day in a similar fashion. Learning of my desire, the warden offered me this opportunity.

Great oppression seized upon me as we came in sight of the grim, forbidding pile of stone beside the sullen river. As I stepped inside the outer office, I felt an ominous atmosphere. Suppose I myself were facing confinement? What if my personal liberty were to be snatched from me? In those 15 or 20 minutes before the concert began, in imagination, I went through all the feelings of one confronted with life imprisonment!

At last the heavy iron gateway at the entrance to the cell-block was locked behind me and I was escorted to the great hall where I was to sing.

I looked at the sea of faces before me. Alas, that there should be so much evil in the world! How I pitied those who were paying the penalty for their own acts!

Never have I tried harder to give my best. My audience was wonderfully responsive and their applause touched me unspeakably. At the end of the program I spoke to the prisoners. I told them that Christ's ideal was forgiveness; that outside those huge, dark walls were warm hearts beating for all those who had lost their liberty and that I felt that all of us, good and bad would, one day, find and embrace each other in green fields, beneath a shining sun!

When the prisoners had left the hall, I was invited to make a tour of inspection.

In the center of a small and humble room there is a common, well-worn arm-chair. It is here, in this room, that individuals, profoundly guilty of crime or, perhaps the victims of tragic misjudgment, feel, for the last time in their lives the solid comfort of such a chair—SILENCE!

I can well imagine how difficult it ed under the impetus of her reckless love for the rector. But now the case of the state had practically evaporated into thin air.

On the following day, September 30, Mary Atkinson was freed.

So the case ends, as so many so-called poison cases do, in official vindication, leaving in its wake those widening ripples of gossip which even justice cannot halt. The judgment of justice is that Mary Jane Bailey died a natural death and that Mary Atkinson was a victim of cruel circumstances, circumstances which will continue to try her soul as long as there is a person in Enid to whisper about her.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

My Lady Far Away

Continued from Page 9.

held most sacred that she would instantly, and without question, place herself beyond reach of insult or danger, should he die suddenly. And she would do it.

If darkness had not intervened—if she had not been obliged to wait for daylight, in order to find the flowers—the tragedy would, without doubt, now have been over.

It was a question whether he could or could not, even yet, be in time. She was a long way off. She had not seen him, and if she did—there was nothing in the sight to give her pause. A civilized girl might have argued that there was no need for self-slaughter, since the reason for that fearful expedient no longer existed. She was not alone, unprotected. But Hugh judged Stella Antares well when he guessed that she would not be capable of questioning her father's half-comprehended decree. He had asked, she had solemnly promised; the occasion had arisen. That was all.

Of how things might have gone if he had found any chance to speak to her and tell her that he held her in truest love and reverence, instead of the scorn that she feared, this was not the time to think. Only the actual mattered. And the actual was Stella out there on the beach, facing the risen sun, and holding in her fair young hands the flowers that meant death.

(Copyright, 1927, for The Constitution.)

Continued in Next Week's Magazine

is for a strong, vigorous man, lately emerged the victor from a struggle with his peers in strength, to maintain this silence, in the last moment before death. How hard to obey the sign posted at the entrance to this room—"SILENCE!"

(THE END.)

(Copyright, 1927, in U. S., Great Britain and all other countries by North American Newspaper Alliance. All rights reserved. Reproduction prohibited.)

LIQUOR or DRUG HABIT
Cured Forever or No Pay
Full treatment sent on trial. Can be given secretly in privacy of home. Guaranteed to banish forever all desire for whiskey, gin, wine, home brew, moonshine, opium, morphine, heroin, paregoric and laudanum. Costs $2.00 if cured, nothing if fails. Save him from Poison.
STANDARD LABORATORIES
Station N-92 Baltimore, Md.

Life's Secrets!

Amazing book, "Life's Secrets," tells you the things you want to know about sex matters, straight from the shoulder. Gives advice to newly married. Explains anatomy of reproductive organs, impotence, laws of sex life, mistakes to avoid, disease, pregnancy, etc. Contains startling sections: 1—Science of Eugenics, 2—Love, 3—Marriage, 4—Child-birth, 5—Family Life, 6—Sexual Science, 7—Diseases and Disorders, 8—Health and Hygiene, 9—Story of Life, in all, 10 chapters, 77 illustrations, 512 pages. Over a million copies sold. Will you examine at our risk? Mailed in a plain wrapper.

Send No Money
Write for your copy today. Don't send a cent. Pay postman only $1.00, plus postage, on arrival. Money refunded if not satisfactory.

FRANKLIN PUBLISHING CO.
Dept. 9170, 830 N. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

TOBACCO

Or Snuff Habit Cured Or No Pay
Superba Tobacco Remedy destroys all craving for Cigarettes, Cigars, Pipe, Chewing or Snuff. Original and only remedy of its kind. Used by over 500,000 Men and Women. Perfectly harmless. Full treatment sent on trial. Costs $1.50 if it cures. Costs nothing if it fails. Write today for complete treatment.
SUPERBA CO. N98, BALTIMORE, MD.

30 DAY TRIAL ONLY $1.99
High Grade Sterling Malted Coffee. Corn, Tripe, Beans, Jamocha, Apples, Glaze Cakes, Seed Cakes, Pine Apples, Corn and Beans. Send No Money. Pay Postman $1.99 and postage. Use 30 Days. If not satisfied, return in good condition and purchase price will be refunded. STERLING CO. N98-194 BALTIMORE, MD.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S

Young Folks Section

SPORTS—GAMES—PUZZLES—RIDDLES

THE PUZZLE CORNER

Christmas! The greatest day in the year is here again, and Santa Claus is making everybody happy. This puzzle is made in the form of his sacks of toys, and some of them, you notice, are peeping out. Some of them have fallen down into the puzzle, too, where you must find them.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

The down.

Horizontal.

1. Gifts for girls.
6. Gifts for young "Babe Ruth's."
9. When there was no Christmas.
10. What Santa wears.
11. Exhibit.
13. Yes.
14. A careless examination (slang).
15. Parcel of land.
16. A fruit.
17. Gift that builds muscle.
22. Christmas symbols.
2. Kind of poetry.
3. Meadow.
4. Mother.
5. Boy's nickname.
6. A boy's vehicle.
7. Kind of acid.
8. A vehicle operated with the foot.
9. Noise of a lamb.
11. Unhappy.
12. Sadness.
18. Greek letter.
19. To be sorry.
20. Sick.
21. Printer's measure.

CAN YOU GUESS THESE CHRISTMAS WORDS?

THE SINGER OF SONGS PASSES BY

By Ralph O. Bradford

The Singer of Songs flung his scarf to the breeze,
While a cold moon shone warily down;
The Singer of Songs brought a glad Christmas lay
To the closed, shuttered homes of the town.
There was cheer in his voice; there was warmth in his smile
As he caroled of Christmas Day bright;
But the good folk and true would have nothing to do
With the music and voice in the night.

'Twas a glad Christmas Eve to the Singer of Songs,
As he caroled past window and door;
Though the wreaths and the candles that showed here and there
Were as cold as the snow on the moor.
The warmth that he knew was behind the grey walls
Ne'er escaped to his feeling or ken;
While his Christmas song gay bent its heavenward way,
"Peace on Earth, and Good Cheer to All Men."

A tiny tot stirred in its sleep and smiled on;
'Twas the music....the song was unheard.
A wanderer, who, like the singer, was barred
Paused to catch each hope-heartening word
The Singer of Songs knew the few that he reached,
Knew the way that each heart-path must go,
And to him fell the joy of the music-filled deed
Making Christmas Eve real here below.

The edge of the town. Here the Singer of Songs
Stole a glance at the one winding street;
The gray light was gone—the cold—that before
Had stifled the passage of feet.
From each window and doorway the light fairly streamed,
And hearth-warmth the wanderer beguiled;
Christmas Eve came at last to the town and he had passed—
.... And the Singer of Songs merely smiled.

AROUND the WORLD.

THE WATER CARRIER.

To most of us water is plentiful and cheap and it can be obtained with little effort by merely turning the faucet at home, but it is not so in many parts of the world. In Egypt, parts of southern Europe, Arabia, Africa, some of South America and in parts of Mexico, water is scarce and must be purchased, like meats and groceries, from those who have it to sell.

In these arid regions, water is brought to you, not by means of underground pipes that enter your home but by men and women who carry it for sale in huge earthen containers. In many cases these containers are wrapped in woolen cloth to keep the water cool; in all cases it must be quite a hot job to march about the torrid, shadeless streets of a town with several hundred pounds of water hanging on the back.

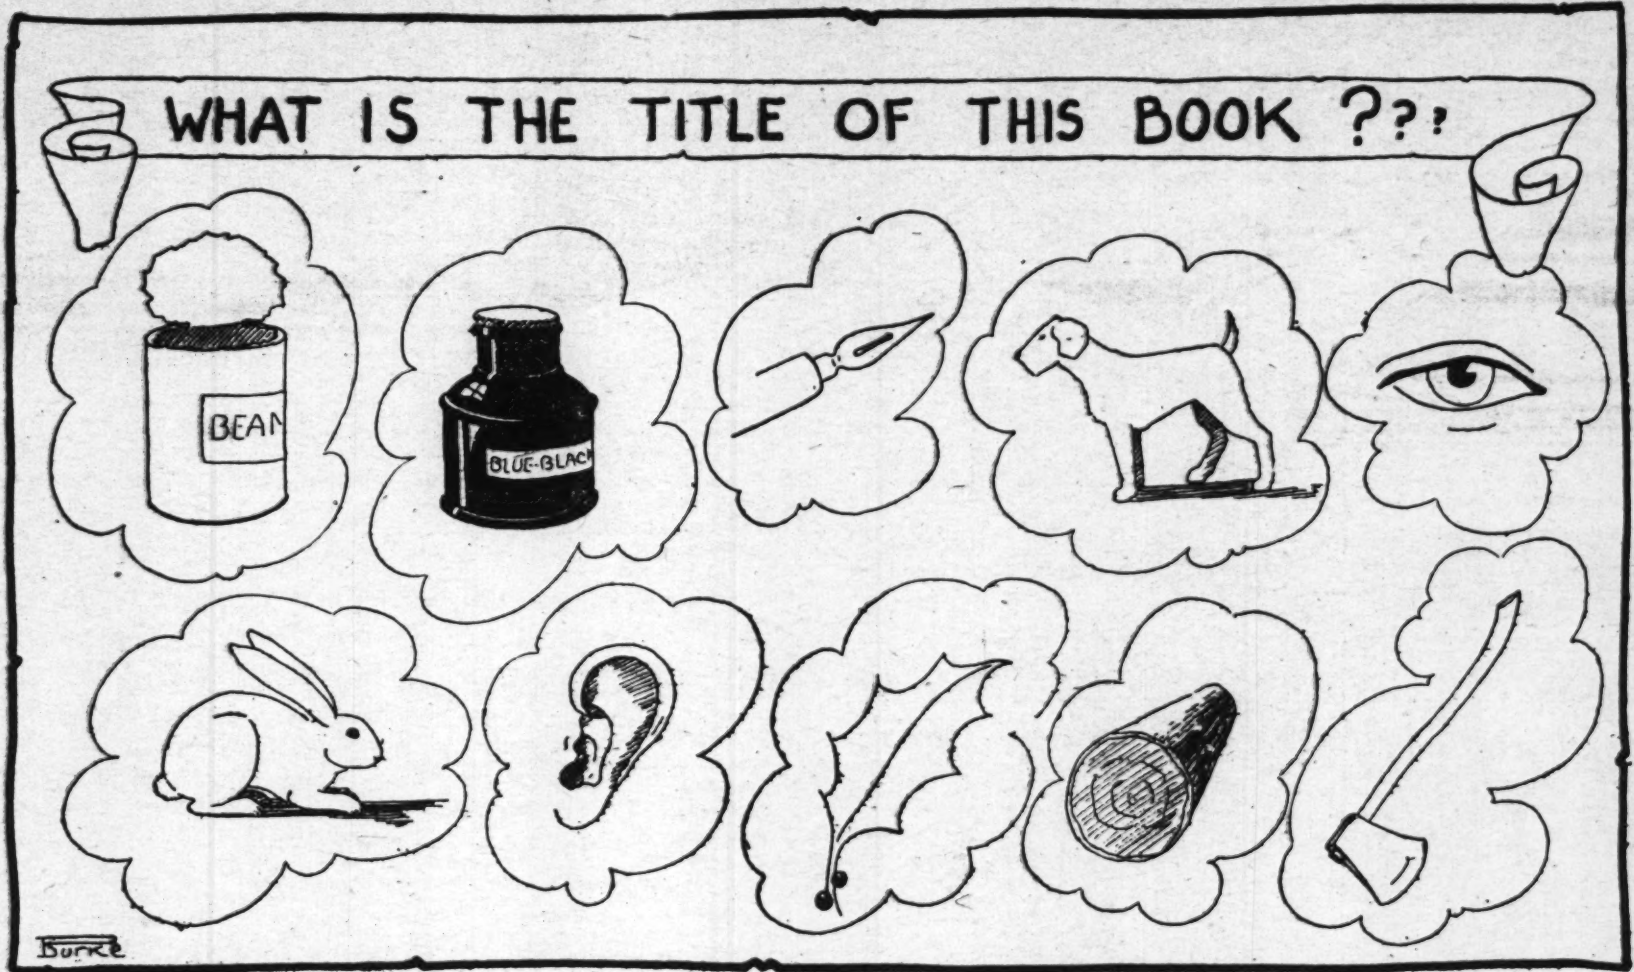

The above picture is that of a water carrier in Mexico.
—The Globe Trotter.

POSSERS!

Some of these are pretty easy; some are rather difficult. Be sure you don't stumble on any of the easy ones, or your average won't be very good for the set!

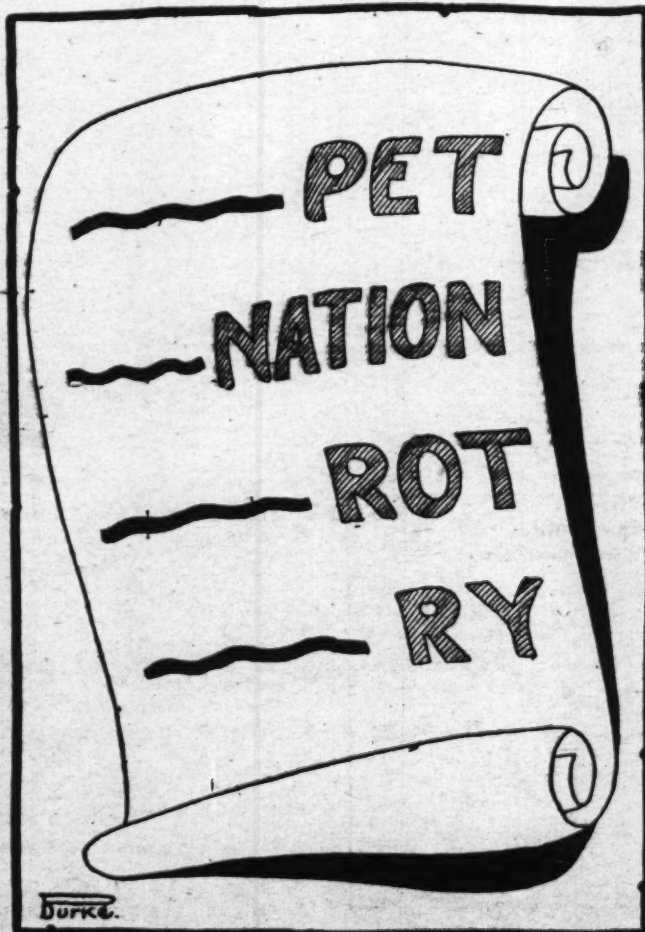

1. In what states are the following cities of the United States: Roanoke, Sioux City, South Bend, Oakland, Dallas, Pensacola, Elmira, Bangor and Phoenix?
2. What is another name for the north star?
3. Who are the Boers?
4. From what islands do ukeleles come?
5. What great scientist discovered a treatment for rabies?
6. What is the epidermis?
7. In what industry is the linotype machine used?
8. How many men does an army corporal command?

PUZZLERS

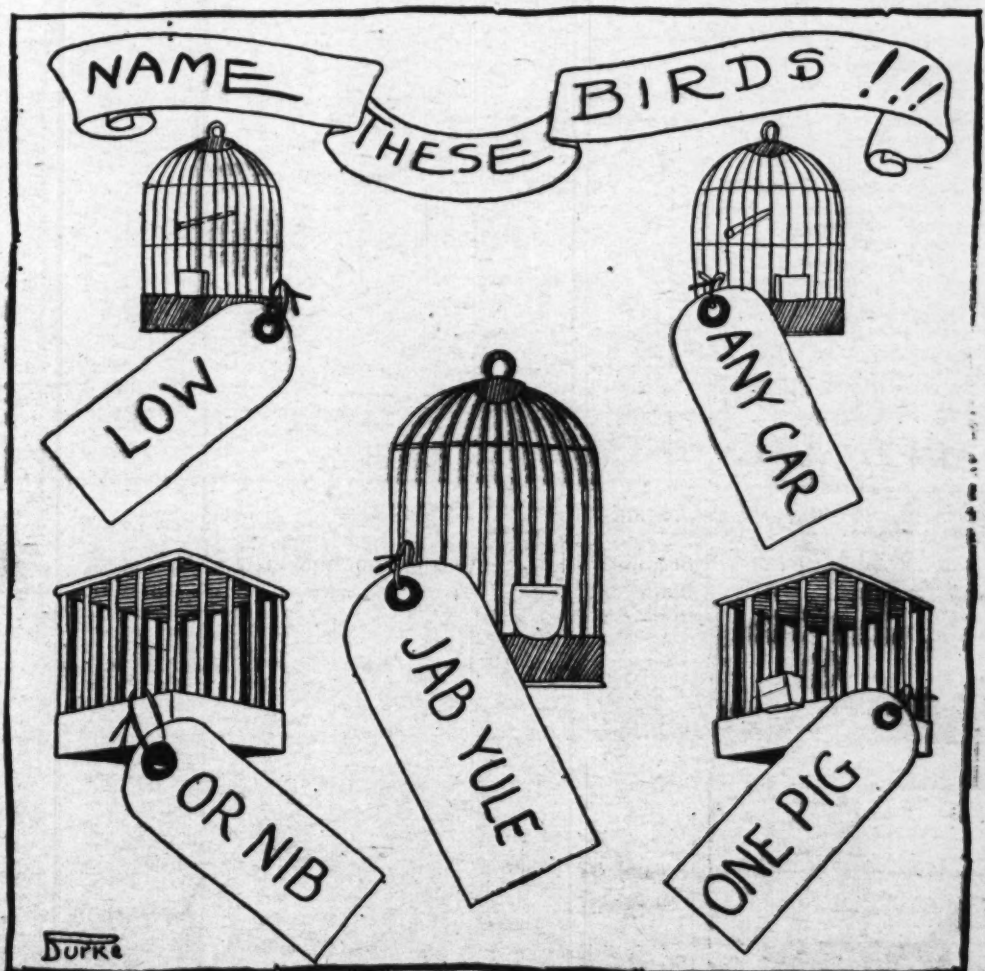

the initials letters of each of the objects pictured will spell the name of a famous story. See page 3.

A Missing Word

A word of three letters, when added to each group of letters above, will spell (1) something to walk on; (2) a flower; (3) a vegetable; (4) to bear a burden.

DO YOU KNOW BIRDS?

Each of the bird cages is labeled with the name of a bird, but the letters have become mixed. Can you straighten them out so that there will be the name of a bird on each cage? Compare your answers with those on page 3.

The BOYS and GIRLS PAGE

The Ghost at Faversham's

A Story of Mystery and Hidden Treasure
BY W. BOYCE MORGAN

SYNOPSIS

Clay Martin is remaining at Grayson academy during the Christmas holidays and working at the village postoffice because of his father's financial difficulties. Lloyd Faversham, another student spending the holidays there, receives a special delivery letter from his guardian and tells Clay about it. Lloyd and his twin sister are the only heirs of a rich grandfather who has recently died and, according to the will, his former secretary, James Fabian, is made the guardian of Lloyd and Dot. Fabian now informs Lloyd that the estate left by their grandfather is very small, and advises them to leave school. Believing that Fabian is tricking him, Lloyd persuades Clay to accompany him on a trip of investigation to the old home of Lloyd's grandfather at Kentville. After wiring Dot that they are going, they make an all-day trip and on their arrival are told that the old house is said to be haunted. They go to it, finding nothing during their search, and go to sleep. Suddenly they are awakened by a soft knocking.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

Like a flash the two boys were out of bed, pulling on their shoes.

Lloyd. "Who or what can it be?"

They reached the bottom of the stairs.

"I'll open the door," suggested Clay. "You keep behind me and to one side, so whoever it is can't see you. That way we won't be taken by surprise."

Slowly, carefully, he placed his hand on the knob, and gave it a quick turn. There was a stifled scream in his very face, and in the dim light he saw, standing just outside the door, the figure of a girl!

"Gosh!" he breathed, half in relief and half in amazement. Then suddenly there was a cry of "Dot!" behind him, and Lloyd rushed past, grasping the arm of his frightened sister and pulling her into the house.

"What in the world ever made you come up here by yourself, Dot?" cried Lloyd, as they entered the living room and lit the light. Clay saw that Dot was a very pretty girl, though just Then Lloyd explained about their arrival, and how they had spent the evening in fruitless searching of the many rooms. Finally he said, "But what was it you came all the way here to tell me, Dot?"

"Well," began the girl, "I think as you do, that Mr. Fabian is stealing our money for himself. When you wired that you were coming up here to see what you could find, I remembered something that happened just before they took grandfather to the sanitarium, and I thought it might help you."

"What is it?" asked Lloyd.

"I guess I never told you, and you were away when it happened, but one day I was up in his room with grandfather and he got to talking to me. He was pretty childish by then, but his mind seemed very clear that day. He told me he had just made a new will, leaving everything to us, and then he smiled mischievously and said, 'And Dot, if you ever need some money real bad, just—' He got just that far when Mr. Fabian came into the room, and he stopped immediately, and looked at Mr. Fabian suspiciously."

"I didn't think he liked Fabian," broke in Lloyd. "I don't see why he made him our guardian."

"Grandfather was pointing at the other side of the room as he talked to me," went on Dot, "and I've been wondering if he can't have some money hidden up there."

"We went over every inch of the room," said Clay, "but by George, it sounds as though you might be right."

"Let's go up and have another look," cried Lloyd. "This might lead to something. Maybe he had a hiding place up there that Fabian didn't know about."

At once they were rushing upstairs, their footsteps echoing and reechoing through the silent house. When they reached the room, Dot held the lamp and the boys hurried at once to the wall opposite the bed, toward which she said her grandfather had pointed.

With excited comments they tapped every inch of the wall, lifted off the pictures, felt for cracks at the baseboard, but all to no avail. Then when they were almost discouraged, Dot suggested the floor. At once they were on hands and knees. Clay, tapping near the wall, suddenly uttered a cry.

"Here it is!" he exclaimed. "A loose board."

They lifted it out, and there, lying in a little sunken hiding place, they saw a steel strong box. In a moment they had it out and had pried open the lid.

"Bonds!" exclaimed Lloyd. "We've found them! And what's this?" Hastily he unfolded a paper. "Why, it's grandfather's will."

By the light of the lamp they read the document. It was the last will and testament of their grandfather, leaving all of his possessions to Dot and Lloyd. But the thing that brought low exclamations from them was the fact that it made Henry Spencer, a banker in Kentville, executor of the estate and guardian of the two heirs.

"The will that Fabian had must be a fake!" cried Lloyd. Suddenly Clay lifted his head.

"What was that?" he said quietly.

Then chills of terror chased up and down three spines as there came from somewhere a low, ghostly moan.

(To Be Continued Next Week.)

EDITORIAL

A REAL HOLY-DAY

What is your idea of the meaning of the word "holiday"? Isn't it a day when people don't work or go to school and when you can have a good time? In other words, a sort of one-day vacation?

Well, most holidays are like that. They commemorate some particular occasion, of course, and there are often speeches and such things that fit the occasion. But to most people they are merely days of rest and recreation.

Yet the word holiday comes from the two words "holy" and "day," and really means a holy day, or a day set aside as sacred to God. Most holidays have got far away from this meaning, but Christmas is an exception.

Christmas is a real "holy day," and as such its celebration should be one of reverence, of unselfishness, and of happiness rather than merely one of feasting and enjoyment. Don't forget this side of Christmas.

VERY!

"What steps would you take if you saw a dangerous lion?"
"Long ones."

KNOCKED FOR A GOAL

"How do so many boys get killed in football games?"
"They kick off."

Something to Do

DALE R. VAN HORN

LANTERN PARTY FAVORS.

Distinctive lanterns for the unusual party always add an atmosphere that is highly valuable. Lanterns of the kind shown are easily made from various-shaped tin cans usually obtainable anywhere. If you can get round, oblong square and rectangular cans, so much the better.

As a rule, the cans should be cut to resemble the face of a grotesque person. These openings can be easily made with a can opener or tin snips, the rough edges being flattened down again with hammer and iron rod. Then over the inside, red, yellow, blue or other colored paper can be pasted before the candle is inserted. You can set the candle in hot wax in the bottom, or punch a hole through the bottom for it. The top of the candle should not be much more than half way between top and bottom. The larger the candle the slower it will burn.

These cans, lighted and hung about the party room will perhaps give just that much-to-be-desired effect. The outsides can be painted or lacquered so they will be equally attractive whether lit or dark. To make sure that the tops will not come off, if they are suspended, dent the edges slightly. Rings, soldered onto the tops, are convenient for attaching the supporting cords. Other lanterns can be set upon the mantelpiece and tables.

WHAT IS THE TITLE OF THIS BOOK?

Cinderella.

A MISSING WORD.

Car.

NAME THESE BIRDS.

Owl, Robin, Bluejay, Canary, Pigeon.

ANSWERS TO PUZZLES.

1. The words in the cross-word puzzle are: Horizontal—1, dolls; 6, baseballs; 9, S. C.; 10, fur; 11, show; 13, ay; 14, O. 15, acre; 16, date; 17, exercise; 22, bells. Vertical—2, ode; 3, leaf; 4, ma; 5, Al; 6, bicycle; 7, boracic; 8, scooter; 9, bass; 11, sad; 12, woe; 13, Xi; 19, rue; 20, ill; 21, em.

ANSWERS TO POSERS.

1. Virginia, Iowa, Indiana, California, Texas, Florida, New York, Maine, Montana and Arizona. 2. Polaroid. 3. People of Dutch descent in South Africa. 4. The Hawaiian Islands. 5. Pasteur. 6. The outer layer of the skin. 7. Printing. 8. He is leader of a squad of eight men, himself included.

"They saw a steel strong box."

"What do you suppose it is?" demanded Lloyd, in a voice that trembled.

"It might be someone at the door," said Clay hoarsely, "and then again—it might not! But we've got to find out."

"I can find my way in the dark," said Lloyd. "Let's not light the lamp until we see what it is."

"Fine," agreed Clay. "Come on."

With bated breath and hearts that pounded, the tiptoed from the room and into the long, high-ceiling hall. Then they started down the stairs, stumbling along as quietly as they could in the pitchy darkness. Again they heard the rapping.

"It's at the front door!" exclaimed now she was almost overcome with fright and fatigue.

"I got your telegram this morning," she explained, after she had greeted Lloyd and met Clay. "I decided to come up here at once, because there were some things I had to tell you, Lloyd. I rode all day, and got into Kentville at 10:30. There was no cab there, so I walked out here."

"You walked?" the two boys cried together.

"Yes." And when I got here and found the house dark, I was frightened silly."

"You weren't any more frightened than we were," said Clay with a smile. "This place is supposed to be haunted."

THE ADVENTURES OF PETER PEN

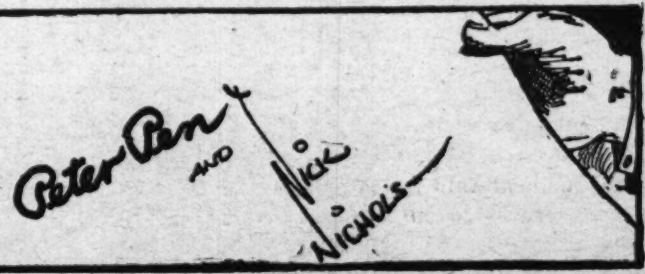

BY NICK NICHOLS

IT'S ALL READY, PETE. COME OVER HERE AND HELP ME HOLD IT UP FOR THE READERS TO SEE.

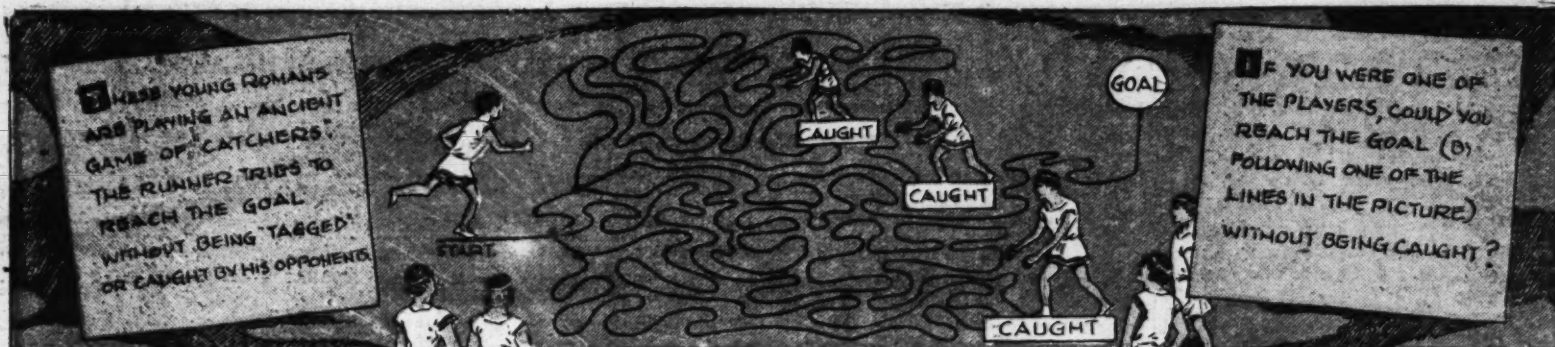

A Merry Christmas to you all.

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION'S

YOUNG FOLKS SECTION

Features of All Kinds for Boys and Girls

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Chapter 59—Pyrrhus and His Elephants.

By J. CARROLL MANSFIELD

DURING THE PERIOD 338-290 B.C., THE ROMANS BY HARD FIGHTING CONQUERED THE WARLIKE NATIONS OF CENTRAL ITALY, AND EXTENDED THE DOMINION OF ROME SOUTHWARD UNTIL THEY CAME IN CONTACT WITH THE GREEK CITY-COLONIES WHICH FOR CENTURIES HAD HELD THE SOUTHERN SHORES OF ITALY.

ONE BY ONE THESE GREEK CITIES WERE ABSORBED BY ROME UNTIL ONLY TARENTUM, THE LARGEST CITY, RETAINED ITS INDEPENDENCE. ONE DAY A SMALL FLEET OF ROMAN GALLEYS APPROACHED THE HARBOR OF TARENTUM IN VIOLATION OF AN EXISTING TREATY. ANGERED BY THIS ENCRoACHMENT, THE TARENTINES MANEUVERED THEIR BOATS AND DROVE THE INTRUDERS FROM THEIR WATERS.

WHEN A ROMAN ENVOY WAS SENT TO TARENTUM TO DEMAND SATISFACTION FOR THIS ATTACK, THE TARENTINES PELTED HIM WITH MUD. THE ENVOY WARNED HIS ASSAILANTS THAT AN INSULT TO HIM WAS AN INSULT TO ROME. WHEN THE ROMAN SENATE LEARNED OF THIS OUTRAGE IT PROMPTLY DECLARED WAR ON TARENTUM.

THE TARENTINES SENT MESSENGERS TO GREECE APPEALING FOR HELP. PYRRHUS, KING OF EPIRUS, A BRILLIANT MILITARY LEADER, HAD DREAMS OF WINNING A GREAT GREEK EMPIRE IN THE WEST, AND HE READILY AGREED TO AID THE TARENTINES AGAINST THE ROMANS.

IN 280 B.C. PYRRHUS LANDED IN ITALY, BRINGING WITH HIM A LARGE ARMY AND—SOMETHING THE ROMANS HAD NEVER SEEN—WAR ELEPHANTS. THE ROMANS, MARCHING ON TARENTUM, ENCOUNTERED THE GREEKS NEAR THE CITY OF HERACLEA.

THE GREEK ARMY ADVANCED TO THE ATTACK BEHIND THE WAR ELEPHANTS, EACH OF WHICH BORE A WOODEN TOWER FILLED WITH ARCHERS UPON ITS BACK. THE ROMANS WERE TERRIFIED BY THE APPEARANCE OF THESE GIGANTIC

CREATURES BUT, IN SPITE OF THEIR FEAR, FOUGHT HEROICALLY. TRUMPETING LOUDLY, THE ELEPHANTS CHARGED STRAIGHT THROUGH THE MASSES OF THE ROMAN LEGIONS AND FORCED THEM TO GIVE WAY.

PYRRHUS HAD WON THE FIRST BATTLE, BUT AT THE COST OF MANY OF HIS SOLDIERS. AS THE GREEK KING SURVIVED THE BLOODY FIELD HE IS SAID TO HAVE EXCLAIMED, 'ANOTHER SUCH VICTORY, AND I SHALL HAVE NO ARMY.'

STRUCK WITH ADMIRATION FOR THE FIGHTING SPIRIT OF THE ROMANS, PYRRHUS SENT ONE OF HIS OFFICERS TO ROME TO OFFER THEM AN HONORABLE PEACE. BUT THE SENATE REFUSED TO DISCUSS PEACE TERMS WHILE THE INVADER REMAINED IN ITALY.

FIGHTING WAS RESUMED. THE DECIDING BATTLE OF THE WAR WAS FOUGHT AT BENEVENTUM. THIS TIME THE ROMANS USED FLAMING ARROWS AGAINST THE ELEPHANTS AND THE HUGE BEASTS, MADDED WITH PAIN, TURNED AND STAMPEDED THROUGH THE RANKS OF THEIR OWN ARMY.

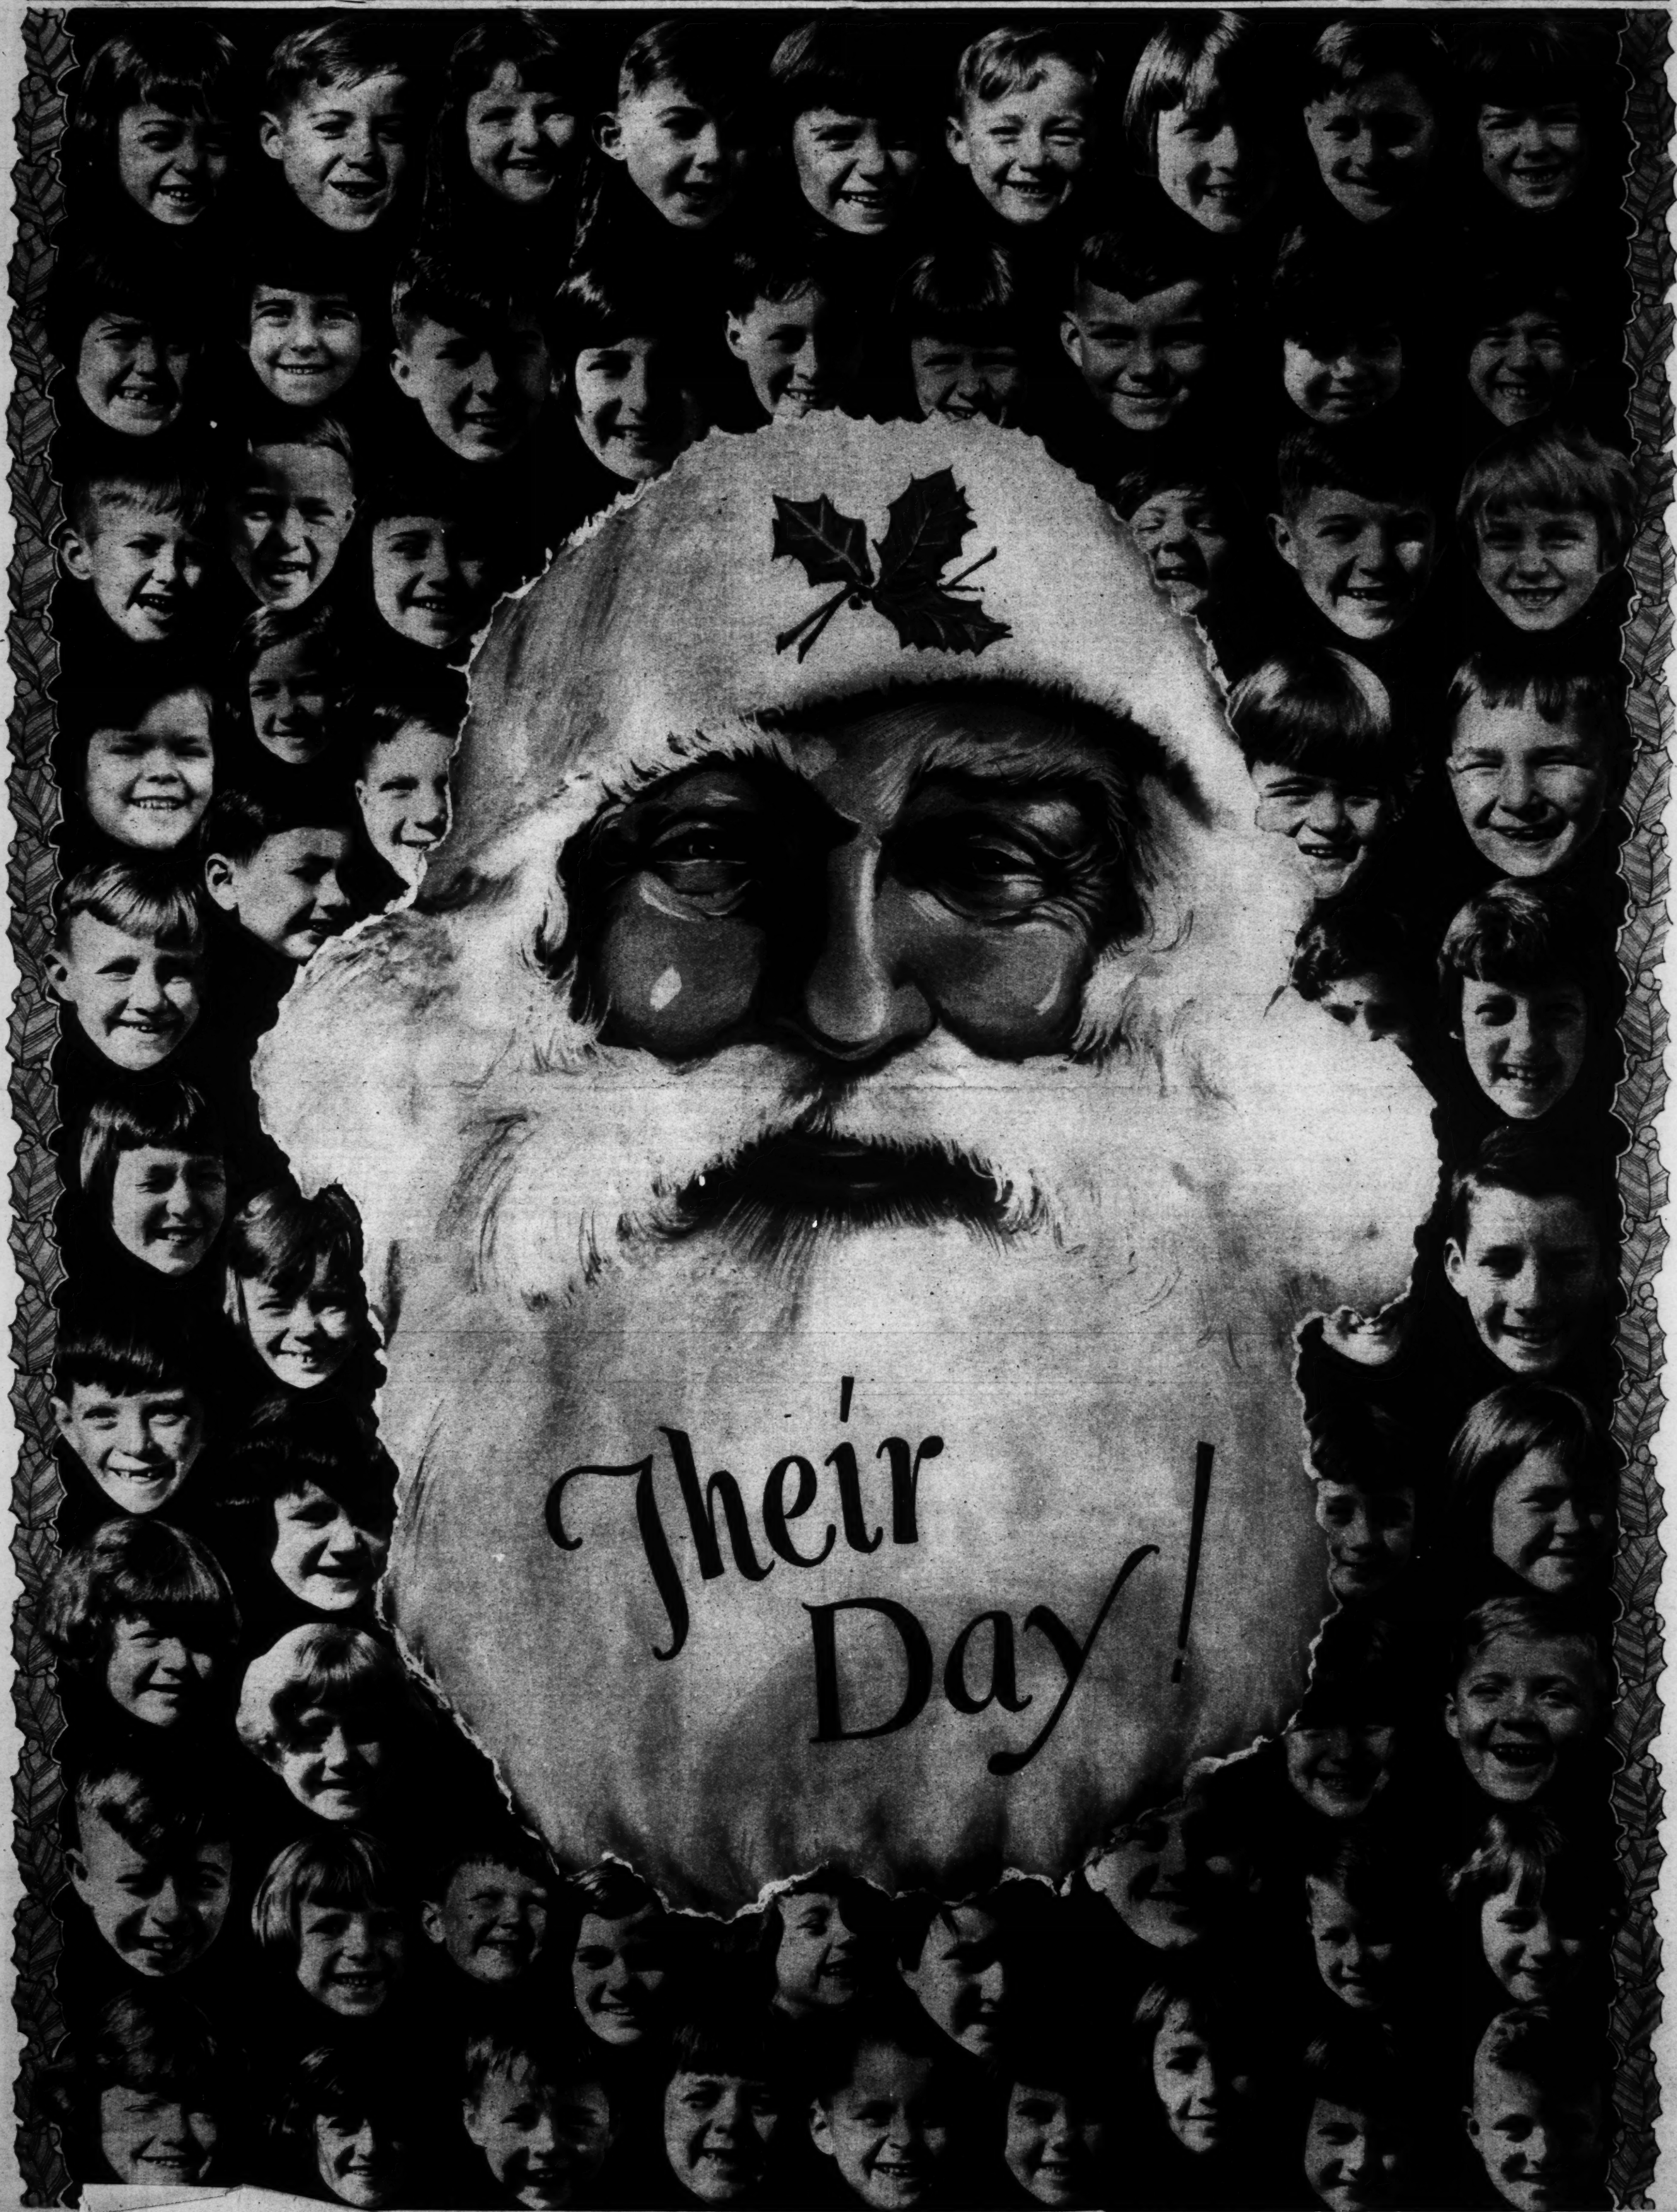

THE GREEK 'PHALANX' WAS CUT TO PIECES, AND THE TRIUMPHANT ROMANS DROVE THEIR FOES FROM THE FIELD. DEFEATED AND DISCOURAGED, PYRRHUS LED THE REMNANT OF HIS ARMY BACK TO GREECE, AND TARENTUM SOON FELL INTO THE HANDS OF THE VICTORS.

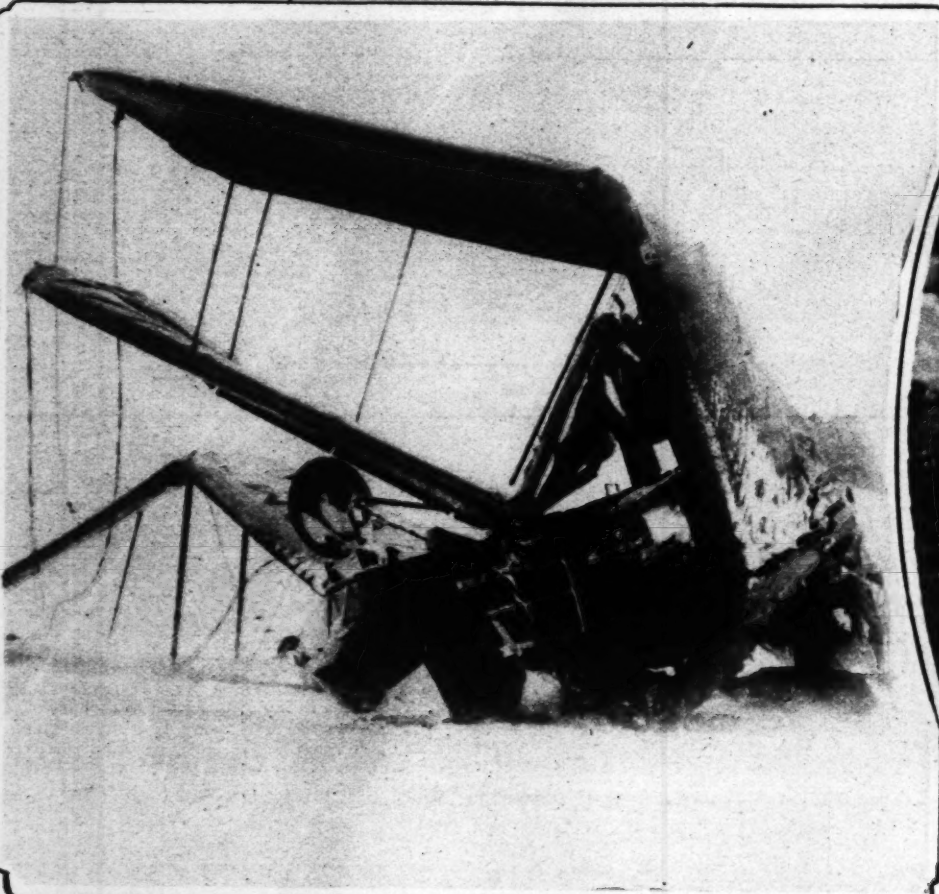

ROME WAS NOW MISTRESS OF ALL ITALY. NOT LONG AFTERWARD, WHILE STORMING THE CITY OF ARGOS IN GREECE, PYRRHUS WAS KILLED BY A TILE THROWN BY A WOMAN FROM A HOUSETOP.

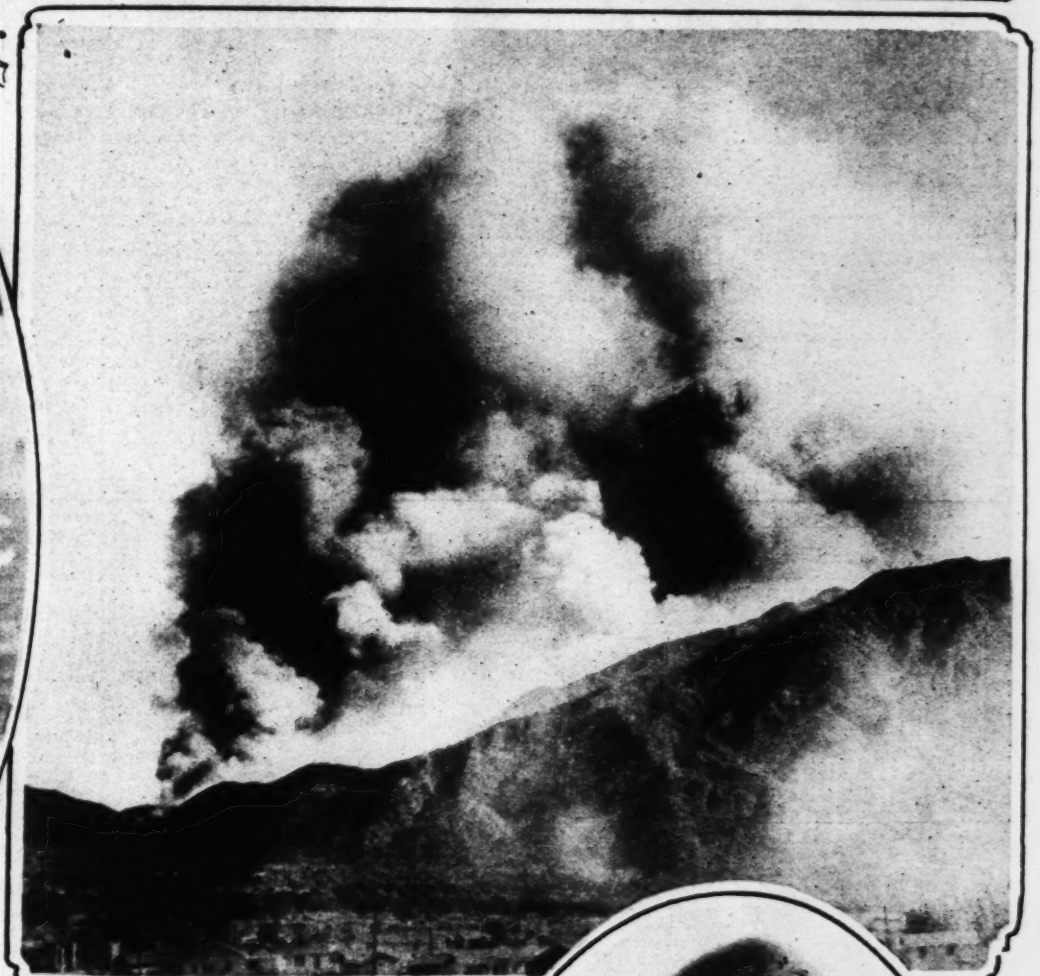

COULDN'T HAVE POSED BETTER IF THEY HAD REHEARSED IT—Anyone who has ever tried to get a mischievous pup to sit still long enough to have a good picture made will appreciate this photograph of Papa Setter, Mama Setter and their nine children.
(Underwood.)

"NATURE IN HER NAKEDNESS DEFEATS US EVERY TIME—" Remains of the pride of the army air service—the largest plane of its type, which was wrecked at Buffalo during the recent blizzard. The plane cost $30,000.
(Underwood)

IT TAKES A LOT TO THRILL THE YOUNGER GENERATION—Miss Eleanor Link, 16 years old, says she wrestles alligators "for a thrill"—and of course there is always the chance of becoming the "missing link."
(Underwood)

A MOUNTAIN ON FIRE! Five miles of Verdugo Ridge in California was recently swept by fire that destroyed over a hundred homes. The fire gave the mountain the appearance of a great volcano.
(Underwood)

WEDDED IN NATURE'S OWN CHAPEL—Under the great oaks on the estate of Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Richie, of Rabun Gap, Ga., their daughter, Ruth, was married to James Harold Carter, of Orlando, Fla. The photo shows the wedding party on the out-of-door altar.
(Hunnicut Studio)

NEW AMERICAN-DESIGNED WINTER COATS of cream-white light-weight wool, with collar and cuffs of genuine caracul. Novelty pockets are the decorative touches.
(Herbert.)

GOING UP! Col. B. D. Foulis recently made a brigadier general, and assistant chief of the army air corps. He rose from the ranks and won the distinguished service medal and the French Legion of Honor in the World war.
(Underwood)

TWO "ORIGINAL" AMERICANS IN CONGRESS—Two American Indians of congress are Representative W. W. Hastings (left), a member of the Cherokee tribe of Oklahoma, and Senator Charles E. Curtis (right), of Kansas, a member of the Kansas tribe. Both have been mentioned for places on the presidential ticket.

YOU MAY FLY, TOO—IF YOU WEAR THIS ON A WINDY DAY—The Lindbergh flight plane inspired this bonnet, which was one of the prize winners in the annual St. Catherine's day millinery contest in Paris.
(Herbert.)

"BELIEVE IT OR NOT"—This is an authentic photo of a fish jumping the falls at Dowieville, Cal.
(International)

RAPHAEL'S MASTERPIECE OF THE CHRIST CHILD—In keeping with its custom of presenting each year at Christmas a full-page gravure reproduction of famous pieces of religious art, The Constitution herewith presents Raphael's famous "Sistine Madonna" with the Infant Jesus.

DR. M. L. BRITTAIN, president of Georgia Tech, Atlanta, and a leading Kappa Alpha.

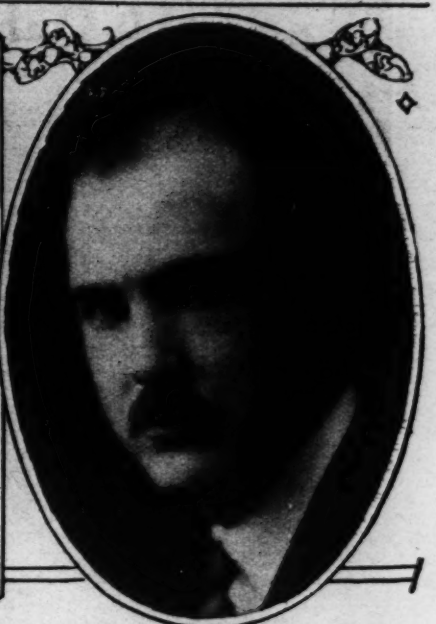

LAURENCE STALLINGS, Atlanta boy who is a Kappa Alpha and a famous figure in literature, being the author of "The Big Parade," "What Price Glory," and other successes.

Kappa Alpha Convention to Bring Celebrities Here

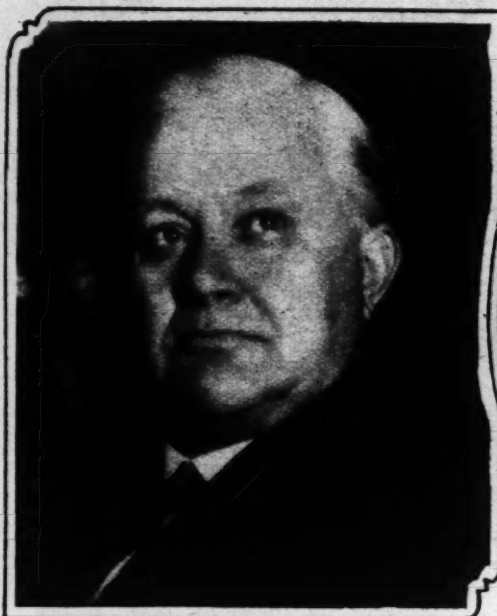

Prominent figures from all over the nation will assemble here December 29, 30 and 31 for the national convention of the Kappa Alpha fraternity. Sessions will be held at the Biltmore hotel. The accompanying photographs show a number of the most noted men who will be in attendance.

GOVERNOR BIBB GRAVES, of Alabama, who will attend the Kappa Alpha convention.

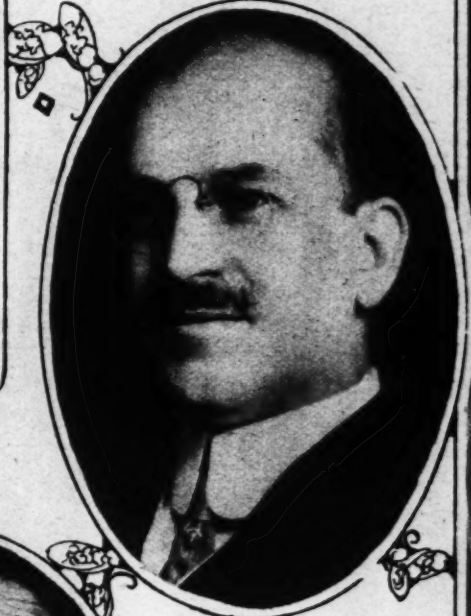

EDWARD P. HODGES, chief alumnus of Kappa Alpha, of Columbia, S. C.

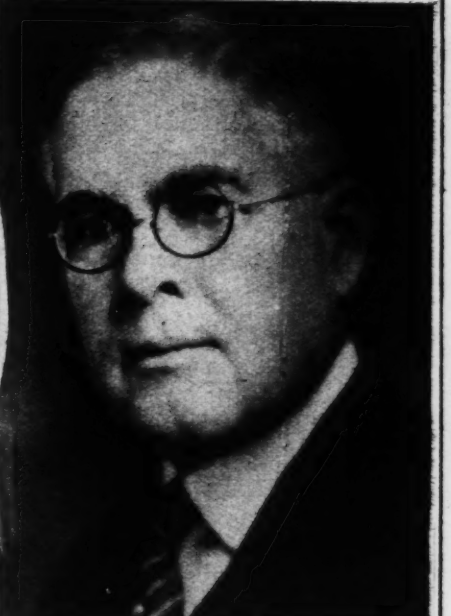

JUDGE JOHN S. CANDLER, of Atlanta, former knight commander of the Kappa Alpha order.

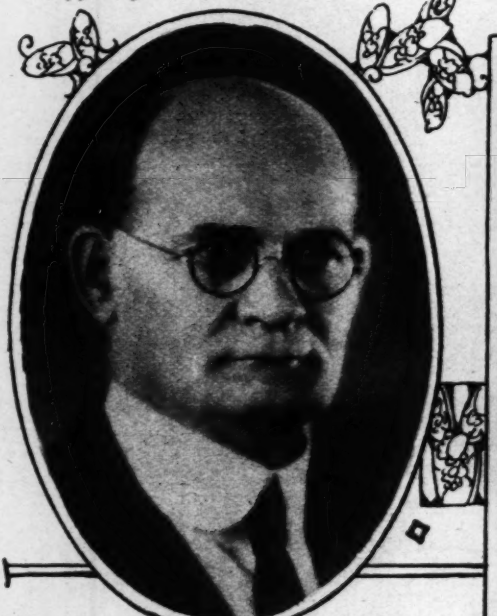

HENRY C. HEINZ, of Atlanta, international president of Kiwanis and president of the Atlanta alumni chapter of Kappa Alpha.

CLAUDE W. GIGNOUX, grand pursuer of Kappa Alpha, of St. Louis, Mo.

DR. A. A. MURPHREE, president of the University of Florida, another influential Kappa Alpha.

DR. H. W. COX, president of Emory university, Atlanta, and a prominent Kappa Alpha.

WILLIAM B. CRAWFORD, grand historian of Kappa Alpha and a leading attorney of Orlando, Fla.

MORRIS SHEPARD, United States senator from Texas and a leader in Kappa Alpha.

CHARLES HOWARD CANDLER, of Atlanta, president of the Epsilon alumni association of Kappa Alpha at Emory university.

Right—

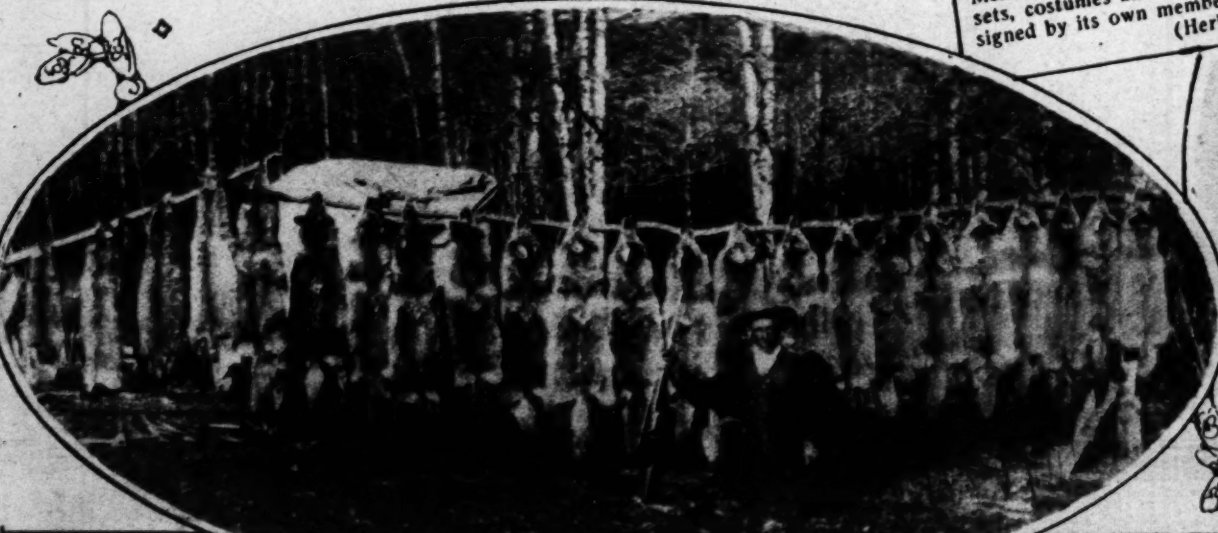

BISHOP H. J. MIKELL, Knight Commander

JUNIOR RED CROSS EXTENDS THE WOODEN SPOON—The organization has opened a cooperative cafeteria at Williams Street school similar to that conducted at the Inman Park school last year. Francine Harley, Jane Elizabeth McDonald, Frances Duke, Frances Langston, Helen Barker, Margaret Belter, Margaret Howerger, Mrs. George Harley, president Williams Street P. T. A.; Mrs. Louis J. Elsas, chairman, Junior Red Cross; Mrs. C. B. Dexter, executive secretary, Junior Red Cross; Mrs. Ed McDonald, vice president P. T. A. (Photo by George Cornett)

COLLEGIATE MOVIES—They may become the vogue under the leadership of the motion picture class of the University of Southern California. The class is producing its first picture, "The Melancholy Pierrot," with Melancholy Pierrot, sets, costumes and effects designed by its own members. (Herbert)

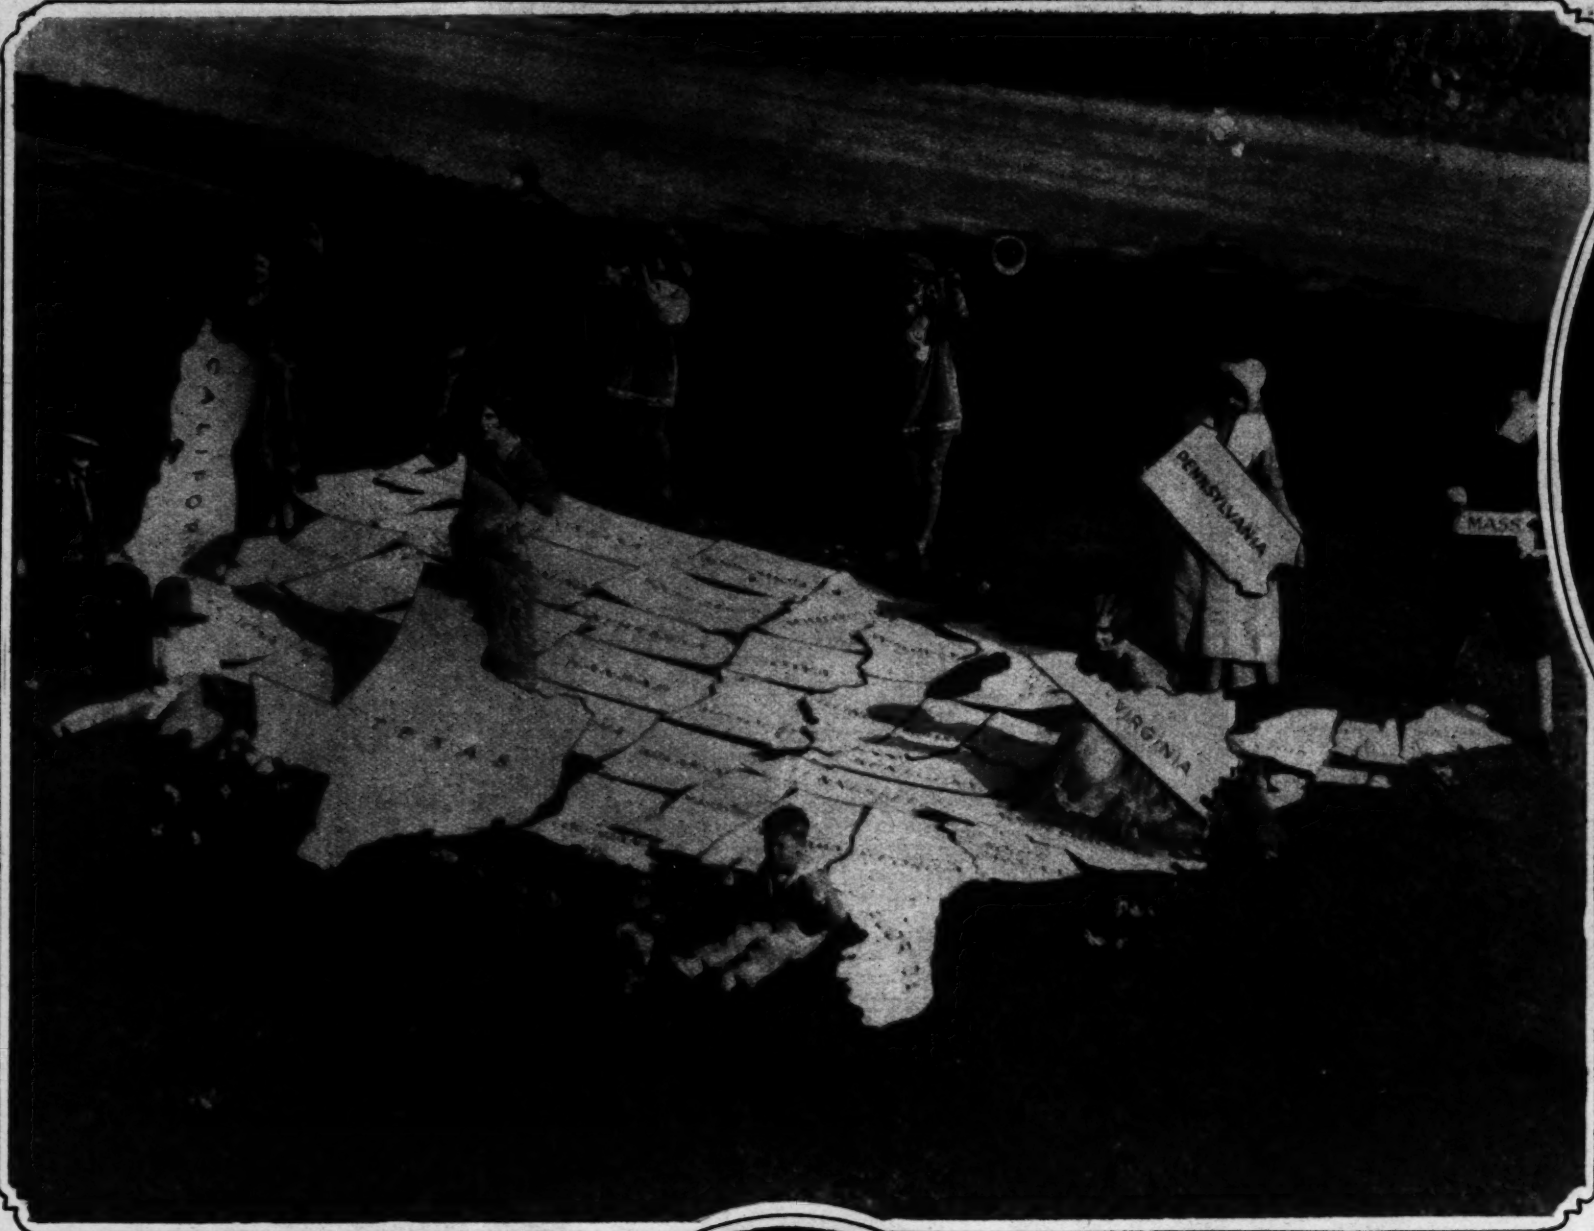

PELTS FOR PRIZES—Bud Dalrymple, government hunter in Wyoming, gets a bounty for the pelt of every coyote and bob cat he kills. That accounts for the size of his November "string" shown here. (Herbert)

JAPAN SENDS US ITS PRIZE DOLLIES—Ken Nakazawa, Japanese lecturer, exhibits a three-foot beauty—one of a shipment of 58 to be received by Mrs. Coolidge for American kiddies—to a California beauty. (Herbert)

"IS IT COLD UP THERE?" Durell Dean, smallest member of the Georgia Military Academy band, asked the tallest cop of the Washington, D. C., force when the G. M. A. band visited the capitol for the unveiling of the Alexander Stephens statue in the Hall of Fame. (Herbert)

GENERAL LEONARD WOOD'S SUCCESSOR
—Henry L. Stimson, eminent New York lawyer, has accepted the post of governor-general of the Philippines at the urgent request of President Coolidge. He is a former secretary of war and will carry out General Wood's policy. (Underwood)

MODERN AMAZON ON GUARD—A Polish woman soldier on duty in the city of Vilna, recently disputed between Poland and Lithuania. (Underwood)

SINGS IN MACON'S MILLION-DOLLAR AUDITORIUM—Clara Jacobo, artist of the San Carlo Opera company, which will appear for a week's program of opera in the Macon auditorium January 9 to 14.

OPERA STAR TO SHINE IN MACON—Myrna Sharlow, of the San Carlo Opera company, who will sing Marguerite in "Faust" in Macon during the week of January 9.

PUTTING THE U. S. ON THE MAP—When heralds of the Pasadena, Cal., tournament of roses sound their trumpets, pages representing various states of the Union will bring in their parts of this big picture-puzzle map. (Underwood)

HOUSEHOLD HINT—To keep your pet elephant clean, use a wire brush after a liberal application of the hose. This California pachyderm is luxuriating in a massage administered by a pretty girl. (Underwood)

YOU'VE WONDERED HOW—Well here's a squad of Santa Clauses learning chimney technique. They represented a California Salvation Army post. (Underwood)

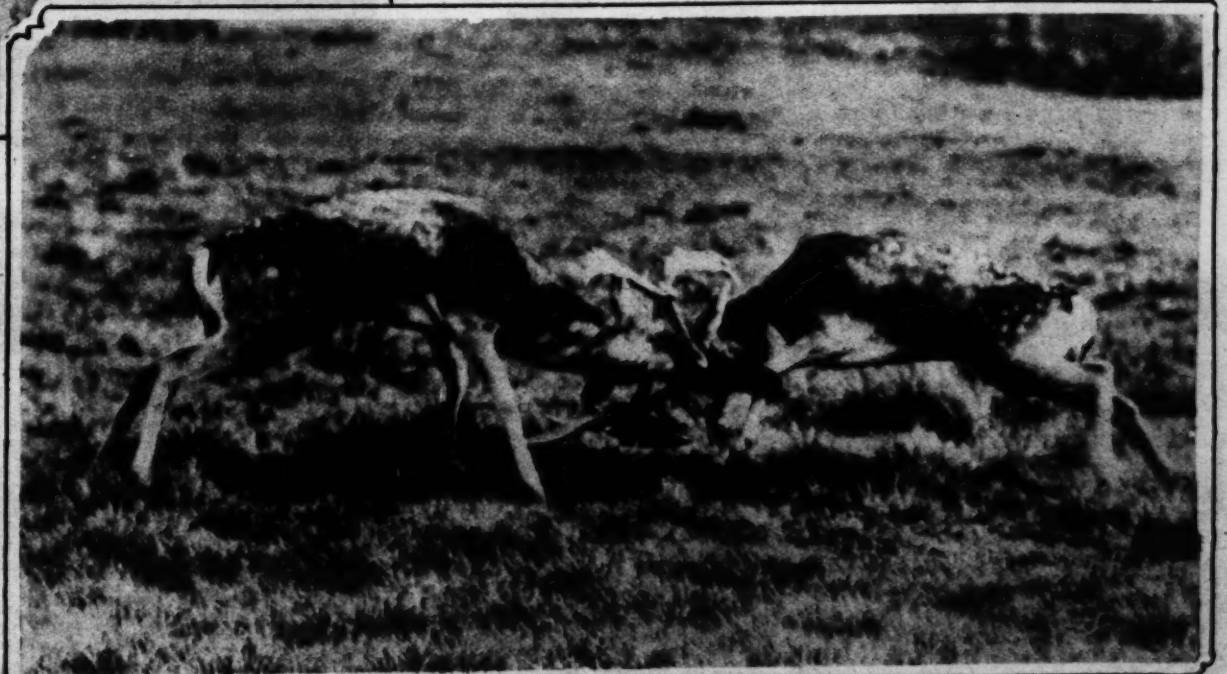

LIFE-SAVER OF THE SNOW-SHEETED ALPS—"Lion," the finest dog of the St. Bernard hospice, high up a pass between Switzerland and Italy, brings hundreds of travelers to the famous retreat, where hospitality awaits them. (International)

HOPE HOPES FOR VERDICT—The screen favorite, Hope Hampton, in court during her suit against Charles Dillingham, producer, in which she charged he wrongfully discharged her from a $1,000-a-week part in "Madame Pompadour." (International)

SNAKY, EH WHAT?—You guessed it—the pretty lady is a snake charmer. She poses here with one of her "big worms." (Underwood)

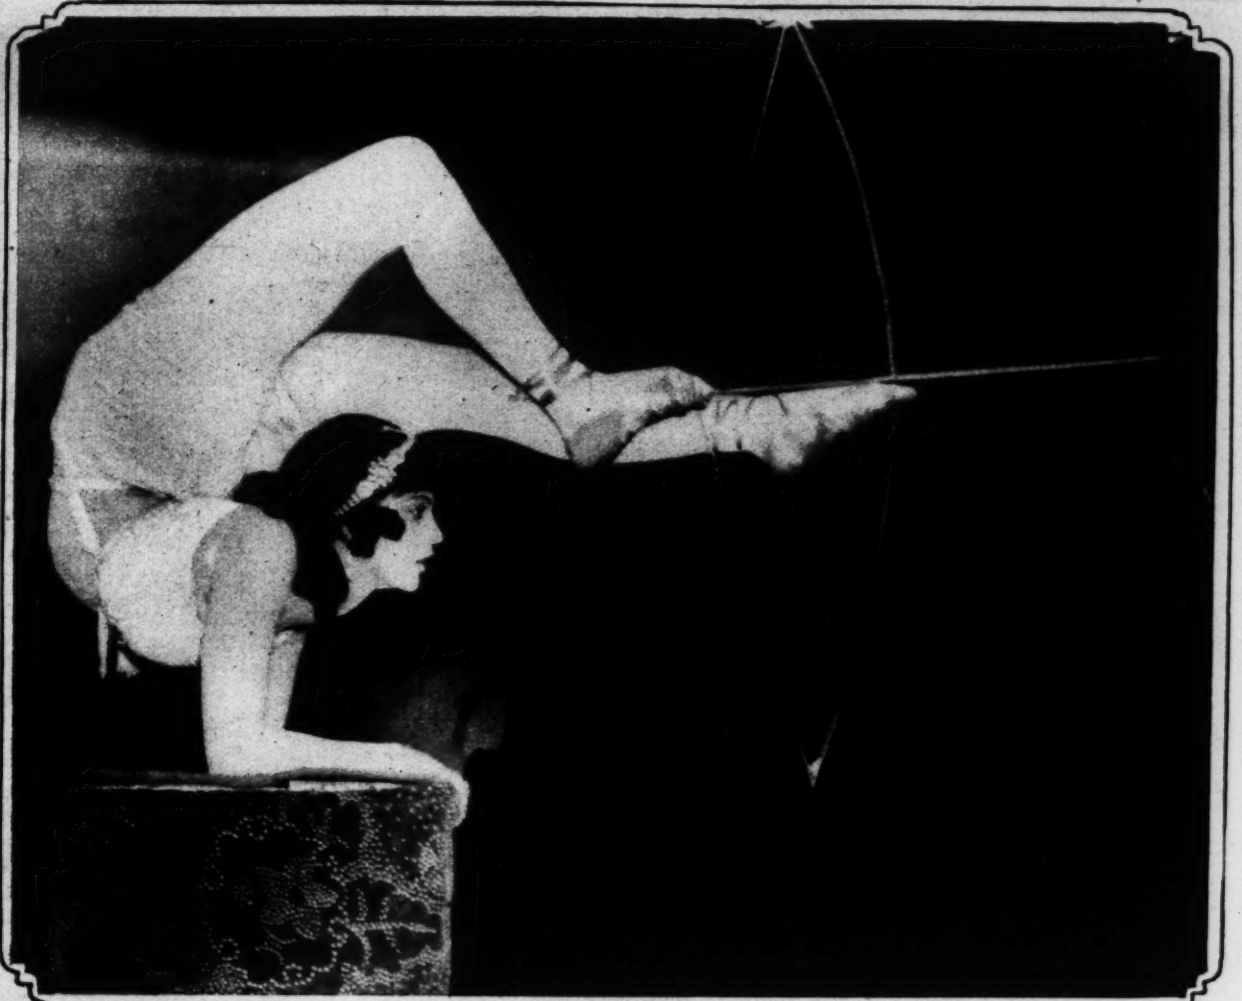

CHERCHEZ LA FEMME—For the female of the species, these two stags are battling furiously as the mating season opens. (International)

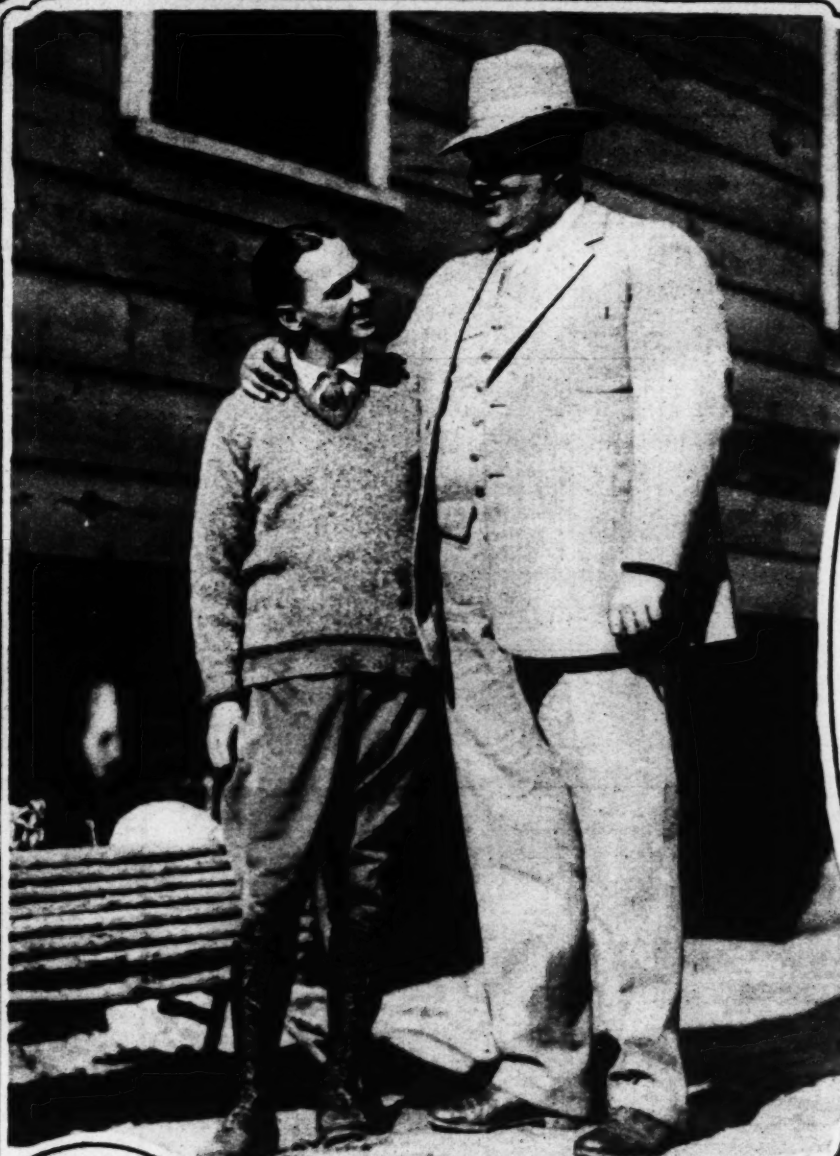

FAMOUS CIVIL WAR PLAY AT ERLANGER—One of the scenes from "My Maryland," depicting the historic Barbara Fritchie incident.

MANY STARS SHINE ON ERLANGER STAGE when "My Maryland," the widely-heralded play opens before Atlanta audiences tomorrow night.

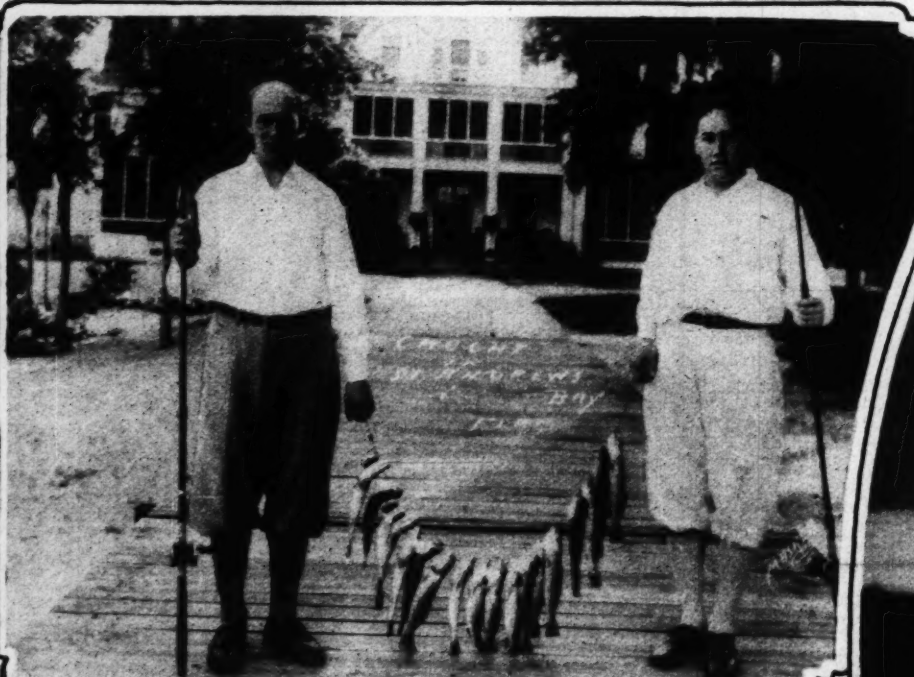

PAGE MR. WILLIAM TELL—Joyce Colleano is all tangled up, but she's aiming straight at the bull's-eye. She is an expert marksman in this difficult role. (International.)

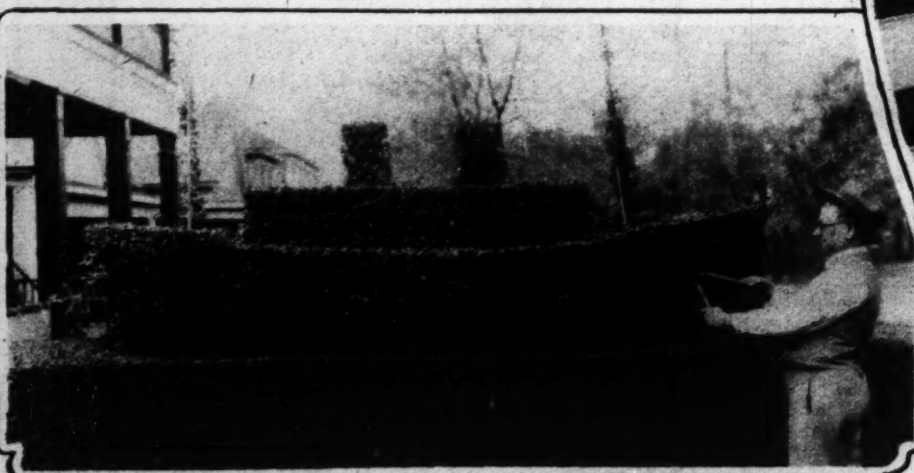

THE LONG AND THE SHORT OF IT—Charlie Skinner, Jr., whom you may guess is standing at the right—is the largest man in Waynesboro, standing 6 feet 4½ inches and weighing 302 pounds. He was one of the most active members of the Georgia field trials, held annually in that city. In this picture he is shown acting as bodyguard to Dick Hawkins, sports editor of The Constitution.

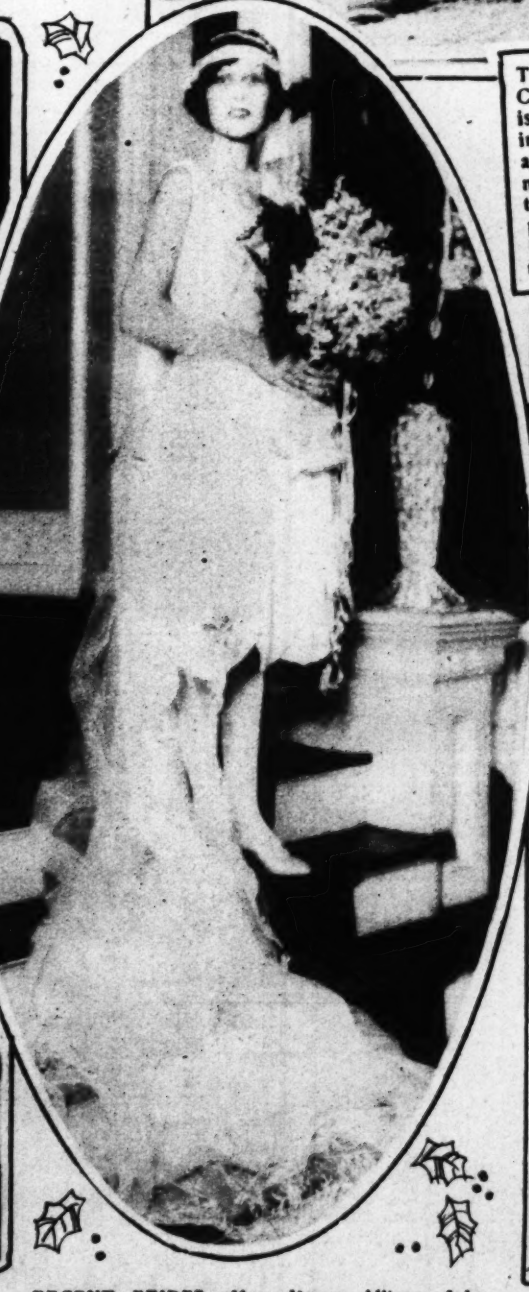

"WHY BOYS LEAVE HOME"—and go to the movies. Sue Carol, one of the rapidly rising stars of the silver sheet, who takes the lead in DeMille's new feature, "Skyscraper."

"BUT YOU SHOULD HAVE SEEN THE ONES THAT GOT AWAY"—Hank Bjorkman (left) and Don Miller, two famous coaches on the Georgia Tech staff, are as good fishermen as they are mentors. This fact may be evidenced by this string of briny beauties captured by them while they were guests of Captain Jack O'Leary at St. Andrews Bay, Fla.

THIS SHIP GETS LARGER EVERY DAY—A unique hedge design created by A. Costa, of Athens, Ga., shown here putting the curiosity in "ship-shape" condition for the photographer.

RECENT BRIDES—Mrs. Harry Allison Johnstone, of West Palm Beach, Fla., formerly Miss Frances Holden, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Horace Moore Holden, of Athens, Ga.

"THE MOROCCAN STORY-TELLER"—This beautiful painting, by Alfred DeLodeucq, is one of the exhibits depicting life in French North Africa, now on exhibition in the John Wanamaker galleries in New York. The showing is creating wide interest in art circles.

SWEDISH CIRCLE—A striking new portrait of Greta Garbo, bewitching star who will appear on the screen soon with John Gilbert in "Love," screen version of Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina." The film will be seen at Loew's Grand theater.

WHERE 86 PERISHED IN SEA DISASTER—The prow of the S. S. Tahiti cut this crowded ferry boat cleanly in half in the harbor of Sydney, Australia. The steamer is said to have had the right of way and the ferry disregarded her warning whistle. (Underwood)

FLYING SECRETARY HERE—Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war, enjoyed a brief visit in Atlanta recently when he flew into Candler field from a visit to Texas army posts, on his way back to Washington. He is shown being greeted by General H. O. Williams, commander of the 4th corps area. (Francis E. Price.)

PRETTY HAMMER SLAYER—Mrs. Vilma West, prominent young matron of Painesville, Ohio, has admitted that she beat her husband to death with a hammer after he is alleged to have struck her. She is shown here in jail being solaced by "Lady," the sheriff's dog. (Associated Press)

RESCUERS TOIL TO SAVE ILL-FATED FERRY VICTIMS—This photograph shows survivors of the crash between the Tahiti and the ferry Gerycliffe, in Sydney harbor, being brought ashore. Eighty-six lost their lives in the disaster. (Underwood)

SOLDIER OF FORTUNE—After a spectacular military career under a foreign flag that brought him many medals for bravery and almost sent him before a firing squad, Bennet J. Doty is coming home to the States. This photo was made a few moments before his release in the courtyard of the French Foreign Legion in Arabia. (Associated Press)

HARD LUCK GUY—Captain Robert Pamphlet, Canadian rum-runner, rescued eight shipwrecked sailors on the Pacific coast only to have his own vessel and its contraband cargo fall into the toils of the coast guard. Sentenced to federal prison, sentiment is said to be strong for his liberation. (Associated Press)

COOLIDGE FURNITURE ON BLOCK—Furnishings of the old Adams house in Boston used by President Coolidge when he was governor of Massachusetts, has been sold at auction. Spirited bidding marked the sale of the Coolidge pieces. (Herbert)

A VAN FULL OF CHRISTMAS JOY FOR YOU!

LOCAL & LONG DISTANCE Hauling
ZABAN
PACKING & STORAGE
ATLANTA, GA.

From ZABAN Storage Co.

On This Happy Day

The members of this firm and their associates extend greetings to their friends and patrons in all parts of the land.

Our Stock of Silverware is Distinctive for Being All Sterling and the Largest in the South.

Myron E. Freeman & Bro.
JEWELERS
163 PEACHTREE STREET, ATLANTA

Y. M. C. A. BIBLE STUDY CLUB—This big organization of young business men of Atlanta meets every Tuesday night at the "Y," 145 Luckie street, Atlanta. Teachers are the Revs. N. R. High Moor, Samuel T. Senter, W. J. Young, Wallace Rogers and Melton Clark. W. Frank Smith is chairman of the religious work committee; Frank Fair, member of the religious work committee; Philip M. Colbert, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and W. L. Beyer, Jr., executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. (Kenneth Rogers)

QUEBEC'S MAYOR FATHER OF 22 CHILDREN—Here's Mayor T. Sinnard and his wife with part of their family. The mayor is the father of 22 children, nine of whom are living. (International)

GEORGIA'S WOMAN SENATOR VISITS CAPITOL—Ex-Senator Rebecca Felton, in Washington recently for the unveiling of the Alexander Stephens statue in the Hall of Fame, was snapped on the capitol steps with the Georgia senators, William J. Harris and Walter F. George. (International)

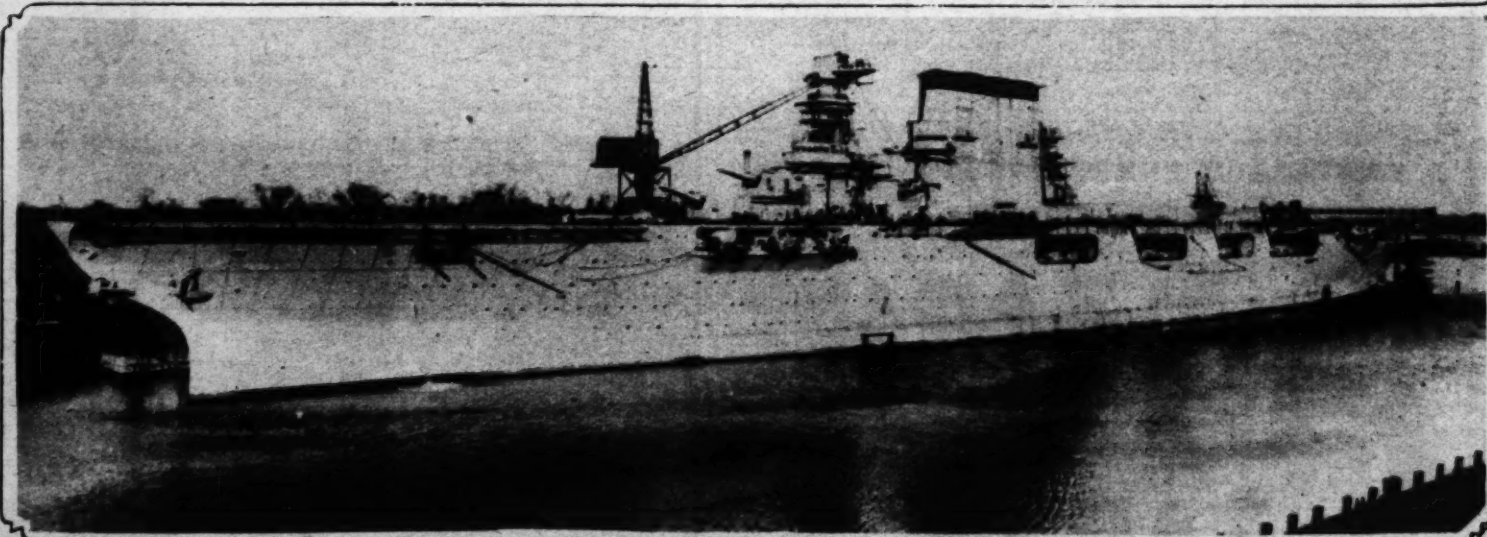

PUBLISHER'S SON WEDS—John R. Hearst, student at Oglethorpe university, Atlanta, and his bride, Miss Dorothy Hart, of Los Angeles. (International)

HALF MILLION FOR PROHIBITION—Sebastian S. Kresge, five-and-ten-cent chain store owner, has given $500,000 to dry organizations' educational drives because he believes education is the only way of eliminating the bootleg evil. (International)

SHOW BOAT—Here's a Chinese junk, manned by Captain Alfred Nilson and his wife, which has made a trip around the world. The couple make a livelihood by charging admission to see their collection of Oriental curios. (International)

WAR EAGLES' ALPHE is this giant airplane carrier, the Lexington, which went into commission recently as a naval unit. It can cross the ocean in four and a half days, is 880 feet long and 160 feet wide. (International)

Merry Christmas

On this Christmas Day it is our sincere wish that each and every one of our host of friends shall feel the same joy and happiness that we do.

We keenly appreciate this friendship that has given us the privilege of serving the South for over forty years.

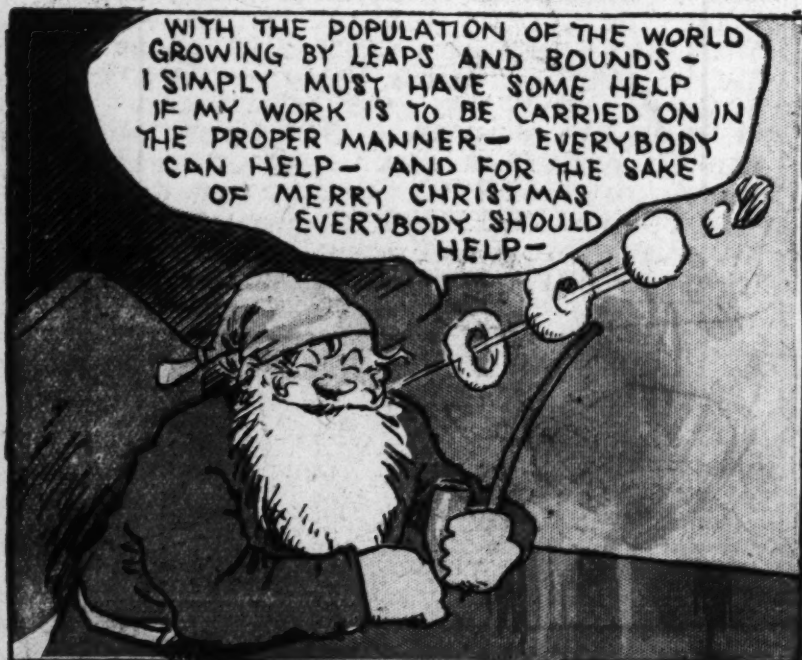

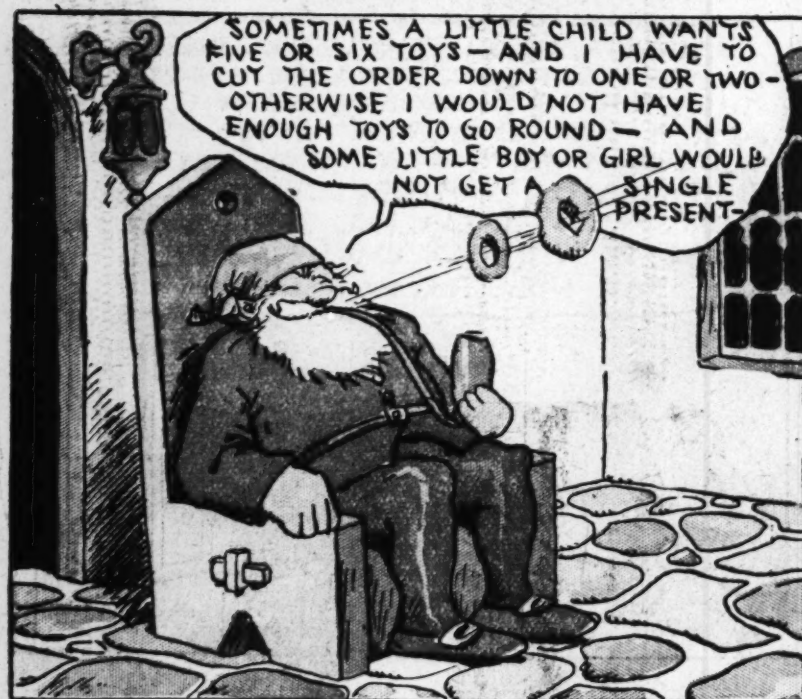

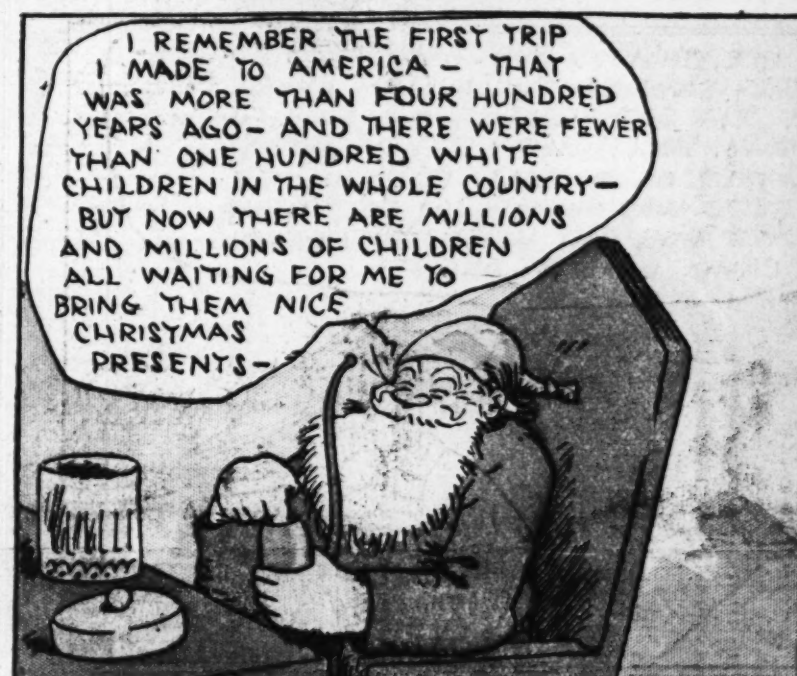

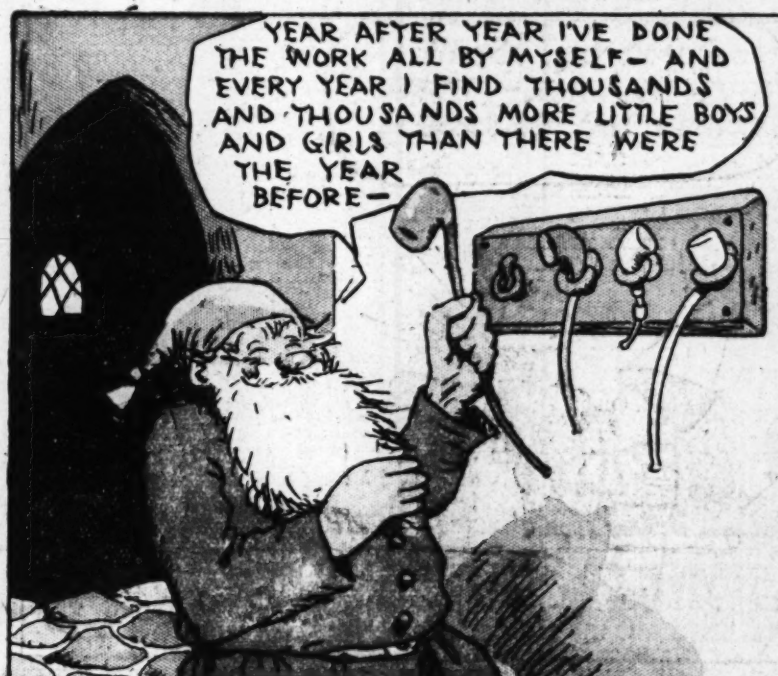

MAIER & BERKELE, Inc.
65 Whitehall St., S. W. Established 40 Years

For three score years
the radiance of the South's Christmas candles has fallen upon gifts from Rich's

Merry Christmas.

W. Rich & Bros. Co.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 2, 1935

Little Orphan Annie

HAROLD GRAY

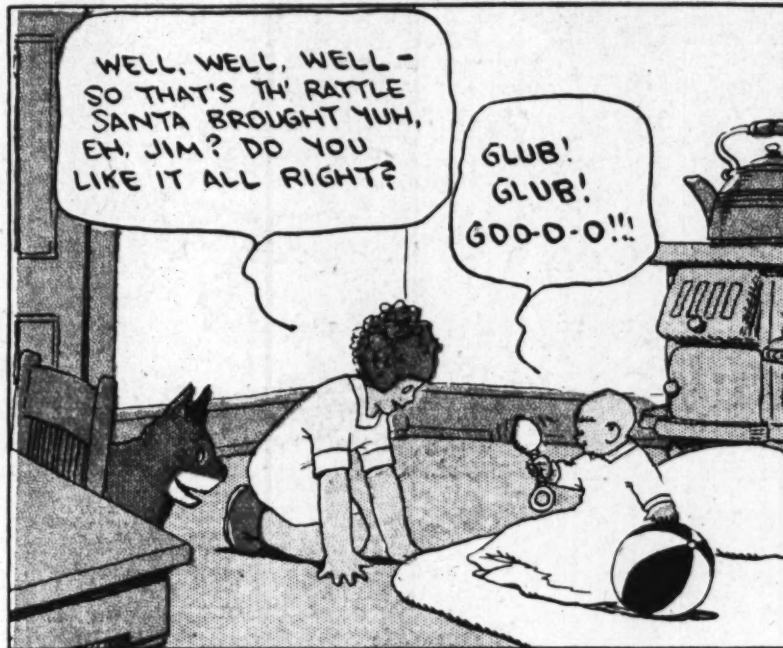

SURE WANTA THANK YOU FOR COMIN' TO SEE US, SANTY- AFTER ALL TH' STORIES I TOLD TH' KIDS 'BOUT YOU, YOU SURE WOULD HAVE MADE AN AWFUL FIBBER OUT OF ME IF YUH HADN'T SHOWN UP-

GEE- ALL TH' KIDS ARE CRAZY 'BOUT OUR NEW SLED-

THEY THOUGHT WE WERE KIDDIN', AT FIRST, WHEN WE TOLD 'EM SANTY CLAUS BROUGHT IT-

WELL, YOU'D BETTER COME IN WHERE IT'S WARM. NOW- IT'S GETTIN' LATE AN' SUPPER'S 'MOST READY-

WELL, WELL, WELL- SO THAT'S TH' RATTLE SANTA BROUGHT YUH, EH, JIM? DO YOU LIKE IT ALL RIGHT?

GLUB! GLUB! GOO-O-O!!

LOOK, ANNIE- I JUST CHANGED KATRINKA'S DRESS- ISN'T SHE CUTE? HOW DO YOU SPOSE SANTA CLAUS KNEW JUST Z'ACTLY WHAT I WANTED MOST?

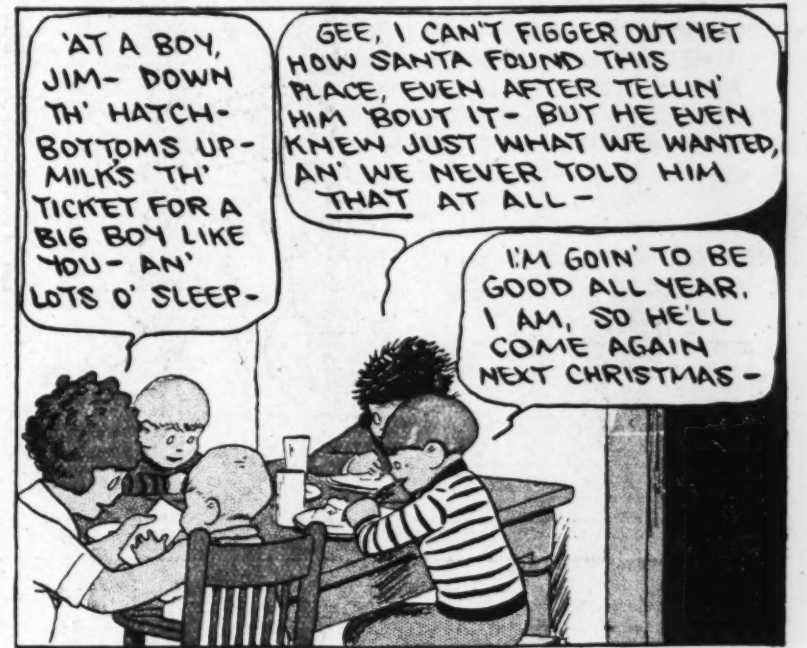

OH, I GUESS A BIRD AS OLD AS HE IS GETS PRETTY WISE, HELEN-

GEE, TH' KIDS SURE ARE HAPPY TO-DAY- THEY SAW SANTA CLAUS AN' EVERY ONE OF 'EM GOT PRESENTS- A SLED, HORN, 'DRUM, DOLL, CANDY FOR EVER'BODY AN' A RATTLE AN' A BALL FOR JIM- IT SURE WAS FUNNY TO SEE THEIR EYES BUG OUT WHEN SANTY CLAUS CAME IN LAST NIGHT-

COME ON, ANNIE- GET IN LINE- HERE COMES TH' PARADE-

'AT A BOY, JIM- DOWN TH' HATCH- BOTTOMS UP- MILKS TH' TICKET FOR A BIG BOY LIKE YOU- AN' LOTS O' SLEEP-

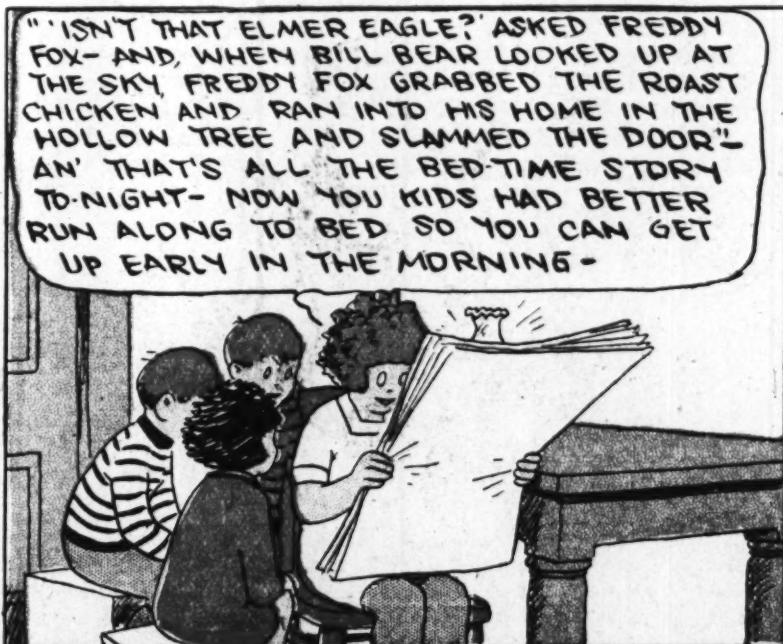

GEE, I CAN'T FIGGER OUT YET HOW SANTA FOUND THIS PLACE, EVEN AFTER TELLIN' HIM 'BOUT IT- BUT HE EVEN KNEW JUST WHAT WE WANTED, AN' WE NEVER TOLD HIM THAT AT ALL-

I'M GOIN' TO BE GOOD ALL YEAR. I AM, SO HE'LL COME AGAIN NEXT CHRISTMAS-

YOU KNOW, ANNIE, THAT'S TH' FIRST REAL DOLLIE I'VE HAD SINCE I WAS A BABY- AFTER PAPA WENT AWAY WE HAVEN'T HAD ANYTHING BUT BAD LUCK-

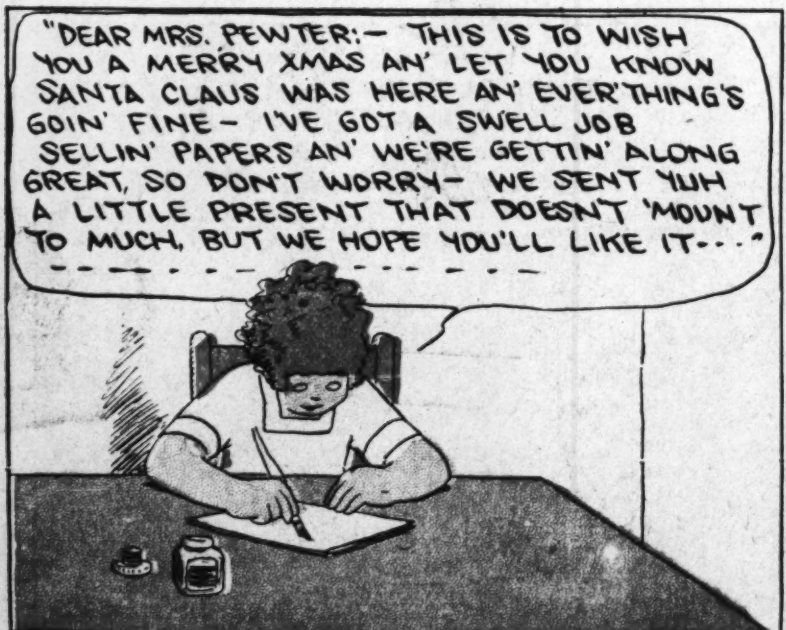

WELL, HELEN- EVERYTHING'S GOIN' TO BE O. K. FROM NOW ON-

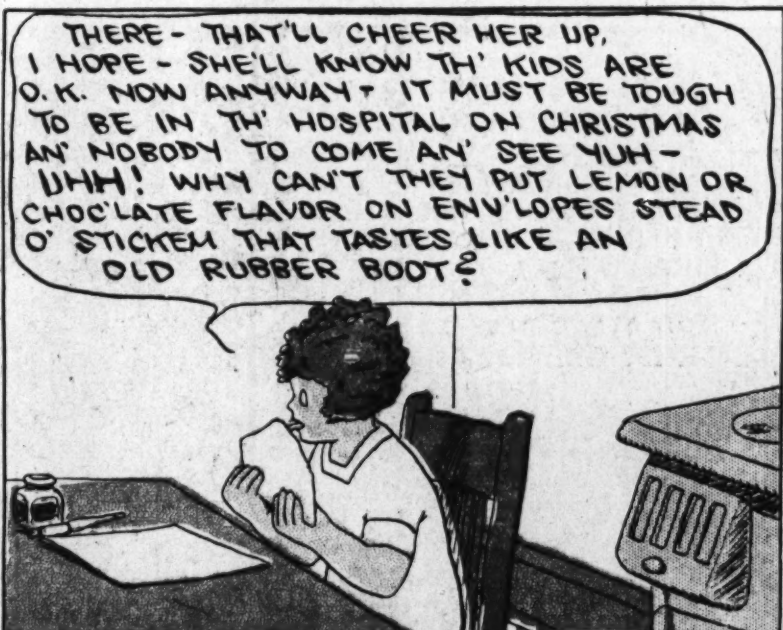

"ISN'T THAT ELMER EAGLE?" ASKED FREDDY FOX- AND, WHEN BILL BEAR LOOKED UP AT THE SKY FREDDY FOX GRABBED THE ROAST CHICKEN AND RAN INTO HIS HOME IN THE HOLLOW TREE AND SLAMMED THE DOOR! AN' THAT'S ALL THE BED-TIME STORY TO-NIGHT- NOW YOU KIDS HAD BETTER RUN ALONG TO BED SO YOU CAN GET UP EARLY IN THE MORNING-

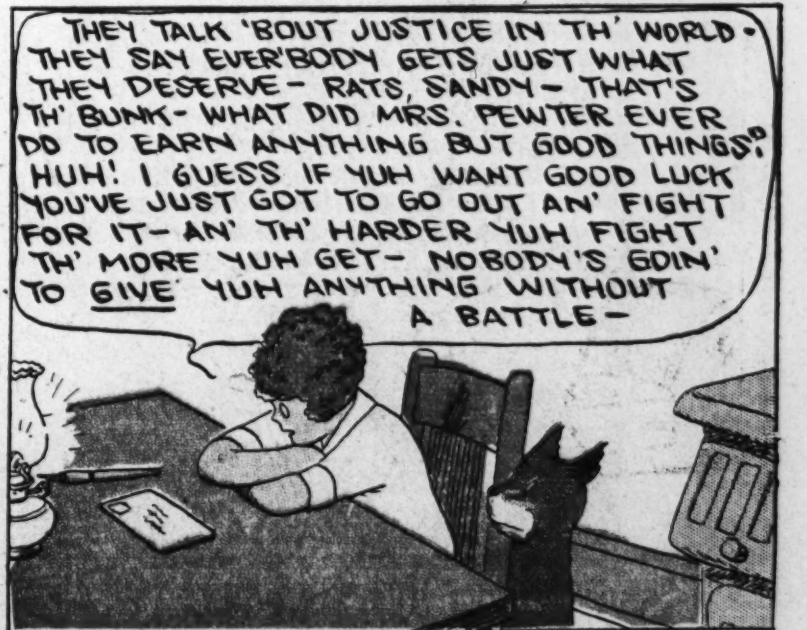

ASLEEP ALREADY- THEY SURE WERE ALL IN- PLAYING ALL DAY LONG- HAPPIER THAN THEY'VE BEEN FOR A LONG TIME- JUST A FEW TOYS DID IT, TOO- BEATS ALL HOW EASY 'TIS TO MAKE FOLKS HAPPY WHEN YUH REALLY TRY- AN' JUST SEEN' THEM ALL SMILES HAS MADE IT A SWELL CHRISTMAS FOR ME, TOO-

"DEAR MRS. PEWTER:- THIS IS TO WISH YOU A MERRY XMAS AN' LET YOU KNOW SANTA CLAUS WAS HERE AN' EVERYTHING'S GOIN' FINE- I'VE GOT A SWELL JOB SELLIN' PAPERS AN' WE'RE GETTIN' ALONG GREAT, SO DON'T WORRY- WE SENT YUH A LITTLE PRESENT THAT DOESN'T 'MOUNT TO MUCH, BUT WE HOPE YOU'LL LIKE IT--"

THERE- THAT'LL CHEER HER UP. I HOPE- SHE'LL KNOW TH' KIDS ARE O. K. NOW ANYWAY- IT MUST BE TOUGH TO BE IN TH' HOSPITAL ON CHRISTMAS AN' NOBODY TO COME AN' SEE YUH- UHH! WHY CAN'T THEY PUT LEMON OR CHOCOLATE FLAVOR ON ENV'LOPES STEAD O' STICKEM THAT TASTES LIKE AN OLD RUBBER BOOT?

THEY TALK 'BOUT JUSTICE IN TH' WORLD- THEY SAY EVERYBODY GETS JUST WHAT THEY DESERVE- RATS, SANDY- THAT'S TH' BUNK- WHAT DID MRS. PEWTER EVER DO TO EARN ANYTHING BUT GOOD THINGS? HUH! I GUESS IF YUH WANT GOOD LUCK YOU'VE JUST GOT TO GO OUT AN' FIGHT FOR IT- AN' TH' HARDER YUH FIGHT TH' MORE YUH GET- NOBODY'S GOIN' TO GIVE YUH ANYTHING WITHOUT A BATTLE-

THE BIG FEED.

I'M SURPRISED AT JIM GOOFUS.

WHY SO?

HE MUST HAVE BEEN A GLUTTON AT THE BANQUET LAST NIGHT.

A GLUTTON? WHY SO?

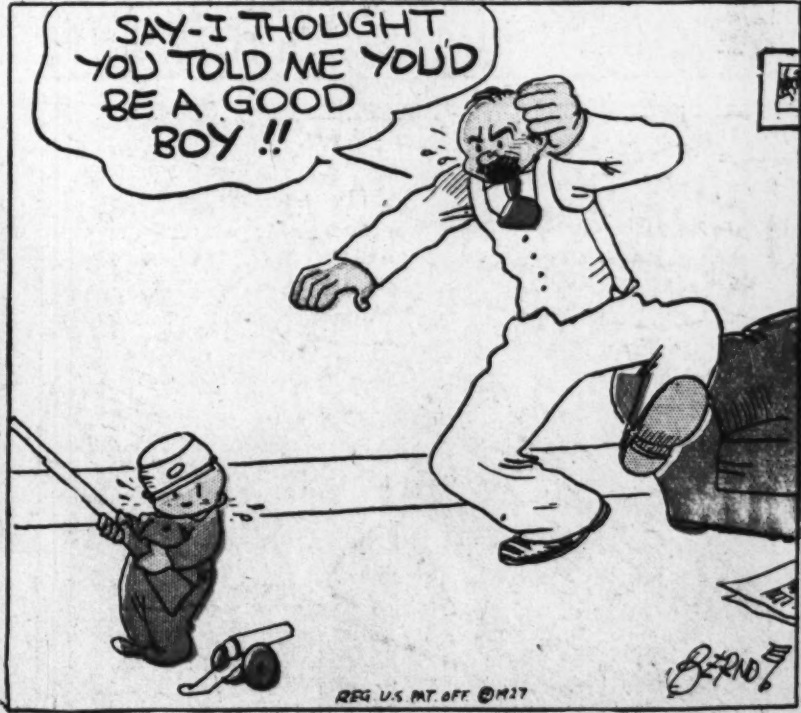

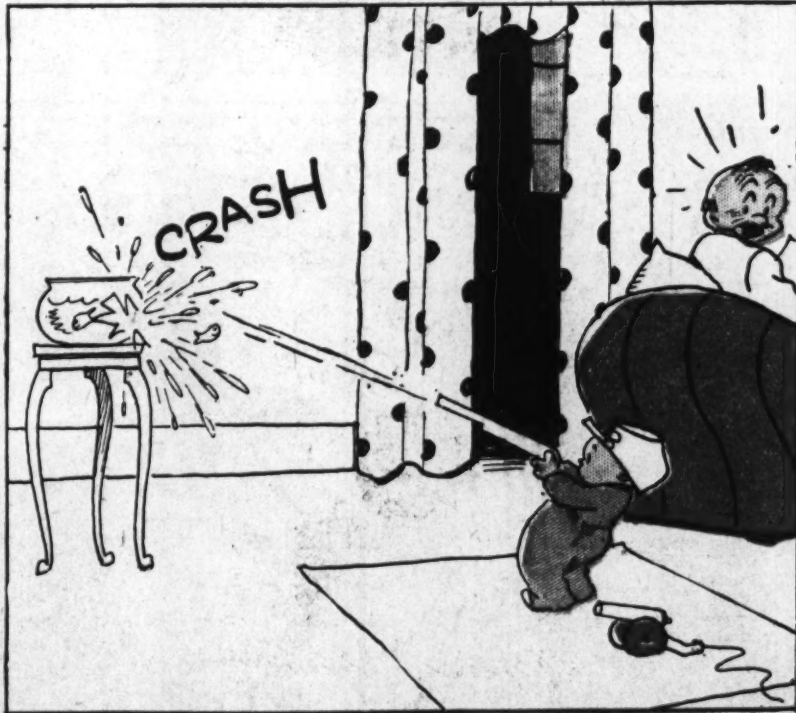

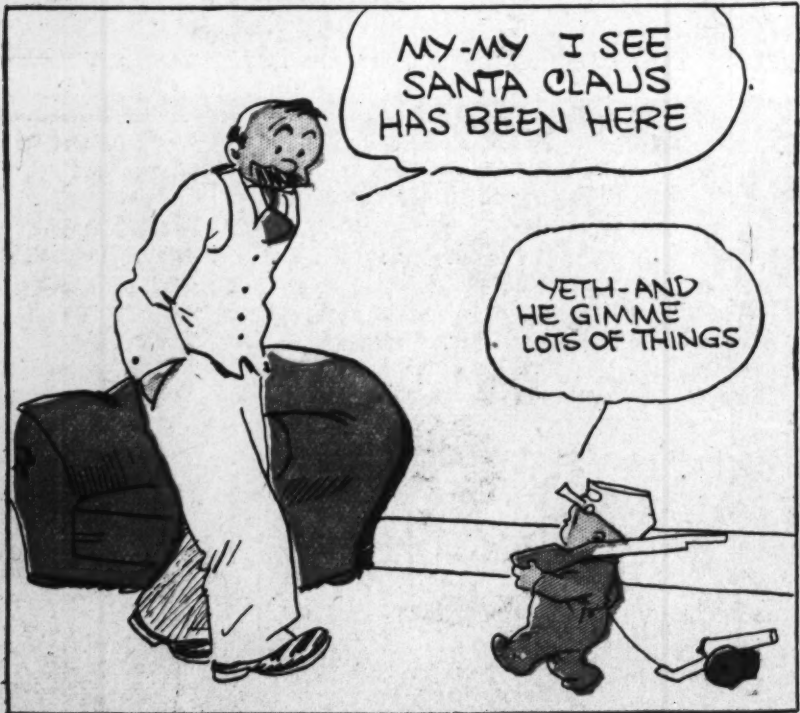

I READ ABOUT THE FEED THIS MORNING.

GOO'NESS! THE PAPER DIDN'T MENTION WHAT HE ATE?

NO! BUT IT DID PRINT HOW MUCH HE ATE

AW, GET OUT.

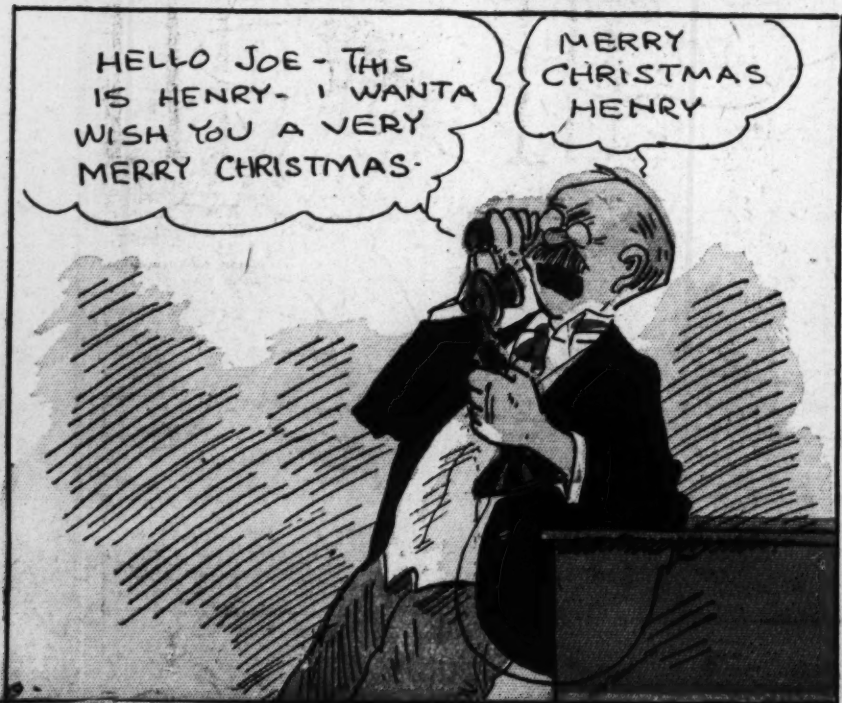

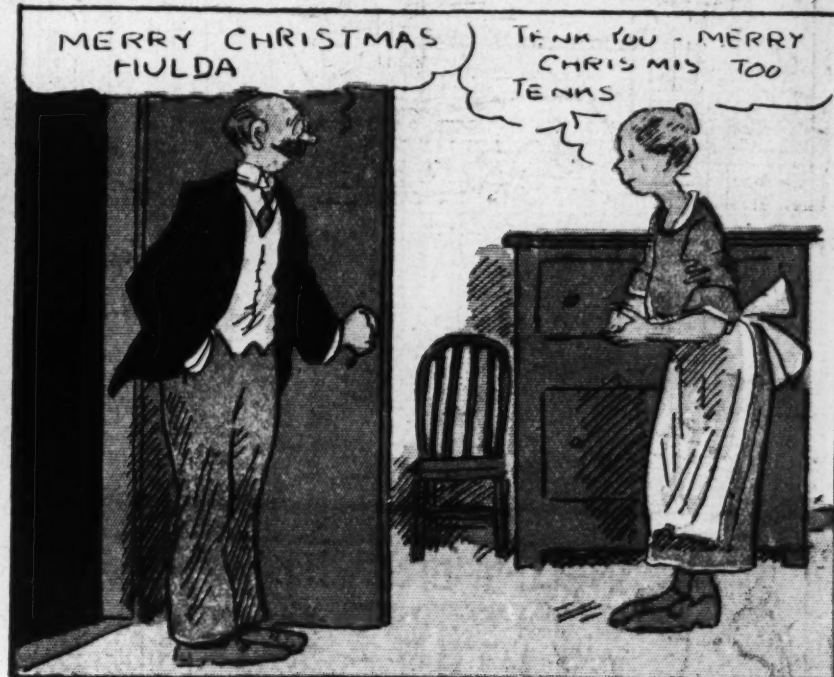

I'M NOT KIDDING, IT SAID "JIM GOOFUS ET AL."

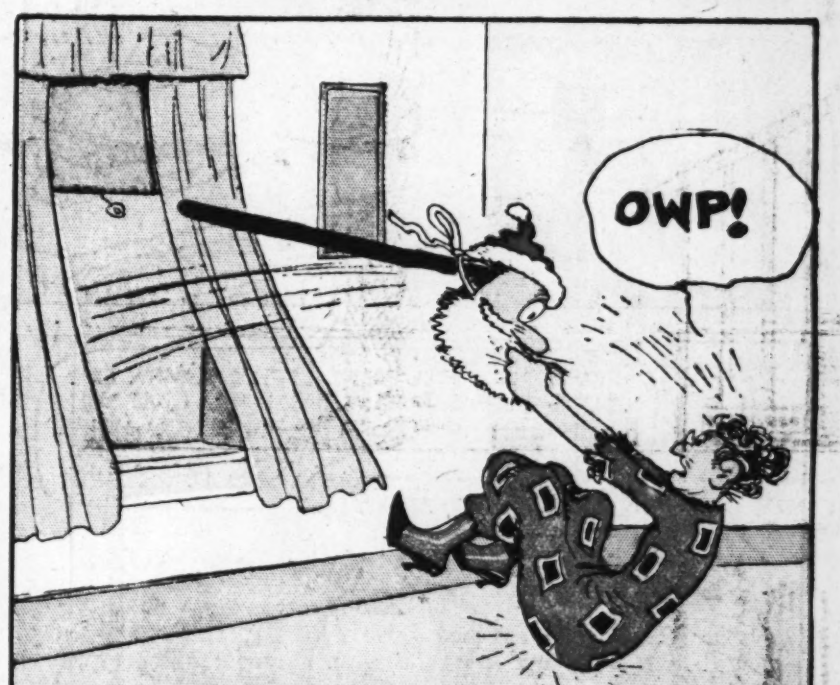

SUNDAY DECEMBER 25 1927

MERRY CHRISTMAS

Mr. and Mrs. By Briggs

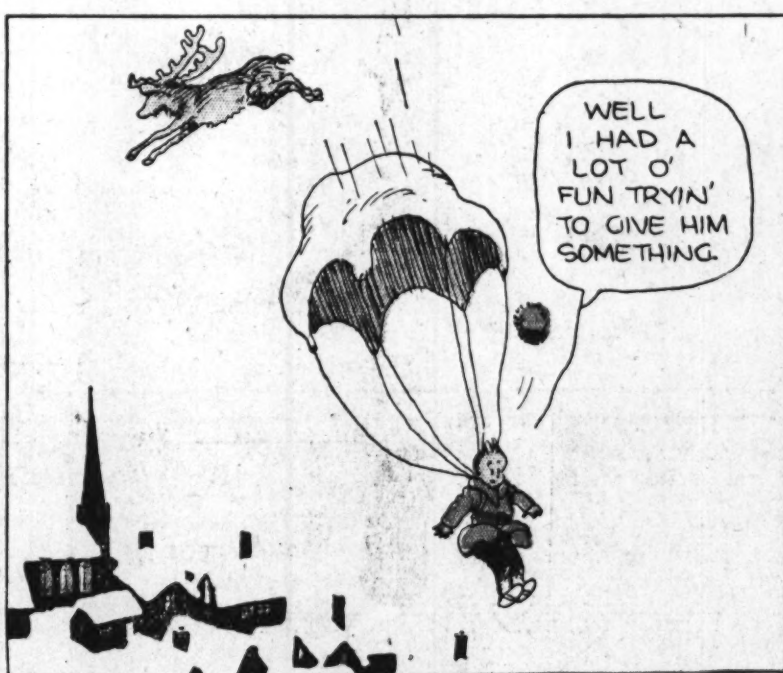

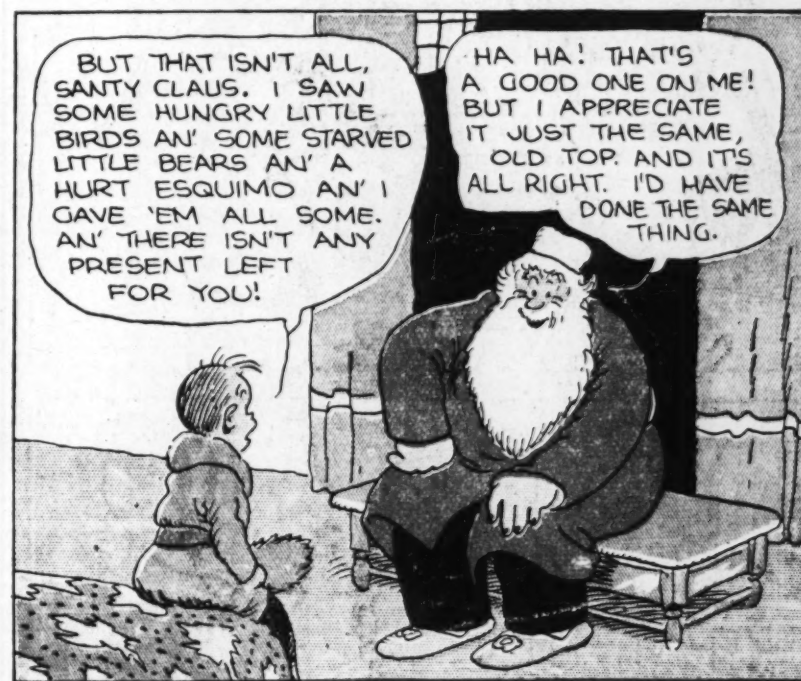

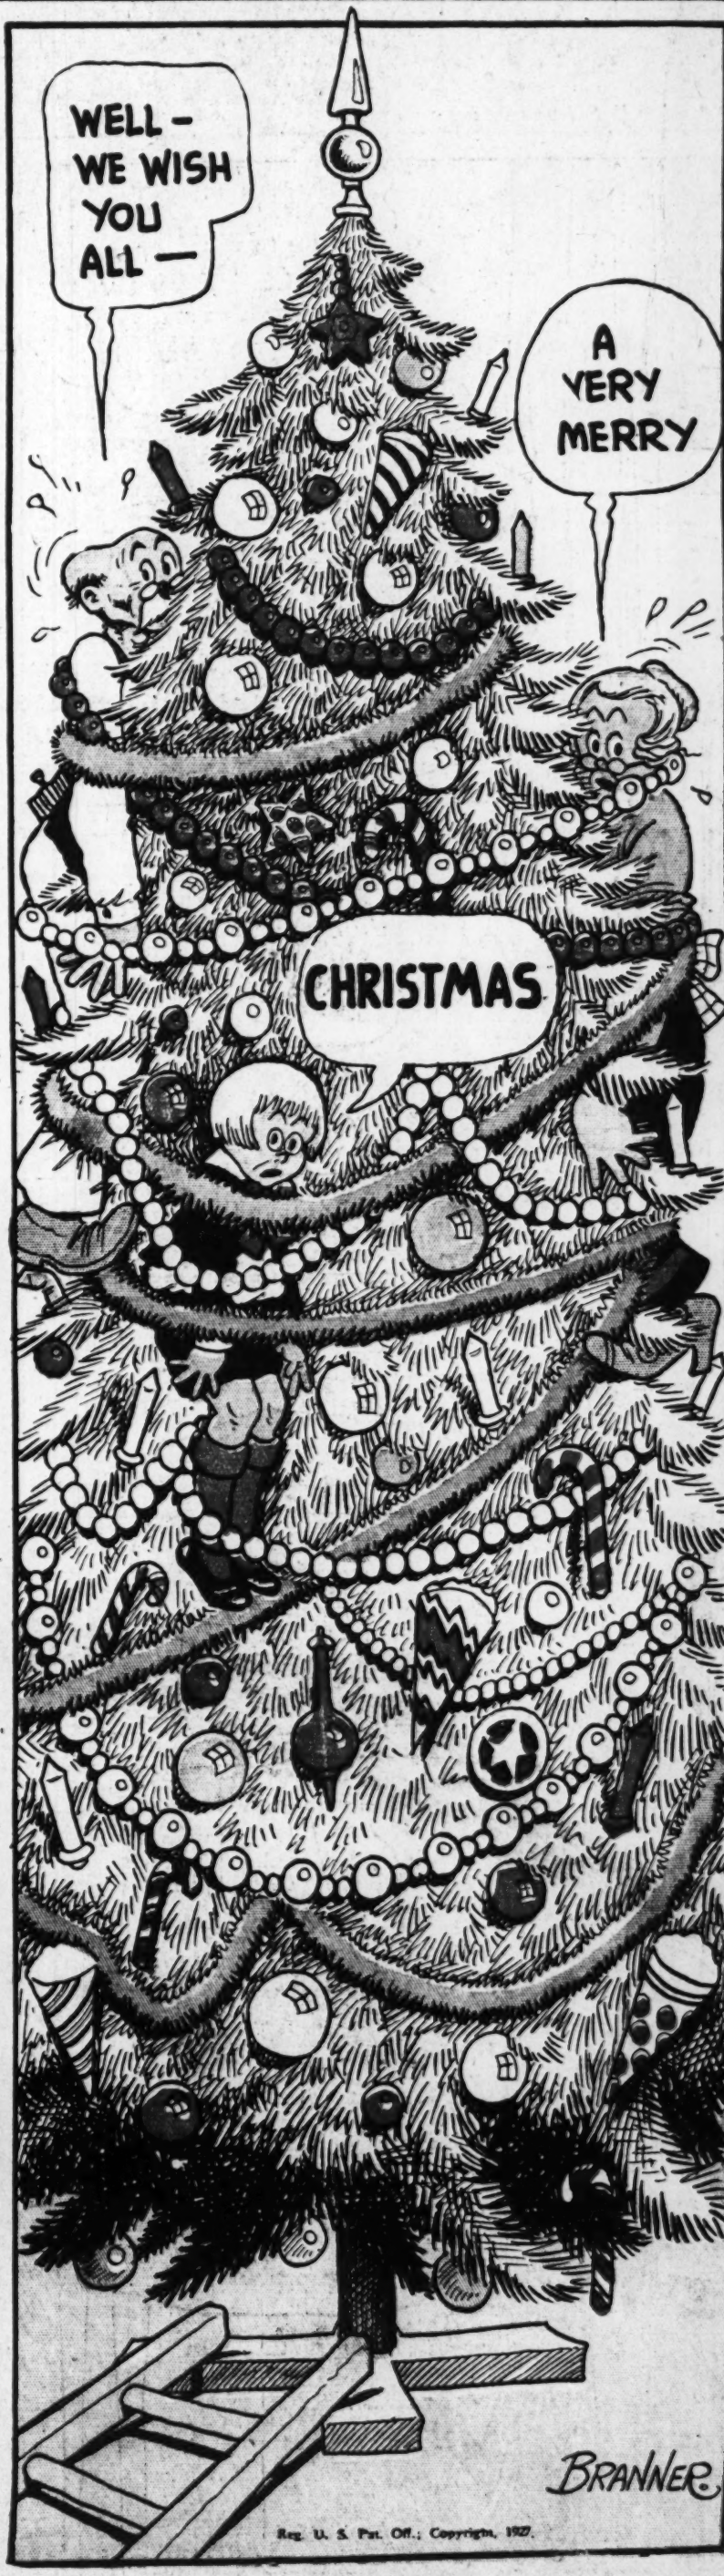

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY, DECEMBER 25, 1927.

Gasoline Alley

CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK: SKEEZIX STARTED OUT TO GIVE SANTA A CHRISTMAS PRESENT AND HAS GOTTEN THIS FAR ON AN EVENTFUL JOURNEY.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY MORNING, DECEMBER 20, 1927

SOMEBODY'S STENOG

by A.E. Hayward

Registered in U. S. Patent Office

Wishing you a very merry Christmas

